

CITY MAY BE CHOSEN SITE OF PLANE FACTORY

St. Louis Official Confers With Airport Head on Facilities.

Prospects of Indianapolis' first airplane factory being located here soon were seen today following conference of city officials and Ray E. Smith of the Liberty Aircraft Sales and Manufacturing Corporation of St. Louis, Wednesday.

Smith, who came here at the invitation of Charles E. Cox Jr., municipal airport superintendent, conferred with Cox and C. G. Dunphy, Chamber of Commerce industrial commissioner, on possibility of locating the company's plant here. At present the factory is using Lambert field, St. Louis.

The Liberty company, which is fairly new in the aviation industry, manufactures a light two-place, side by side, monoplane in the midwest plane class, weighing less than 500 pounds, empty.

While there are no housing facilities at present for such a plant on municipal airport, Cox is confident that the firm could use a building in the city for manufacturing the plane, assembling the parts and flight testing its planes at the municipal field.

Later, he said, a building suitable to house this and similar firms may be constructed at the field in the section set aside for industrial concerns.

Any profits which might result from formal dedication program of the municipal field early in September probably could be used in building such a structure, it was said.

From crown to helmet, throne to cockpit—that's the transition made by the Princess Aspasia of Greece, widow of King Alexander. The princess, who is pictured here, is taking flying lessons at the Heston aerodrome in England, and expects to be granted a license soon.

BOY EMPEROR NOW IS SINGER

Decides He Will Take Up Chinese Opera.

PEIPING, June 4.—The former boy emperor of China, now known as Henry Ru Yi, has decided to take up Chinese opera singing as a diversion, and perhaps a career.

One of the former Manchurian ruler's retainers has come to Peiping from Tientsin to engage the services of a well-known teacher.

He also is buying here a set of musical instruments used in Chinese opera, and suitable costumes.

It is believed possible the former emperor may become a professional opera singer, if he proves good enough.

STIMSON TOUR OF EUROPE MAY BE IMPORTANT

Probably Will Receive First-Hand Data on Problems.

BY JOSEPH H. BAIRD
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The impending European tour of State Secretary Henry L. Stimson is expected to have a salient effect on the course of international affairs during the next year, despite the secretary's desire to minimize its importance.

Informality will be the keynote of the tour. Yet it was in the informal surroundings of President Hoover's Rapidan camp that he and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald talked intimately of their countries' naval problems, and thus gave impetus to the London conference.

Two Outstanding Issues

With this precedent in mind, officials believe the secretary's quiet talks with European statesmen will prove helpful in the solution of international problems.

Disarmament and reparations are the two outstanding issues now perplexing Europe and America, and Stimson is expected to seek new light on each and in quiet conversations, probably with Foreign Ministers Dino Grandi of Italy, Aristide Briand of France, Arthur Henderson of Great Britain and Julius Curtius of Germany.

Renewing Old Friendships
In meeting the first three he will be renewing old friendships. The four men spent several months working together, at the London naval conference. Stimson never has met Curtius.

Stimson regards personal acquaintance with the foreign ministers of other powers as a distinct asset in conducting international relations.

He believes, too, that his second-hand reports on conditions in Europe, provided by embassy cables and talks with returning officials, should be supplemented by first-hand contact with European leaders.
