

CARE OF FOOD IMPORTANT IN WARM MONTHS

Properly Constructed Ice Refrigerator Protects Family Health.

Food can be preserved better in an ice refrigerator than by any other method, according to Henry L. Dittmer, Polar Ice and Fuel Company president.

With a properly constructed ice refrigerator and pure, clean ice, such as is manufactured by the Polar company, the humidity balance properly is maintained, natural flavors are preserved better and expense of operation is confined solely to purchase of ice.

Ice boxes refrigerated with artificial ice always keep food wholesome and free from odors.

This is the time of year when proper preservation of foods and food products becomes of vital importance in the home.

Display Room Maintained

Anything that will keep the food supply wholesomely cold and provide the means of preserving its flavor and healthfulness is a good investment.

For the benefit of its constantly increasing number of ice patrons, the Polar company maintains a refrigerator display room containing a wide variety of styles in properly constructed refrigerators.

Insulation, construction and circulation are three important points in refrigerator construction which many times are overlooked by ice box purchasers.

Sales Have Grown

Because it was found that many expensive types of refrigerators were built improperly and failed to give satisfactory service, the Polar company began handling refrigerators built on scientific principles.

Sales of these Polar ice refrigerators have grown tremendously, as homemakers have learned of their satisfactory performance.

The Polar salesroom is located at 2000 Northwestern avenue. Salesmen of the company will call at the home and take persons interested in refrigerators to the showroom, and then return them to their homes, without obligation to buy.

ARTIFICIAL LAKE TO BE CREATED HERE

Park, 200-Acre Pool and Recreation Center to Be Beauty Spot.

That city so located as to have the advantage of natural parks is most fortunate.

In such places as Minneapolis and Detroit, for example, nature has been lavish in providing playgrounds for the city population, and the residents have beautified these places so that they have become a principal source of delight to the people for recreation, health and esthetic beauty.

Inland cities, however, must provide their own in this line. Indianapolis has grown to its present size with comparatively little opportunity in this respect, and yet the imperative need of such parks has forced itself upon the city consciousness.

Now the challenge is to create, as close to the center of population as possible, the kind of parks that will afford rest and delight to a large population.

That challenge has been accepted by a group of business men and civic leaders, and one such beauty spot is in process of creation, with steam shovels taking the place of the natural lakes and rivers of more fortunate municipalities.

At Raymond and Harding streets is being created what will become, in the course of time, as fine a recreation center as any city boasts.

The site is fortunate in that it has an abundant water supply of clean, healthful spring production, forced through an underlying filter of fine gravel. At present one of the pools thus formed has a fifty-foot depth.

Taking this as the base, it is planned to make an artificial lake, covering perhaps 200 acres of ground, and to place in this lake an island. On this island and surrounding the lake, will be bathing beaches, composed of fine sand, golf courses, tennis courts, drives, a modern boat house and a shelter building.

Expert landscape architects will lay it off into a dream of beauty; expert advice will be sought in the provision of recreation, and the place will have the advantage of being made to order for the purpose of pleasure—one of the first efforts in the country on so great a scale, and one that will transform a city into a recreation center that will command the attention of city builders the world over and that will show the spirit and progress of the Capital city in a most favorable light.

Health Has Effect on Office Work Efficiency

Pure Drinking Water Helps to Build Up Resistance Against Illness.

Every man who maintains an office of three or more employees has to face the question of efficiency under conditions different from the employment of factory help.

In the latter case, usually, the greater part of the force is engaged in work that does not call for the full exercise of a quick and alert mentality; in the office that is the main consideration.

The use of this mentality is governed so largely by physical conditions that offices generally are selected because of their ventilation, light and similar points. Poor ventilation slows up an efficient worker. Poor light actually decreases the amount of work and lowers its quality.

There still is another factor the employer can control which is of far more importance than generally is credited. That is the supply of drinking water. The character of office work actually has a tendency to make people neglect the supply of the body in this respect.

When, in addition to this, the ordinary sanitary precautions are omitted, the employer may expect to find his people handicapped by colds, headaches and lethargy. Few people drink enough water.

The Crystal Springs Water Company has a service that actually will place dollars in the pocket of an employer of much office help in the supplying of refrigerated deep spring water.

In the outfits supplied offices are included factors of health. One is in the remarkably bracing effect of the water itself.

Good spring water induces the drinking of a proper amount, and in itself promotes those bodily processes that keep the mind alert. Used with the Frigidaire coolers this company supplies, the result really is health giving.

When to this is added the use of the sanitary paper drinking cups that are a part of this service, one has to face the question of efficiency. The spread of colds, encourages the development of more vigor, and results in clearer minds and greater energies for the work in hand.

All this is obtainable at a very low cost. The Ostermeyer Paper Company, which controls the Crystal Springs water, will be pleased to go into this with any one and show you how beneficial and inexpensive this service is. The address is 148 Virginia avenue, the telephone number Riley 0902.

BARBECUE FIRM WINS SUCCESS IN SHORT TIME
Heavy Patronage Reveals Public Demand for Tasty Meats.

A patronage that constantly is increasing has proven that Indianapolis appreciates a genuine hickory smoked barbecue, combined with real chili Mexicano, according to Robert L. Danson, proprietor of the Southern Barbecue, 1010 North Meridian street.

The Southern Barbecue was opened here several months ago by Danson and was a success from the first week.

All meats at the Southern are barbecued over a hickory wood fire for ten hours, preserving all natural food flavor, in addition to the hickory taste.

This type of cooking provides a food nourishment highly recommended throughout the country.

Among the most popular food products served at the Southern are barbecued spareribs, an innovation in the barbecue business.

The Southern caters to special parties and gladly will make up orders of any of its lines of food to be taken out.
