WIDE ARRAY OF PAJAMA CHOICES FOR MILADY

Two-Piece Suit Ranks as Favorite

BY JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

The season's preference for dainty pink and blue is reflected in the dazzling array of summer lingerie shown for the June bride.

Just what you want to sleep in is a personal matter. Pajamas or nightgowns, it makes no difference. You must be daintily clad if you have any aspirations to looking smart this summer.

The sheerest materials are used, everything has a touch of hand-work or lace on it, and the way new things fit is something to marvel at.

Cool, diaphanous and caressing are the new night clothes.

Two-Piece Suit a Favorite

The two-piece pajama seems to be a favorite with many women this summer.

If you are looking for about the daintiest set out—particularly if you are a bride and don't mind getting something unusual—there is an enchanting set of fitted trousers and tuck-in blouse in pink nixon with exquisite decoration in the form of fagotting done with strips of darker pink and green.

There are tiny embroidered flowers in the darker pink and the green, scattered all over the beautifully cut blouse and around the cuff of the trousers.

And, Oh, Those Nightgowns

These trousers have a little yoke of the hand-embroidery also, which makes the pajamas look like a one-piece variety.

If you are just an old-fashioned girl who must have nightgowns, you can be as beautiful as you have a mind to be, so wide a variety of unusual things are shown.

One of the loveliest I have seen is of dainty pale blue crepe a trifle less sheer than georgette, trimmed with real Alencon. Two things fascinate you about this gown.

It has unusual sleeves, formed of little winged strips that run from the waist up over the top of the arm and down into the waist again.

And a quaint little ruffle around the entire bodice. There is a narrow braided belt of the material which ties on the side.

What's in Fashion? Accessories Go Cotton

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, June 9.—Cotton has caught on again! The sweet little cotton-frocked heroine of stage and story actually is walking the city streets as well as the country lanes.

And besides her cotton frock she's often wearing a cotton hat, cotton gloves, a cotton scarf, cotton stockings... and many other accessories equally important and equally fashionable.

The fashion for cotton doesn't stop with sports things, either. Nor does your entire outfit have to be of cotton to make these cotton accessories fashion-right. They go everywhere and with everything.

Bridal Shower Is Given for Miss Wysong

Mrs. W. C. Smith, 2910 College avenue, entertained Sunday afternoon with a tea and handkerchief shower in honor of Miss Gertrude Wysong, who will be married June 11 to Dr. Robert M. Brown, Marion.

Shower gifts were presented to the bride-elect by Joan Hagedorn, dressed as a messenger boy. Guests were:

Handbags of Cotton

Have you seen the new handbags of pique, cotton mesh, or cotton tweed? The one sketched in of mesh and is the logical thing to carry with your mesh sports dress.

White is as smart as anything... but you'll find the same practical beiges and browns that you like so well in suede.

If you want the newest glove idea... it's pique, for sports-wear. And there are even gloves of cotton mesh.

Flowers of Cotton

Pique tulips, gingham carnations, eyelet batiste roses, madras gardenias—these are a few of the new flowers blossoming this summer on fashionable coat and suit lapels.

White flowers on the dark costume... bright-colored flowers on the white costume—are the fashion rule.

Belts of Cotton

Belt and scarf to match is a fashionable combination this season. So you find cotton belts to go with cotton scarfs.

Pique belts (one is sketched), mesh belts and bright-colored cotton prints that can be tied around a waist.

Stockings of Cotton

This is what the fashionable woman wears with her dresses of linen, pique or mesh to make the right ensemble effect. She chooses mesh like to wear with mesh dresses. And for her other cottons, plain lisle, sheer and light as chiffons.

Beiges that look like tanned skins are smart. And white mesh stockings are new with white dresses.

And don't forget the collars and cuffs and vests of cotton that make your dark or printed dress look so much in summer fashion. Nor those swank little hats of tatted pique or linen or the new, mesh-like cotton weaves.

They all belong in the fashionable cotton accessory wardrobe for summer.

Just Every Day Sense

BY MRS. WALTER FERGUSON

IN Texas there dwells a fair young man who has been disillusioned about love. He now is ready to settle down and marry for money. It is through this column he makes his appeal for a wife, and we hope he will be successful.

We shall endeavor to give the best of service, but, being honest, we insist that all the cards be face up on the table.

The gentleman's plea sounds very well. Frankly, he desires a wife with the dough. But there is a catch in this. He is only 28 years old and he prefers a woman not much older than himself.

In this, it seems to me, he is wholly unreasonable. No woman with matrimony and money in view ever has been so irrational in her demands. She may be willing to wed for gold, but she is not so particular about the age of her lothario.

Indeed, she is accustomed to having them apply much older than herself. This difference in age, moreover, adds value to the transaction as a purely business deal, since it is agreed that youth is an asset, and an asset for which the man who buys his wife is willing to pay well.

THERE is no logical reason why men should be any more sensitive than we have always been in this delicate matter. A 60-year-old lady with a fat bank account should not be out of the running if the Texas gentleman is to be consistent when he says that women always have married for money and always will.

That may be true, but if it is, we must remember that money has been the chief consideration. They have not asked for beauty and youth as well.

They have kept this bargaining on a business basis, and do not demand an exorbitant price.

If the men are going to take up this idea of selling themselves, they, too, must realize that they should be willing to bestow their good looks and their youth on aged dowagers, provided the latter can supply the money.

One can not be too squeamish in a trade of this sort. After all, cash is cash. We must keep this in mind.

When tender, season with salt, pepper, meat broth or other desired flavors. If sausage and cabbage are to be served at the same meal the sausage can be cooked in the skillet first. Pour off most of the fat, leaving two or three tablespoons in which the cabbage may be cooked.
