

RED, WHITE, AND BLUE COSTUME IN VOGUE FOR FOURTH

Belt, Shoes Give Bright Color Touch

BY JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

The Fourth of July is an excellent time to wave the good old red, white, and blue color scheme and cash in on its chic value.

Of course you start with a white frock, or a white one touched up with either red or blue. Then you can add the other color in accessory touches and there you are, not only patriotic, but a 100 per cent fashionable American.

Some of the new white bathing suits will stand polka dotted red and white beach sandals and umbrellas and a polka dotted blue and white jacket or coat.

Or you may be better off, so far as chic is concerned, if you merely add a leather belt half red, half blue. Or you may go very flamboyant in your color scheme and use a coat of solid color such as red, and your hat and shoes blue.

Two very smart patriotic costumes, shown here, start life as two-piece frocks. One, a very nifty one indeed, and ideal for a holiday outing on land or sea, is made of wide white pique and tailored to use the striped design of the goods itself for a decorative effect.

The stripes of the weave go this way and that, with the square neck outlined in pointed scallops and the front of the blouse finished in similar manner.

Both blue and white, and red and white linen add their touches, the former for the belt, the latter for the scarf. The hat, if one is worn, should be white, banded in both kinds of polka-dotted linen.

The second outfit is neat and chic, a two-piece white dress with bands of blue and red outlining the round neck, short sleeves, the belt and a simulated bolero on the waist.

Smart looking and tailored, it waves its colors in original manner and chalks up for itself a reputation for individuality.

Million Women to Ask Repeal of Liquor Law

By Times Special
NEW YORK, July 2.—Signatures of one million women, urging the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, will be presented to congress and President Hoover in a petition, by the Women's Moderation Union, it has been announced by Miss M. Louise Gross, national chairman.

The appeal is being made on behalf of mothers, "who feel deeply the responsibility for the welfare of the coming generation," and have watched with "greatest anxiety the growth of intemperance habits in the country," said Miss Gross.

It is the belief of the organization that as long as national prohibition remains in force, all efforts to make the people of the United States sober and temperate will be hopeless.

Members of the organization feel that characters of men, women and children are being ruined, their health undermined, and their respect for honest work being destroyed.

Similar petitions will be circulated at 1932 national political conventions, the chairman said.

More Comfortable Picnics

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

into the first convenient trash can when it's time to go home.

Those decorative paper table cloths and napkins that you see in every store's stationery department make the picnic table (or grass) look more appetizing. And there are "place squares" of paper, which are not square at all but oblong like the mats in your runner and mat set that you use on your table at home.

The vacuum bottle is almost a necessity of the modern picnic. But even more convenient is the vacuum jug... the voluminous one with the wide mouth that can hold thick vegetable soups or piping hot stews for the children.

There are all sorts of small collapsible picnic stoves that operate on canned heat or on the battery of your automobile or the gas in the gas tank. And they're convenient if a really substantial meal is wanted.

And if there's room in the car, you might like the contraption that folds up like a card table, but opens out with two benches attached to a flat top table.

The children can be safely carried from kitchen to picnic place. And the best of it is that with modern equipment practically nothing has to be taken home.

We haven't found any paper knives yet. But paper forks and spoons, paper cups and saucers, paper plates, paper tumblers and sauce dishes have been perfected so they are quite as useful as china, glass or silver.

There are round plates and square plates that can be had in two or three different sizes. If you want to get fancy, there are divided plates, just like a china grill plate, with three sections for keeping three different articles of food separate. These are large enough to be held safely in the lap if a picnic table isn't about.

There are squatty containers for serving salad, vegetables, apple sauce or anything else that's in a semi-liquid-semi-solid state. There are platters for cold meat—or the steak or hot dogs you cook at the picnic grounds.

Cups come in at least two sizes and so do forks and spoons.

And all these things are so inexpensive that they can be tossed into the first convenient trash can when it's time to go home.

How You Can Lose Fat—a Pound a Day on a Full Stomach

Just Do These Two Simple Things—Inches of Fat Melt Away

Here is a quick and easy way to take off a pound a day—four to seven pounds a week!—with never a hungry moment. A way any doctor will tell you is safe and sure.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad Salts in glass of water half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses your system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute. Cut down on butter,
