What's in Fashion?

Costumes for the Cruise

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, July 3.—Some folks are lucky. They're planning to spend four days on an ocean-liner's week-end cruise this summer.

Some other folks are lucky, too. They're spending every week-end on their own little cruiser or sail boat, rambling round the lakes or up and down the river or in and out the bays along the coasts.

Both kinds of week-end cruises are fashionable. And that makes boat costumes fashionable.

Bathing Suit First

A bathing suit is one good, practical costume for the motor boat or sail boat cruise. You can wear it all day long (provided you've the kind of skin that doesn't sunburn) and be ready to drop overboard any minute the spirit moves you.

But for real swankiness, there's nothing that can beat the trousers and shirt combination. . . of any variety as long as they make you look nautical.

For an ocean-going cruise, comfortable sports dresses and a good-looking evening dress are the thing.

White for the Ocean

White is the first choice for sports clothes among the well-dressed women who are taking these cruises. And they're wearing these white costumes with bright colored accessories.

There's shuffleboard and deck tennis to be played, so their sports dresses are simple and with short sleeves, or sleeveless and with a jacket. And if the dress hasn't a jacket of its own, a double-breasted flannel gives the correct nautical air.

The double-breasted dress sketched at the left is typical of the sports outfits worn on these cruises.

Light Coat Essential

The white polo coat, like the one at the left, is as good a coat choice as you can make.

But any lightweight white or pastel coat—of flannel, cordknit or basket weave—looks fine with these simple sports dresses.

Just on a chance that you'll strike cool weather, a knitted wool outfit is a practical thing to take along. A skirt, jacket and knitted blouse, or a one-piece dress—are easily packed and hardly muss at all.

Lace Evening Choice

For the same reason, lace is the choice of many of these women week-enders for their evening dress. If it has a matching jacket, you've really two dresses in one.

And for a second evening dress, if you want two, a flower printed chiffon or a white chiffon with contrasting jacket would be very much in cruising fashion.

The crocheted or knitted roll turban is a hat you can wear on either kind of cruise. But if the glare of sun on the ocean hurts your eyes, take a brimmed panama, too. It's more becoming than sun glasses and more fashionable!

Ironing Ribbons

The right way to iron ribbons is to stand your hot iron on end, hold one end of the ribbon in each hand and slide the ribbon across the iron, instead of laying it flat and pressing down on it. This process keeps it looking like new.

Chaise Lounge

If you have a comfortable overstuffed chair, get an overstuffed stool the same height, cover both with slip covers and there you have as neat and easy a chaise lounge as you'd ask for.

BY MRS. WALTER FERGUSON

It is probable that Clara Bow has taken her final curtain. Her short and glamorous movie career and its sudden ending holds all the tragedy of life. It proves, once again, that the rocket, no matter how brilliant, does not burn long.

Too much publicity, too much money, too much praise, in a bunch, has proved the undoing of many a mortal.

All these little girls in Hollywood, hailed for their freshness and beauty, strike us as pathetic figures. You have a feeling somehow that you must cry over them a bit. They are so very young and pretty and so very sure that the hand-clapping will go on forever.

They live for a time, richly, and to the sound of trumpets. Then, without warning, the public tides of their gestures and their set grimaces, and some other little girl steps forward for her big moment.

Every work that is worth doing, every career that it worth the having, deserves a long apprenticeship before public notice is demanded. Certain rare individuals are fortunate enough to begin their careers so auspiciously as to be acclaimed immediately, but the average person must be resigned to years of endeavor before laurels are to be expected.

AND Hollywood always is there to teach us its bitter lesson. Nowhere does the star make such a quick bow or such a swift exit into the wings, to reappear no more. Nowhere is she sooner forgotten, as the crowds follow after a new personality.

The man who works only for money likely will receive only monetary awards. But he is a fool, indeed, who labors for public notice alone.

The only sort of fame that sticks and that is worth having is the kind that comes to men and women after years of honest labor at the thing they love to do. No one of us but may desire the applause that follows success, but the only real joy in any work is that which we obtain in doing it.
