Events in the Parks

A feature of the free attractions at Riverside park for the Fourth of July will be two appearances of the celebrated Herbert Hardin, who has mystified many audiences in Indianapolis with his slight of hand and escape stunts.

He will hang himself by the neck in the afternoon, permitting a trap to be sprung with all the reality of a prison execution.

A gallows has been erected at the park and may be examined before the performance. Hardin will permit his head to be securely fastened in the noose, but will manage to escape the fatal end of the rope.

He will give many other imitations of famous magicians, including Harry Houdini with whom he was associated for a number of years.

In the evening he will make his escape from a coffin after he has been sealed and bound inside. He will also extricate himself from a straight jacket. The coffin will be furnished by a local dealer and the performance will be in full view of all patrons.

STUNT MAN TO BE AT BROAD RIPLE

Henry Samson never went in very much for baseball because, he says, the game is too tame but when it comes to catching cannonballs fired from a six inch gun, that says Henry is real sport.

Samson stations himself directly in front of a six-inch gun, issues orders to fire and then nonchalantly catches the ball as it speeds at him. So far, he is the only man who successfully performs the trick, which he says, is like parachute jumping in that there is no practicing.

"Either you're right the first time or you don't do it again," he said. He will perform his feat at Broad Ripple park, Saturday and Sunday as one of the many accomplishments of his full act.

Included among his other repertoire is the feat of lifting an automobile until all four wheels are clear of the ground, bending a silver dollar with his fingers until it breaks, and other things.

Regarding the cannonball catching feat, he says: "There isn't much trick to it. It merely is a case of having strength enough in your arms to hold the ball as it comes by. You can't catch it like a baseball is caught because the jar would probably kill you. You've got to hold the jar off your body with your arms."

Samson has been in practically every nook of the world with his act and once accepted a challenge from the Czar of Russia on the task of bending a silver coin. "The czar prided himself on the strength in his hands," Samson said. "He showed me he could bend a silver coin almost double and suggested I try. I'd never tried it, but to my surprise I not only bent the coin, but bent it so flat it finally broke in half."

Choose Your Boy's College So That He Will 'Fit In'

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
Be sure that the college or school you are choosing for your son or daughter this spring is suitable. One has to shop for schools just as he shops for anything else, and it seems strange that so many parents choose them for almost every reason but the right ones.

Why do you want John to go to Oakleaf? It is because John's father or grandfather went there? Or is the sentiment and it is a fine reason, but not enough.

Perhaps Oakleaf suited both the other men admirably. We'll say for instance that they were cut out for law and it is well known that 80 per cent of the students there intend to be lawyers, or to go into something that needs the same foundation that a law course needs.

School Don't Want Misfits
But if John is a born engineer or thinks he wants to be a doctor, or if he is creative and has a leaning toward the arts, not only is Oakleaf not the right place for him but Oakleaf doesn't want him.

Perhaps the boy next door is going to a certain college, or a whole group of young fellows John knows are going, and you think it would be nice for him to know so many people when he goes away. Again that is a good reason, but still not good enough.

If possible, visit some of the places you have in mind. Or write to the deans of admission or the registrars of the different schools, and find out their trends of training, what they accept, what type of student will fit and who will not.

It is only fair if you want your boy or girl to be happy in his school life and to succeed in his work, life to him and fair to the school.

There is one motive that governs the placing of so many girls nowadays, and I feel that I must speak of it.

Many mothers seem to become extremely ambitious for their daughters in a social way when it becomes to choosing a last school. Certainly we want our daughters to have nice friends and to make more, but I know of nothing more cruel than to place a girl in an environment where she can't keep up with the dressing, spending, or general rate of living of the other girls.

True, in many of our best schools things are regulated so that there is no class distinction, but in some there is less effort made to reduce the comparison.

Will your daughter fit in such a school? Will she do her best work there?

Be sure that she will be happy, that she will develop and make real friends instead of cardboard ones, wherever you send her.

And place her where her natural choice of work will get its greatest inspiration.

June Bride Has Puzzles in Cookery

BY SISTER MARY

NIA Service Writer

The June bride who is doing her first marketing usually finds it somewhat puzzling to know how much food to provide for two persons.

As far as recipes are concerned, cooking for two reduces itself to a mathematical problem. Most recipes in current cook-books are calculated to serve six persons. My own are planned to serve four.

So if a recipe large enough for four is used and a dish for two is wanted it's a simple thing to take half of each ingredient and use a sauce pan or baking dish and spider in proportion to the ingredients.

Size of Importance

The rule for six must be divided by three, each ingredient carefully and accurately figured if a dish for two is wanted.

The size of the cooking utensils is of far more importance than most people realize. The larger the surface exposed to heat the more rapid the evaporation. This accounts for many thick, lumpy sauces and burned or overcooked vegetables and meats.

A pudding dish designed to hold enough pudding for four to six persons is too large for just enough for two. The pudding mixture is too thin in the dish, with the result that the texture of the finished pudding is not what it was intended to be.

Use Individual Molds

Lacking small baking dishes, the use of individual molds makes for uniform results.

Even pie pans in small sizes will be found a worth while investment. Instead of serving large pies cut in sixths you will serve the small pie cut in halves.

This insures fresh pastry. Three-fourths of a cup of flour and 1 cup shortening will make enough dough for a small two-crust pie. If a one-crust "shell" or pie is wanted, 1 tablespoon more than 1-3 cup flour and 2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon shortening should be used. The little pie pan will hold about 2 cups of filling, while an eight-inch pie pan holds 4 cups.

Plenty of Pans

There are small cake pans on the market—layer, loaf and chimney type. The small chimney pans make it possible to bake small angel foods and sponge cakes, using half the original recipe.

Usually recipes for layer cakes are calculated to make two layers, so when the rule is halved one layer can be baked, cut in two and one-half put on top of the other.

One-half pound of meat usually is calculated for each person when purchasing roasts and steaks, but the method of cooking and serving is an important factor in determining the amount required. When extra materials are added, as in the case of stew and meat pies, less meat is needed.

Chops present the least problem in the meat line, since individual appetites are known one or two chops can be supplied for each person. However, meats can be worked over into such a variety of delicious dishes that waste can be avoided even if the meat supply was a bit too generous.

Of fruit and vegetables, two pounds per day per person is recommended. The average man doing moderately hard physical work needs from two to five pounds of vegetables each week in addition to five or six pounds of potatoes. People doing light work will not require so much.

Religious Plays Will Be Given

WITH the Sutherland players serving again as hosts and sponsors, the third annual religious drama tournament of Indianapolis has been scheduled for Nov. 6, 7 and 8 at the Sutherland Presbyterian church, Twenty-eighth and Bellefontaine streets.

All local church-centered groups who are interested in religious drama production are eligible to compete, according to an announcement from the tournament chairman, Mrs. C. Norman Green, who further announces that entries may be made up to and including Oct. 16.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the tournaments of the last two years, the first one in 1929 being the primary effort of its kind in this part of the country. It is expected that the entries this year will surpass those of former tournaments.

This religious drama tournament, as inaugurated in 1929 and since carried out with greater formulation and development of plan, has been arranged to bring together all local church groups interested in play production for the purpose of exchanging and comparing ideas, as well as to encourage new groups and demonstrate the type of production which is the reach of practically all churches including the smaller ones and those with limited facilities for drama production.

To establish a more accurate basis of competition, therefore, all plays presented must be selected from a list of one-act drama submitted by the Sutherland Players.

Further, each group will be limited to use as scenic equipment for its play the neutral-toned gray draperies provided by the Players, and the lighting equipment made available by the Players.

Each group shall furnish its own properties and makeup, as well as any incidental music, if such is required for the presentation of the play. Immediately after Oct. 15, the tournament committee will determine the time of presentation for each play entered in the contest, and will notify the various dramatic groups accordingly. Not more than three plays will be scheduled for one performance, unless the length of the productions entered makes possible the presentation of four dramas.

Just Every Day Sense

BY MRS. WALTER FERGUSON

WE had come to think of "Old Aunt Viney" as a town institution. Th other day she died, and with her went from life one of the noblest souls that ever dwelt in flesh.

Black she was, as black as a mist-shrouded midnight, and all her life she had worked from dawn to dusk for "white folks."

The family to whom her people once belonged had all the wealth of her love and to each she was faithful to her last painfully drawn breath.

When her kind found themselves among the free peoples of earth, they still remained in a bondage worse than that by which the law had shackled them—the bondage of the white man's arrogance. Aunt Viney never was paid a third of what her gnarled hands had earned. Sometimes she was not even given the kind words her loyal heart coveted.

She and all her small clan were hounded and harried by that vicious and purse-proud tyranny that we call the white man's rights. She could have had no real justice in any court, and that by some instinctive wisdom she knew.

So she continued all her days to go humbly to the back doors of those whom she served. Her rich laugh rang out in defiance of life. In the evenings she crooned forgotten melodies that transported her to fabled lands.

Too bad, we said, Old Aunt Viney is dead. Well, bury her deep and quickly. She was just a worn-out old Negro woman.

Yet with her we bury something finer than spun gold, something rarer than precious gems, something more marvelous than the stars in their courses. For we bury a passionate belief in our superior wisdom.

We bury a loyalty to our white skins that not one of us merits. And we bury a love that for sheer disinterestedness approaches the divine.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

THEME ANNOUNCED

"God" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Science, on Sunday, July 5. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible:

Remember the former things of old: for I am God, and there is none else: I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet come, saying, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure: I bring near my righteousness; it shall not be far off, and my salvation shall not tarry: and I will place salvation in Zion for Israel my glory. (Isa. 46: 9, 10, 12.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

Since God is All, there is no room for His unlikeness. . . . As the mythology of pagan Rome has yielded to a more spiritual idea of deity, so will our material theories yield to spiritual ideas until the finite gives place to the infinite, sickness to health, sin to holiness, and God's kingdom comes "in earth, as it is in heaven." The basis of all health, sinlessness, and immortality is the great fact that God is the only mind; and this mind must not be merely believed, but it must be understood.
