DEBT HOLIDAY MAY BRING ON ARMS SLASH

New Sense of World Unity
Expected to Be Born of Moratorium.

NAVAL PACT IMPORTANT

Softening of World War
Hatreds to Depend on Italy, France.

By Joseph H. Baird
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A new sense of world unity, a quickened desire to reduce armaments, and a softening of Europe's post-war hatreds are some of the benefits that administration officials expect from President Hoover's war debt holiday.

Whether these expectations can be realized will depend, it appears, on the amount of international good-will engendered by European conferences this summer, notably that in London.

To sell Europe the idea of disarmament and adjusting its economic burdens more satisfactorily, the administration has two "salesmen" abroad—Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, and Andrew Mellon, secretary of treasury.

Mellon's task is almost completed. The 16-year-old financier has been in France to accept Hoover's debt holiday program. Details still are to be settled at an experts' meeting in which the United States will take part only if asked.

Stimson's work lies before him. He now is in Italy. From there he will go to France, then to Germany, and finally to Great Britain. His job is to sound out prospects for a genuine disarmament conference next February.

In the view of officials here, the most formidable single obstacle to disarmament in Europe is the Franco-Italian naval dispute. Failure to solve it last winter was blamed on "technical misunderstandings." But informed officials say the real difficulty was political coolness. They believe the technical problems raised by France could be settled overnight. It is considered likely that while Stimson is in Rome and Paris he will see what can be done to bring France and Italy to terms.

Mellon Takes Rest

NICE, France, July 8.—Secretary Andrew W. Mellon arrived at Villa Maryland on Cape Ferrat today from Paris, and admitted the possibility that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson might come to see him there on his way northward from Italy.

"If he comes to talk to me, it will not be of great importance," Mellon said. "My work on the Hoover proposal is finished. I expect to remain a month, after which I will return to the United States. The only reason I am here is for my health and to see my family."

The secretary appeared extremely tired after his work in Paris, and was coughing considerably.

Accept Parley Bids

LONDON, July 8.—The leading powers concerned in the Hoover moratorium have indicated their acceptance of the British government's invitation to a conference here.

It was expected a committee of international financial experts would convene next Monday and a committee of statesmen a week later. Between them, they will work out the technical details necessary for putting the Hoover accord, as accepted by Paris, into effect.

CHUCKED IN—OUT

Wife Pays Wiggins' $95 Fine

CHAMPIONSHIP belt for short stays by pugilists in the county jail today was awarded Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis heavyweight, who was rescued from ninety-five days imprisonment by his red-haired wife.

Wiggins, roused from his sleep at 4 this morning, was taken to the jail by Deputy Sheriffs Conrad Weiland and Harold Hungeat. They possessed a few papers that showed Chuck had overlooked payment of a $95 fine and costs growing out of an incident last March when he was charged with drunkenness and driving while drunk.

About 11 a. m. Mrs. Wiggins appeared at the county clerk's office and asked the price of her husband's freedom. Told it was $95, Mrs. Wiggins greenbacked the amount and handed it over.

"Now, how do I get him out of jail?" she asked.

"Jail?" the clerk questioned. "Is Chuck in again?"

"Is he?" she queried. "I'll say he is. They took him out of the house at dawn."

After an hour's argument, Chuck gave up when the deputies read a section of the commitment papers that said Chuck or his "body" should be brought in, forthwith.

Chuck, as a result of the charge, had served a thirty-day sentence, but had the fine stayed. This morning when the deputies rapped on his door at 621 West Twenty-ninth street, Chuck declared he didn't have to go to jail because a "police lieutenant" had told him so.

After an hour's argument, Chuck gave up when the deputies read a section of the commitment papers that said Chuck or his "body" should be brought in, forthwith.

Zlaric is one of the three men who have been killed since the strike started a month ago.

ERRING HUSBAND IS PLAYED BY JUDGE

Family Wins Leniency for William Sterritt; Wife
Says He Hit Her.

Admitting he is "so busy doing nothing" he doesn't have time to walk to a bus, William Sterritt, R. 7, Box 58-A, who spent his last 50 cents for gasoline, leaned on his wife and children for leniency from justice today.

Mrs. Sterritt appeared in municipal court with her oldest daughter, 7, and a split lip to tell John Rochford, judge pro tem, how her husband had struck her, and to prosecute an assault and battery charge.

Sterritt spoke first—and last. "I had picked some beans and was taking them to the grocer to sell when she tried to jerk the wires from my car," he said. "I tried to pull down the hood and it hit her on the mouth."

Judge Doubts Story

Rochford told Sterritt he hoped the defendant didn't expect him to believe that and then Mrs. Sterritt poured out her tale of woe, which, by the way, the judge heard as the whole tale worked a half day and then started on a vacation in Owen county," she said. "He spent his earnings for gasoline. When he found out it cost a dime to take his daughter swimming he wouldn't do it."

"I gave him 25 cents and told them both to go and he threw it at me and started home. He said he would go swimming in Indianapolis alone and have a good time."

Lip Exhibit A

She related how words brought on words and exhibited her lip as the result of the climax of the argument.

Asked by the judge how far he lived from a street car line, Sterritt replied "about a mile and a half" but admitted the bus line was near his home.

"But you have to spend all your money on the car, don't you?" Rochford demanded. "You're so busy doing nothing that you can't even walk to a bus or street car?"

Sterritt nodded in the affirmative to both questions.

When a Trolley Went 'Haywire'

This photo shows what damage a wild street car can do when it jumps its track to go on a shopping spree.

A street car motorman lay in city hospital today with severe cuts and bruises, the sole victim of an accident Tuesday afternoon that demolished a street car and a store building on the northwest side.

Without brakes the car rolled down an incline on Twenty-seventh street, skipped the tracks at Northwestern avenue and plunged half its length into the Deranian Brothers Rug Company store at 2705 Northwestern avenue.

A few minutes before, when John Shackelford, 40, of 2310 Kenwood avenue, the motorman, discovered

JAIL CONSUL; U. S. APOLOGY SEEMS LIKELY

Chicago Judge Says He'll Insist on Sentence for Mexican.

LAUNCH STATE PROBE

Federal Government Asks
Governor Emmerson to Explain.

By United Press

CHICAGO, July 8.—Judge Thomas Green said today that despite the danger of international complications he will insist on a six months' jail sentence for Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul in Chicago.

"Dominguez openly defied me by interrupting my court," Judge Green said. "When I warned him, he dared me to put him in jail, so I did. No foreign official can dictate to my court."

"It will take an order from President Hoover to persuade me to withdraw my citation of contempt."

Claim Sentence Unjust

Friends and attorneys of the consul, however, said that Dominguez had been sentenced unjustly. They obtained his freedom on a habeas corpus writ Tuesday night after he had spent only a few hours in jail.

Judge Brown never allowed the consul to appear before him to defend himself, said T. Russell Baker, attorney for Dominguez. "The judge began a tirade against the consul's office and when Dominguez remonstrated, he was ordered thrown in jail."

Apology Is Likely

Danger of complications in the case caused government officials in Washington, Mexico City, Chicago and the Illinois state Capitol at Springfield to confer. It was considered possible that the United States government might be asked to apologize for the incident.

Dominguez was cited for contempt shortly after he appeared in Judge Green's court to attend the trial of several Mexican youths charged with vagrancy and disorderly conduct.

Report Is Requested

WASHINGTON, July 8.—State department officials said today they had not received a report requested of Governor Louis Emmerson of Illinois on the jailing of Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul at Chicago for contempt of court. The Governor was requested to wire his report and it is expected shortly.

The state department's action was taken at the request of the Mexican consulate and after a municipal judge Thomas Green had passed sentence of six months.

Probe Is Launched

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Governor Emmerson of Illinois informed the state department today that he had ordered an investigation of the circumstances under which Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul in Chicago, was committed to jail for contempt of court by Municipal Judge Thomas Green.

Revive 'Dead' Man

Doctors' Efforts Save Easterner

BY ROSS DOWNING
United Press Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—William Dugan has experienced something akin death—a nine hours dreamless sleep on a boundless sea as he expresses it—and is alive to describe the sensations the mystery of which has intrigued mankind through the centuries.

The 27-year-old engineer whose boat overturned near Laurel Springs, N. J., and who to all outward appearances was drowned, was resuscitated after nine hours by doctors who refused to believe he was dead.

And during those nine hours Dugan's life "floated" through that sphere that hangs between life and the hereafter only to be brought back to reality by his mother's voice demanding him to "do something."

At his home today, a bit hoarse from the water he swallowed, he told of the sensations of death as he experienced them and of that urge of life which bid him small spark of vitality to respond to treatments of doctors.

And now he's going to tell about his trip in a series of four stories. If you're an outdoor or vacation enthusiast, a dry-land commodore like Fulke or just one of us who like to read, don't miss Fulke's stories.

The first of the series will appear in The Times, Thursday.

Wheat Stand May Cost Hoover Capper's Support

thor Capper (Rep. Kan.) indicated today that he could not afford to support a policy which, in his opinion, may depress the new crop's price still further.

"I will stand by the farmers," said Capper, who previously had informed Stone that every grower in Kansas was insistent upon withholding of the government's 200,000,000 bushels from the market for an indefinite period.

Despite the pleas of Capper and Vice-President Curtis, who are convinced the west is disgruntled with the Hoover administration and will be more resentful if prices continue to drop, Stone said he would stand on the program formulated in response to Mr. Hoover's request for a more definite policy.

This contemplates a maximum sale of 5,000,000 bushels a month to millers or in the export trade, and under conditions that will cause "minimum disturbance" of the domestic market.

Inasmuch as Capper is a member of the committee created by the Republican national committee to "sell" the farm board and the administration to the wheat belt in the coming presidential campaign, his defection might prove serious.

He indicated plainly that he did not feel he could carry out this assignment on the basis of the board's present policy.

'I'LL SHOW 'EM HOW'

'It's a Fight to the Finish,'
Is Roar of Henry L.
Doherty.

BY SIDNEY B. WHIFFLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1931, by United Press)

RYE, N. Y., July 8.—Henry L. Doherty, 61-year-old utilities magnate, wrapped his dressing gown around his frail form, as he sat, drinking in the sunshine atop the Westchester Country Club, and banged the table with a vigorous fist.

"They think I'm a sick man," he said. "I'll show them how sick I am. I'm in this fight to the finish, and when I get into a fight I never let go until it's over and I'm on top."

His keen eyes flashed, and a ruddy glow came to his cheeks as he explained his side of "this uproar out in Kansas," in which his company, the Cities Service Company, Governor Harry Woodring of Kansas, and the Kansas City Star, have become involved.

"Woodring is under the influence of the Star," he said. "The Star has been fighting for lower gas rates. There is a commission, as in many states, whose duty it is to hold hearings on the justice of utility rates."

Held No Hearings

"They held no hearings. We never were given a chance to present our reasons for our rates. And then, acting under the influence of the Star, Woodring had his securities commission bar the sale of Cities Service securities."

"See how ridiculous it is," he chuckled. "On the one hand they say we're making too much money, and on the other they say our securities aren't safe for Kansas people to invest their money in. There's something wrong in their logic there."

Again his clenched fist descended to the table with a bang. "The Kansas City Star is not the public utilities commission of Kansas. Certainly it has a right to suggest that lower rates would be in order, but there is an orderly process of law by which such a matter can be determined—and that is not by bludgeoning public officials into making unjust attacks on corporations."

Refers to Receivership

Doherty referred indignantly to what he declared were the "openly made plans, about which they boast," to throw his company into a receivership.

"Loose talk," he said. "Why if they did that, they would throw thousands of good people out of work, and God knows, times are hard enough as it is. They're just doing that as a threat, but I'm in the position of the man who's walking along minding his own business when a bully comes along and tries to push him off the sidewalk. And I'm simply not going to be pushed off the sidewalk by the Kansas City Star or anybody else."

Libel Suit Ready

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 8.—Fred L. Robertson, chief counsel for the Doherty interests in Kansas, said today the draft of a libel suit against the Kansas City Star had been completed and was awaiting final approval of Henry L. Doherty.

Robertson said the suit would be for "more than $1,000,000." He indicated it probably would be filed in federal or circuit court here on Thursday.
