

'DREAM HOME' IS GIFT OF WOMAN TO GIRL SCOUTS

Structure Is Copied From Alpine Style

BY MARION KOCH
NEA Service Correspondent

KOHLER, Wis., Sept. 2.—A woman's dream has been realized in the completion of Waelderhaus, "a house in the woods," which was presented recently to the Girl Scouts of this city by Miss Marie C. Kohler, Girl Scout leader and clubwoman.

As the only architectural creation of its kind in the United States, it is receiving national acclaim from visitors from far and near.

The place is a reproduction of the houses characteristic of Bregenzwald—a section near Lake Constance, in the Alpine province of Vorarlberg, Austria, the ancestral and childhood home of Miss Kohler's father, John M. Kohler, in whose memory the house was erected.

The donor had three purposes in her generous ambition. She wished to typify the Bregenzwald style of which she has long been an ardent admirer, to preserve the Kohler family traditions, and to provide the Girl Scouts with a community center.

Engaged Austrian Architect

But without the services of Kasper Albrecht, world-famous Austrian architect and sculptor, this unique and artistic structure might never have been built.

Miss Kohler met Albrecht on one of her European trips, disclosed her plans for a home for Girl Scouts, discussed its erection through correspondence and finally, because the latter method caused too many details, asked Albrecht to come to America.

For two years here the architect was constantly busy with the details of construction. Squared fir timbers form the exterior of the three-story building. Two attractive verandas typical of the Bregenzwald style of architecture, with colorful window boxes, add to its quaint grandeur. A sun dial painted on the eastern side of the structure tells the time during the morning hours.

In the basement is a spacious kitchen completely equipped with every modern convenience, and a dining room resembling a refectory. Dressing and make-up rooms, washrooms and shower baths are also in this section of the house.

Furnishings Are Typical

A group of rooms typical of those in a Bregenzwald home are most interesting in their furnishings. These include the kitchen, the "work zimmer" or work room, the "Stube" or living room, and a bedroom. All of these are on the second floor.

In every detail these rooms are furnished in true Tyrolean style with many original pieces and replicas. The outstanding contributions to these rooms are the stoves. One is a china "kachel ofen" which was used in the home of Miss Kohler's great-grandparents.

A room dedicated to the founder of the Scouting movement is on the same floor. It is the Baden-Powell room.

Colored emblems of various countries in the world which have Girl Scouting form the border on the walls. Large plaques with the Girl Scout laws are placed on either side of the fireplace, above which is the Girl Scout emblem.

The windows on the opposite wall have colored figures of Faith, Hope and Charity. The metallic radiator coverings picture the recreations of Girl Scouts—archery, star gazing and boating. A gorgeous tapestry of Joan of Arc designed by Albrecht adds distinction to one wall.

The keeper and his family occupy an apartment on the third floor, where is also a child's room and a room for theatrical equipment.

RETIRE ENGINEER FETED AT BANQUET

H. L. Spalding, who completed fifty years as an engineer with the Big Four, Aug. 31, and was retired, was honored Tuesday night at a banquet at Snyder's Chicken Dinner place in Mt. Daily Recipe

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI

Parboil 1 package of spaghetti for 7 minutes and drain. Cut 1 pound of veal cutlets in small pieces, season with salt and pepper and brown quickly in hot fat. Remove from frying pan and pour in 4 cups canned tomatoes, 1 small chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper and 1/2 tablespoon sugar. Let come to boil.

In a large baking dish put a layer of spaghetti, 1 cup grated cheese and tomatoes, then add all the meat, which should be about half done. Continue adding more spaghetti, cheese and tomatoes until all are used up, reserving enough cheese to cover the top. Bake in a moderate oven about 1 hour till golden brown on top.

City School Budget Indorsed by Parent-Teacher Groups

Indorsement of the Indianapolis school budget for 1931-32 and approval of the school board's attitude on the subject was voted by Indianapolis Parent-Teacher Associations at its executive board meeting Wednesday at the Fletcher-American bank.

The federation went on record with the opinion that the budget already is at a minimum and that any reduction will interfere seriously with efficient school management, and that the current depression should be a reason for maintaining efficiency and not the cause for lowering it.

Plans also were perfected for the annual president's luncheon to be held Wednesday, Sept. 15, at the Unitarian church, Fifteenth and Alabama streets.

The session was the first executive board meeting of the school year, and plans were outlined for activities in all departments of the federation.

Following election of officers last spring there has been a reorganization of the board. It now is comprised of the following:

President, Mrs. S. M. Myers; first vice-president, Mrs. Mark Holman; second vice-president, Mrs. Henry Bengner; recording secretary, Mrs. H. T. Tinsley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lucien Kink; treasurer, Mrs. E. V. McKenzie. Chairman, at Mrs. C. E. Sunshiner; Mrs. M. Myers; Mrs. William E. Tinsley; historian, Mrs. E. A. Hicks; juvenile protection, Mrs. Clayton Ridge; literature, Mrs. H. L. Wann; program, Mrs. T. A. Cooper; publicity, Mrs. Witt Hadley; recreational co-operation, Mrs. J. G. Zin; student aid, Mrs. Otto G. Heppner; student aid, Mrs. R. Yeazy; study circle, Mrs. M. G. Carpenter; telephone, Mrs. Charles D. Perrine. Advisory, Mrs. L. G. Hughes, Miss Mary Buckley, Miss Mabel Keller.

Your Child—

Give Every Encouragement to Child Just Entering School

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

I wonder how many little 6-year-old hearts are going pit-a-pat these days, how many pairs of unhappy, bewildered eyes can not go to sleep, how many young apprentices have their edges?

Is Betty going to graduate from babyhood on the day after Labor day? Is Tommy going to enter the lists with other young tough-fisters in the first grade and become a he-man in earnest in another world away from his mother?

If they are I am terribly sorry for them—that is to say, I am sorry if they feel as I think they are feeling, for most children approach their first days of school with a certain terror.

They may not show it, they may even appear to be impatient to go, and of course this is genuine in many cases, but far more little folk than we realize are frightened at the prospect of school ahead.

Hear Uplifting Tales

It is something they don't know about and that makes them uneasy; what they do not know has too likely come about in the way of unconscious propaganda the older children have spread—"mean teachers," "staying in," "hard work," "examinations," "punishments."

For it is the sunny side of school life that usually terrifies home. Children tell their troubles and the little ones listen. A very small amount of the pleasant part is never related at the dinner table; it is nearly always the other way around.

Of course, a summer has passed since very much concerning school has come up for air, and besides little people forget a good deal of what they hear—two months is a long time—so perhaps I need not make great bones about what occurred last May or June.

Beware of Teasing

But older children are talking school now, and if there are any younger ones going from your house for the first time, it would be a very kind thing indeed to ask the others not to storm around and say they wish the old place would burn down. Ears are listening and taking in every word and they need all the encouragement they can get.

And then, too, so many children take delight in teasing a new recruit. They tell him how he'll be whipped if he makes a mistake, how he has to know this and that or he'll be put out; they scare him with all sorts of ridiculous tales and the wonder is that he can be dragged there at all.

Going to school for the first time is important, but like any other high point in a child's life it should be approached naturally and without too much talking.

Usually the little first grader who hates school from the beginning is one who has been slanted away from it by too much home talk.

What's in Fashion?

Comfortable Knitted Costumes

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

Three-Piece Suit of Nubby, Tweed Knit

Jacket Dress of Ribbed Jersey

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Stick to your knitting and you'll do as fashion is doing. Because knitted things are just as smart for fall as they've been during spring and summer.

Knitted suits, knitted dresses, knitted sweaters, jumpers and scarfs—you'll make no mistake if you choose them for sports and informal wear.

And they're even better looking this fall than they were in the summer. They're in the new dandies, bright colors smart for fall—and wools take the dyes of these shades beautifully.

There are interesting new designs, too, that give them the look of a woven fabric with the softness of a knitted one.

Irregular New Designs

Some are quite nubby and tweedy-looking, with two colors blended in irregular designs. There are new ribbed jerseys, so fine and flat that they could easily be mistaken for a sheer, woven woolen.

Some are plain color with just a faint suggestion of a vertical rib. Others are striped in half-inch bands of two contrasting colors and still others striped in narrow, multi-color lines.

Thin ribbed jerseys are smartest when they're combined with plain color material, as a striped sweater blouse with a plain color skirt and jacket.

Mesh Knit Still Good

The mesh idea is still with us and the new mesh knit woollens look just as smart and comfortable as the cotton meshes of summer. These, too, are usually used in combination with a plain knit material. A sample of one has been sketched.

The knitted dresses and suits are great fashions for the fall golfer and motorist and early-season football gamegoer.

They're comfortable to sit in or be active in. In the darker colors they're a good, practical fashion for the business girl—a nice in-between weight to wear in offices before the heat goes on.

Three-Piece Suits

The suits are usually three pieces—jacket, skirt and sweater top. If you choose one like that, a good idea is to get an extra jumper—a low-cut, sleeveless sweater—which you can wear over a simple, tailored blouse to change the effect of the suit.

The suit sketched with this article is worn with one of these jumpers. This suit is made of one of the nubby, tweedy knitted woollens, and you can get some idea of the design from the sketch below the figure.

Many of the knitted dresses have their own matching jackets, too, like the dress shown above. It's in costumes of this general type that you find some of the smart new

Pumpkin Pie Ranks High in Autumn

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

From the time the first golden pumpkin makes its appearance until the last one has been taken out of storage, there's no more universally popular dessert than pumpkin pie.

Although canned pumpkin is available at all times and makes excellent pies, pumpkin pie enjoys a definite season, and is most appreciated during the fall months.

If you use canned pumpkin, cook it over a low fire until perfectly dry. Fresh pumpkin can be baked, steamed or stewed until tender and dry.

Baking is perhaps the simplest method, for the pumpkin is merely cut in halves, seeds removed and baked, cut side down in a dripping pan until tender. Then scrape from shell and force through a ricer or colander.

To stew, wash pumpkin and cut in narrow strips. Remove seeds and pare off yellow shell. Cut in cubes and put into a heavy aluminum or iron kettle. Add just enough water to prevent burning before pumpkin begins to cook. Cover and cook over a good fire until pumpkin is dry.

PUMPKIN PIE

One cup sifted pumpkin, 1/4 cup light brown sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 tablespoon molasses, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon ginger, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 egg, 2 cups rich milk.

Mix and sift flour, spices and salt and add to sugar. Mix and stir into pumpkin. Add molasses and egg slightly beaten with milk. Turn into a deep pie dish lined with plain pastry and bake one hour.

The oven should be hot for the first ten minutes to set the crust. Reduce heat and bake at 350 degrees F. for fifty minutes. The rule will fill an eight-inch pie pan.

FLUFFY PUMPKIN PIE

Three-fourths cup sifted pumpkin, 1/4 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1/4 cups milk, 1/2 cup cream, 1/4 teaspoon ginger, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Beat yolks of eggs with sugar, salt and spices. Add pumpkin, milk and cream and mix thoroughly. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and fold into first mixture. Turn into a pie dish lined with pastry and bake as in other recipe.
