

HOOVER WON'T BACK DOWN ON HIS DRY POLICY

Refuses to Budge Even as Drive for Modification Grows Stronger.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
(Copyright, 1931, by United Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—New pleas for beer and wine as a depression relief measure are regarded by President Herbert Hoover as illogical proposals which have no chance of being put into effect.

The wet campaign was renewed over Labor day by Labor leaders headed by Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, and Representative M. Beck (Rep., Pa.).

The Labor committee declared modificationists have the strength to "overthrow Volsteadism through modification this winter," Beck said modification would bring in $500,000 in taxes annually.

Mr. Hoover has met with silence all such argument which has been directed at the White House in steadily growing volume for some months.

He Won't Break Silence

In accordance with his policy, There is no expectation that he will break this silence with any public statement unless the agitation should gain considerably more momentum than it has thus far.

Some of the President's intimate advisers are being reported as privately sympathetic to the beer and wine proposal. Robert P. Lamont, commerce secretary, was a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment until he entered the cabinet.

There are indications that the pressure is growing stronger. But there is no indication that it has made headway with Mr. Hoover.

Argument Is Just Starting

Without going into the merits of the proposals on an industrial and employment basis, the President it is understood, does not see how anything can be done without a constitutional amendment and that, in the light of the political lineup, it is for practical purposes a question completely beyond current possibility.

Most analysis of the composition of congress put it at roughly three-quarters dry in both houses. Thirteen states could block ratification should an amendment be proposed.

With a political year dawning, the prohibition argument may be expected to continue long and loud, though by the same token the administration may be counted upon to take no step in either direction unless compelled by pressure which can not be resisted.

Hoover's view, according to his friends, still is that the country is predominantly dry and that the Republican party can not change its course in the 1932 campaign.

STUNT FLYING NO AID TO PLANE INDUSTRY

Underwriters Decide Trade Would be Better Off Without it.

By Service

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 8.—Spectacular flying does the airplane industry no good.

In spite of the fact that races and other events at which attempts are made to break records attract thousands of people and get columns of front page space in newspapers, airplane builders and operators would be better off without this publicity, aviation insurance underwriters have concluded after making observations during the last four years.

The observers circulated freely among crowds at all kinds of spectacular events to the record the comments and general reaction of the spectators rather than to watch the flights themselves, it was explained by Jules Guinotte of this city, before the meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers here today.

At least three women will seek nominations in both Republican and Democratic 1932 conventions, according to reports.

A "ladies welcome" sign practically was hung on the Democratic convention when Chairman R. Earl Peters made the recommendation recently that his party name women for both county and state offices.

Now comes the yarn from Terre Haute that Miss Emma May is expected to announce for reporter of the supreme and appellate courts. This post is held by Miss Genieve Brown of Winamac, Republican, who succeeded Mrs. Edward Franklin White, also a Republican. There can be little doubt that Miss Brown again will seek the nomination.

In event that Miss Mary Sleeth of Rushville, Republican state vice-chairman, asks for her party's nomination for state treasurer, the Republicans will be in the bad position of having to decide between two women.

Miss Sleeth's candidacy is based on the fact that Mrs. Grace Urhahne Reynolds was state treasurer twice.

But party leaders hold that this does not make for precedent, for Mrs. Reynolds was elected when her first husband, Ben Urbahns, died while in office and it was felt that, as she was a widow with two children, it was but the courteous thing to nominate her.

She had tough sledding in 1928, when Harry Nichols of Madison was her opponent. Because Nichols would not make a deal to name her as chief deputy, he could not make the grade that year, but Harry came back in 1930 and was nominated.

State conventions have fallen into the idea that it is the accepted thing to name a woman for the reporter's job, but that is all.

Marion county may have at least one woman entered in the Democratic state convention. Probably Mrs. Margaret Schuler, Seventh ward vice-chairman, who may go for reporter.

It is reported that the feminine division of the party here is attempting to get together on one candidate.

Don't laugh—they are attempting to get together, but it appears that each worker feels that she should be the choice of the local organization.

There is a possibility that they may unite for one woman—but it is rather remote.

STAR FLIERS COMING

Stunters to Attend City Airport Dedication.

Back from the air races in Cleveland, Charles E. Cox Jr., superintendent of municipal airport, announced today that he had made arrangements for appearance of a number of stunt fliers at the airport dedication, Sept. 25 and 26.

J., will try to break the unofficial world's junior altitude record of 18,200 feet. Kenneth Schutte of Hudson, O., was in Cleveland to try for the altitude record, but could not get his plane in condition, and he will appear at the dedication.

Four parachute jumpers were contracted at Cleveland. With six more jumpers, yet to be signed, they will jump from a huge tri-motor plane at one second intervals.
