

CITY TRAFFIC MISHAPS WIPE OUT 3 LIVES

Two Motorists and Cyclist
Are Killed in Accidents
Over Week-End.

Marion county's 1931 traffic fatality list leaped today to 126 as three new names were added to the roll with completion of the week-end's accident reports.

Two were injured fatally when two automobiles crashed on South Harding street Saturday afternoon, and a motorcyclist was killed when his mount and an automobile collided in the 1000 block on River avenue Sunday.

The cyclist was Raymond King, 31, of 1079 River avenue. Police were told the crash occurred when he swung around a car parked double and collided with an automobile driven by George Morris, 20, of 1861 West Morris street.

The body was taken Sunday night to Salem, Mr. King's former home, where funeral services will be held. Witnesses absolved Morris of blame for the tragedy.

Miss Louise Bell, 15, of Lawrence, and private Alfred E. Gwinn, 19, of Ft. Benjamin Harrison, were injured fatally, and three others were injured, one critically, in the collision on South Harding street.

Six Injured in Crash

Two hours later, on the same street near the spot where Miss Bell and Gwinn were killed, another auto crash injured six persons.

Miss Bell and Gwinn were riding with Private Christopher L. Woolley, also of Ft. Harrison. Woolley's car crashed broadside into an auto driven by Charles H. Taylor, 30, a South Chicago salesman, who, with Miss Betty Pettibone, 24, of Richmond, was en route to Bloomington, Ind., to attend the Notre Dame-Indiana football game.

Both cars were wrecked, and each turned over several times before stopping. Miss Bell was pinned in the wreckage, and died within a few minutes. Gwinn died in City hospital admitting room.

Miss Pettibone suffered a skull fracture, broken left arm, and severe lacerations of the body and face.

Both Taylor and Woolley were injured seriously.

Bus Strikes Train

Two hours later, cars driven by John C. Rapp, 41, of 1530 Broadway, and August Zupancic, 31, of 2326 West Tenth street, crashed at Harding and Raymond streets. Injured were:

Mrs. Julia Zupancic, lacerations and skull injury; Mrs. Lucy Belle Rapp, 20, cut and bruised; Zupancic, cut arm and face; Almina Zupancic, lacerations on right arm; August Zupancic Jr., 9, cut in neck and face.

Six were injured Sunday morning when a Greyhound bus collided with an East Tenth street car at Ohio and Alabama streets, wrecking the street car.

Two of the casualties were city firemen, painting a sign on the sidewalk at the scene of the crash. They were struck by the bus as it hurtled across the street after the impact.

Driver Faces Charges

The firemen were: Michael Mulvihill, 45, and Fred Heaton, 38, both of the fire prevention department, beginning the annual campaign against fires this week.

Earl Ritter, 29, of 1326 East Tenth street, motorman, was dragged almost a block in wreckage of the vestibule. Also injured were: Ernest Koebler, 37, of 1112 North Hamilton avenue; Mrs. H. L. Putterbaugh, 32, of 2325 East Tenth street, and Mrs. Anna Miller, 59, of 2521 East Tenth street. None were hurt seriously.

H. S. Parrott, 24, of the Lorraine hotel, bus driver, was charged with failure to give right of way to the street car.
