

MOODY ADVISES TARIFF CUT TO END DEPRESSION

New York Economist Also Favors Cancellation Reduction of Debts Owed
U. S.

By United Press
LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 10.—Lower tariffs, reduction or cancellation of inter-allied debts and contraction of armament and other governmental expenditures will bring economic stability and prosperity, John Moody, New York economist, told industrialists attending the second annual conference at Purdue university today.

"Further," Moody said, "we must abandon the mistaken policy of trying to create prosperity by appropriating huge sums from public treasuries to bolster industry. Our federal government today is facing a budget deficit in the billions and it will be much larger next year."

"Until these big fundamental problems, mainly international in their scope, are definitely on the way to settlement, world confidence cannot be restored, and the sustained revival of general business is possible, either in this or any other country."

Harrison E. Howe, Washington, editor of the Engineering and Industrial Chemistry, in a banquet speech Friday night accused scientific research as the pilot of industry. Scientific knowledge will open new fields to industry, he said, giving employment to those workers which utilization of the same knowledge has thrown out of jobs through mechanization and improved production methods.

BIRTH CONTROL STAND CHANGES MAN'S RELIGION

Protestant Episcopal Support Makes Convert of Catholicism.

By Times Special
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 10.—Bowyer Campbell, who forsook the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal church to become a Catholic and is a history professor at the University of Notre Dame, declares the stand taken in favor of birth control by the Protestant Episcopal church was "the last nail in the coffin" for his connection with that denomination. Birth control was approved at the Lambeth conference.

"There is a growing apprehension," Campbell declares, "among many Episcopalians over the inroads of modernism in the Episcopal church. Eclecticism, or the tendency to accept some doctrines and cast away others, is causing bewilderment among those who cling to Christ and believe that what Christ commands, not what man wishes, must be the form of religious beliefs. Modernists are doing the things they like, believing that appeal to them and casting away the things they do not like to do or believe."

They fail to see the converse of their actions. If they wish to act in such a way, if they believe it well and proper for them to do so, they should remember that men of other creeds will do the same thing and make of religion a matter of individual preference and not loyalty to the teachings of Christ."

Weaver then admitted he was shot by Vanderhoof, but said the circumstances were different from what the state contends.

Lauderbaugh testified that Weaver had no gun, but that he was armed, while Weaver says he had no gun. Weaver's testimony was corroborated by Rigidon, who said he was the only member of the bandit party who was armed when they tried to rob Vanderhoof. A jury was impaneled to hear evidence.
