HAIR'S IN FASHION?—

Close-Fitting Lingerie
Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—If you're disappointed in the fit of your new fall dresses—if they don't look as smooth as your fashion-knowing eyes tell you they should be (even over that brand new corset)—

Look to your lingerie. It's almost as disastrous to wear last fall's lingerie with this fall's dresses as it is to wear last fall's corset.

Whereas last year's dresses were bloused above the waist, this year's fit the figure quite closely. The line through the bodice and waist is smoother. Lingerie cut to blouse is bound to make wrinkles and bunches under the closer fitting dress.

So the new lingerie is cut to fit like the new dresses . . . smooth and sleek through the bodice.

Hips are smoother and narrower, too, and skirts straighter. So in the new lingerie lots of the fullness has been taken out between the waist and the knees. Not so much ballet-skirt effect.

In order to get the smoothest possible fitting with still enough room and "give" for perfect comfort, the newest lingerie has taken a tip from Vionnet, the French dressmaker famous for her diagonal line costumes.

New chemises, slips and panties are cut on the bias and seamed diagonally. They hug the outlines of the figure almost as close as your own skin. And without the use of elastic or draw-strings, either.

Fewer of the new panties have the elastic run through the band in the back. More of them are made with flat yoke all around or flat waistbands.

Less Fullness Now
Some of the fullness has been left out below the yoke, too, so they hang straighter, more in line with the straighter skirts of dresses.

Some of the very newest panties, in fact, have no fullness in them at all but fit the thigh as though they were moulded to it. We've had a pair of these sketched and you can see it looks quite different from the lace-trimmed pantie, though this, too, is less full than it would have been last fall.

There's a new kind of bloomer out that's entirely minus elastic. The yoke has been widened and extended over the hips and a flat side opening takes the place of the usual elastic.

Chemises and slips are designed much the same through the waist-section, with V-shaped cutting and seaming.

And here are a few other points to remember when you buy your new supply:

The deep-colored lace of a season or two ago isn't as fashionable now. Lace-trimmed lingerie still is in fashion, but it's trimmed with more delicately colored lace.

Irish lace edgings are seen on many of the newest pieces.

And don't forget this: that with the very sheer wools so fashionable in fall dresses, the colors of slips are apt to show through. So match yoke to your dress.

JAUNTY BOLERO MODEL IN SHEER WOOLEN
At just this time of the year, one begins to weary of summer clothes, and longs for a new dress of darker hue.

And here's a beauty with a certain definite smartness of fall, yet with gaiety enough for late summer. It is yankee-blue sheer woolen.

It has a trim tailoredness all its own. The double-breasted never vest and cuffs are eggshell faille crepe silk.

Black crepe satin with pinkish-beige crepe satin is another splendid choice.

Style No. 570 is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 3 1/4 yards 39-inch, with 1/4 yard 39-inch contrasting.

Our fall and winter Fashion Magazine is ready.

Price of book 10 cents.

Price of pattern 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.
