

Girl Scouts Implored to Assist Poor

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, honorary president of the national organization of Girl Scouts, has issued an appeal to the Girl Scout organizations over the United States to do its share in aiding families suffering from business conditions.

Scouts are urged to do all possible in the provision of Thanksgiving charity for needy families. Mrs. Hoover has urged the scouts thus to live up to their motto, "Be Prepared."

In all large cities, including Indianapolis, various branches of the organization are contributing food and clothing to agencies for distribution, and in some cases are caring for cases independently.

In some communities Girl Scout troops have given their time and energy for the distribution of milk for infants and young mothers, and in others they help by distributing the food, collected by relief agencies to families unable to call for it.

In the solicitation of food and clothing the scouts are not permitted to call upon strangers, but are restricted to their own circle of friends. They work, always, in cooperation with their own leaders.

WHAT'S IN FASHION?—Velvet Dresses With Simple Bodice

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Now that the experts have started publishing their books on the new official contract system, we everyday players can find out what all the arguments were about. And doubtless we'll go on playing in our same old "guess and be sorry" fashion.

But at least the women contract players—experts and tyros—agree on one thing, that the new velvet bridge dresses are the smartest things they've worn in a long time. They approve the simplicity of the bodice even while they bewail the necessity of learning new rules. The unornamented bodice and plain neckline which the most fashionable of these new dresses has are the perfect background for a lovely necklace or a decorative clip that holds a simple draping flat.

And they like the intricacy of the new sleeves though they may deplore the complexities of the new bidding.

Because arms are so active in bridge, they're bound to be noticed. And the sleeves of these new velvet dresses are worth noticing. . . . Sometimes they're long. . . . And sometimes elbow length. And there are many puffs in evidence. Puffs at the elbow. Puffs at the wrist. Often two or three of them grouped together.

Embroidered cuffs are new and decorative, especially when the embroidery is of Persian type. Black takes highest velvet honors. But the "stained glass window" colors . . . wine, green, sapphire . . . are more unusual.

And of course you wear them at lower calf length. Thanksgiving next Thursday! And then Christmas—Christmas presents. A gift for the whole family may possibly scratch three or four names off the list at one happy stroke!

A framed picture, chosen with good taste for a particular room, is a fine gift. Write Amos Parrish care of The Times for his story on what pictures go together.

Game Makes Tasty Meals These Days

BY SISTER MARY

Game of various sorts is in keeping for Thanksgiving time and may even grace the Thanksgiving feast. Game birds especially have a season in most states and are available in the markets.

Rabbits and squirrels are common game foods and can be cooked in many ways. Fricassee, stew, pie and roast all are popular and easy to prepare.

Venison, properly cooked, is one of the most delicious of the wild meats. Very easily digested, it is a particularly suitable food for the convalescent.

Although newly-killed deer has a sweet flavor it is quite tough and must be allowed to hang from one to two weeks before cutting into joints and steaks. This is known as "ripening" and is the way all beef is treated in order to make it tender. The meat of course must be kept in a very cold place.

Loins Is Choicest

In selecting a cut, the saddle or loin is considered the choicest of all. Plenty of fat is an indication of good quality, in fact, it can hardly be too fat.

The saddle usually is roasted and should be cooked rare. The haunch also is often roasted, but it usually is liked well done. Steak should be cut about half an inch thick and is cooked like beef steak—broiled, pan-broiled or fried. It is preferred rare.

Any cut of venison is improved if allowed to stand in a marinade of oil and vinegar for several hours or over night before cooking.

Currant jelly is traditional to serve with venison. It is often used for basting a roast and is added to a delicious sauce to serve with steak.

Requires Different Methods

The cooking of venison requires different methods than for ordinary meats. Either a saddle or haunch should be larded or rubbed with melted butter before putting in the oven. After it has been in the oven for about half an hour the heat should be reduced and the time calculated from this point.

Allow twenty minutes to the pound. Thus a four-pound roast would need one hour and fifty minutes for roasting.

Game birds are cooked in a number of ways and while they are usually liked rare, can should be taken that they are not too rare.

The smaller-sized ones are broiled, either whole or in halves, and served on toast. The larger ones are roasted like young chickens and served in much the same way. Of course, any size can be disjointed or cut in halves and cooked en-casole.

Removed Before Serving

The usual savory stuffing used for domestic fowls is not liked in game birds.

An onion, apple, a few uncooked cranberries, celery and butter—any of these materials is dropped inside the bird before roasting to give flavor and richness. The onion or apple or whatever is used is not eaten but is removed before serving.

Guinea hen, although not a game bird, has a "gamey" flavor and is roasted like pheasant. An onion, a few stalks of celery and two or three tablespoons butter dropped inside either guinea fowl or pheasant before roasting gives a delicious flavor. The stuffing is not served.

The slightly fishy taste common to wild ducks can be overcome by rubbing them with a cut onion and putting a few uncooked cranberries in each duck when roasting. Wild rice is an excellent dish to serve with wild duck.

Hanging Curtains

Curtains hung from the top of the window to the floor make a room look much higher than those which stop at the bottom of the window.

Evaporated Milk

If you take evaporated milk out of the can and keep it in glass jars, it will stay fresh much longer.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

THEME ANNOUNCED

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Nov. 22.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God. For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office: So we, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another" (Romans 12: 1, 2, 4, 5).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "If Spirit were in matter, God would have no representative, and matter would be identical with God. The theory that soul, spirit, intelligence, inhabits matter is taught by the schools. This theory is unscientific. The universe reflects and expresses the divine substance or Mind; therefore God is seen only in the spiritual universe and spiritual man, as the sun is seen in the ray of light which goes out from it."
