

COUNTY'S HAND LIFTS JOBLESS FROM DESPAIR

Thousands of Dire Cases Draw Relief From Trustee's Office.

BY CARLOS LANE

Loading a truck at a foundry several months ago he fell and broke his back.

He is able to walk, but maybe he never will attain full use of the muscles that earned a small wage to support his family.

For some time after the mishap he received compensation—slightly more than half his wage—under the Indiana law that insures employees of some income in event of such disaster.

Then he was asked to sign a contract for a lesser amount, refused and now is given nothing.

Doubtless he will get the weekly allowance again, for the state industrial board is to hear his case, but when he applied for temporary relief from Miss Hannah Noone, Center township trustee, there was not a cent in the house, no fuel, and only a little food.

Youth in Rebellion

The investigator from the trustee's office heard his story—she already knew most of the details from a previous call—and promised immediate relief, a basket of groceries, and coal.

But a portion—and to him the unbearable burden—of the tragedy that smothered the little household had not been told, and he did not tell it until tears in his pained eyes betrayed him.

"All this is bad," he sobbed, "but the worst—the worst of all is my little girl. She went to school yesterday, and she hasn't come back."

He looked wistfully at the photograph of a pretty 14-year-old girl.

In answer to a question, he explained that there was no puppy love, with possibly an elopement, back of her disappearance.

"She said once she wanted to go to Florida," he said.

Food Little Solace

The story was rather obvious. Pretty 14-year-old girls, though never accustomed to great luxuries, easily might be too sensitive in the presence of schoolmates, even pennies no longer could be had for cheap little pleasures the others shared.

Sympathetically, the investigator tried to assure the stricken father that young girls often get a touch of romantic, wanderlust fever that wears off with a little experience.

"We can warm his home, and give him food, but we can't soothe that tortured heart much, can we?" she asked as she left the house.

Thousands Are Aided

Perhaps it was not in her power to alleviate more than the physical distress of this one man, but to thousands of other poverty stricken, unemployed men in Center township this year, it is a task and that of her comrades, working out of the trustee's office, to bring new faith and confidence.

"A man with a family, just barely able to support them on a small wage, feels the responsibility heavily if that job is lost suddenly," she said.

Some, rebellious at society for the misfortune they can not comprehend, turn to crime—under the platitude that "necessity knows no law."

Others are beaten by despair, ready to quit; some go on, fighting a losing battle to keep their households intact.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.—Constance Bennett, highest paid star of the motion pictures and Henri, Marquis De La Falaise de Coudray, were man and wife today after a double ring wedding ceremony Sunday which climaxed a romance of more than a year.

The wedding ceremony was performed at the home of George Fitzmaurice, director, in Beverly Hills, with only the couple's most intimate friends present.

As the words were being spoken, Gloria Swanson, who only a few days ago obtained her final divorce decree from the marquis, was on her way to San Francisco with her own new husband, Michael Farmer.

Henri Didot, French consul, was best man, and Eileen Percy, maid of honor. Neil McCarthy, Richard Bennett, father of the bride; Joan Bennett and Barbara Bennett Downey, her sisters; Gene Markey, Mr. and Mrs. George Fitzmaurice, Marion Davis and William Randolph Hearst were other members of the wedding party.

Judge Lewis R. Works, presiding judge of the second district court of appeals, read the nuptials.

A reception Sunday night was attended by scores of motion picture notables. No honeymoon trip will be planned until Miss Bennett completes a new picture sometime next month.

Herding twelve patrons into a rear room of the Yantis Sandwich Inn, 657 East Thirty-eighth street, shortly after midnight Sunday, two armed bandits forced the proprietor to open a safe and escaped with $137 in cash.

The two gunmen entered the shop and ordered Mrs. Kate Yantis, cashier, wife of T. L. Yantis, owner of the rear room together with six couples. Yantis was asleep in the room.

While one bandit stationed himself at the front door, the second gunman entered the room with the victims, commanding Mrs. Yantis to awake her husband. Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.
