MAJESTY AND MORALS By JANE JORDAN

EVERY man who reads this column is requested to write Jane Jordan a letter telling exactly how he feels about marrying a girl who has a mistaken idea of experience to confess. So many girls want to know that we would like to hear from the men on this subject. The best letters will be published in a few days.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have been going with a fellow for three years. I love him dearly and I know he loves me, because he always does things for me. He says he likes to make me happy. Now he wants to marry me. There is only one fault I find in him. He is terribly jealous. He pretends that he doesn't care to whom I talk, but later he tells me that he nearly kills him. I'm a little jealous myself. But I can make it. What do you think?

JUST A GIRL.

Dear Just-A-Girl—Yes, I think you can make a go of marriage if both of you will work at overcoming your silly jealousy. Form the habit of talking everything out together. If he objects to your hold-

Chicago Exposition Will Show Woman's Advance

Exhibits Will Picture Full Century of Progress

BY JULIA BLANCHARD

NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—When the Century of Progress Exposition opens in Chicago in 1933, it will turn a figurative spotlight upon a century of women's progress.

Five million women are joining forces to produce an adequate exhibit of how monumental a piece of work women's clubs have done in the last 100 years. This club exhibit will demonstrate what women have accomplished by banding together, for social, cultural and philanthropic ends.

The National Council of Women has been granted the privilege of controlling all exhibits of women's organizations in the exposition.

This organization, which is an affiliation of twenty-two of the largest and most influential women's clubs in America, has taken 2,400 square feet of space to give ample room for all there is to show.

Clubs Growth to Be Shown

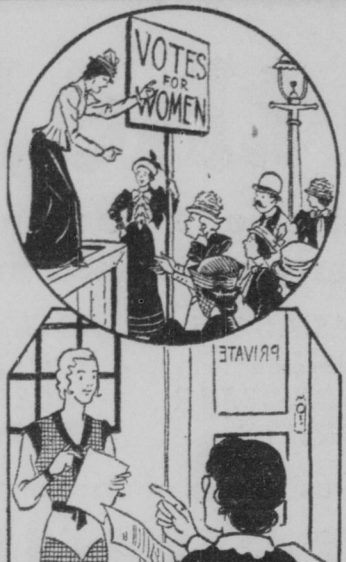

There, in modern splendor, the National Council will depict the evolution of the modern, civically-active and socially-important woman's club from the purely cultural Browning Society of some years ago or the first travel study composed of women who knew other countries only vicariously by reading about the great galleries located there.

In order that this huge exhibit may do justice to the importance of the modern organized club, the National Council will make a nation-wide research study of its origin under the direction of Dr. Kathryn McHale, executive director of the American Association of University Women.

Look to World Meeting

The council is sponsoring an International Congress of Women to be held at the exposition to which the representative women from countries all over the world are invited.

The council will launch a drive Feb. 1 to get 1,000,000 signatures of American women on a petition to foreign governments to send delegates to this congress.

The last world's fair found women engaged in a battle for their rights... and today they exhibit their contributions to the world's work.

These huge plans seem a far cry from the small representation women had in the world's fair in Chicago in 1893. Then the exhibits had to do with some "cause," such as woman's suffrage, temperance, woman's right to be a physician, engineer or to enter whatever field of work she wanted.

May Wright Sewall, Frances E. Willard, Susan B. Anthony made impassioned speeches then for the causes for which they spent their whole lives.

Impressive women's clubs pageants will be displayed. The council, in controlling this exhibit and sponsoring the international congress, is in a way celebrating an anniversary for itself.

For at the world's fair in 1893 the national council of women, though only five years old, sponsored a similar international congress with Mrs. Potter Palmer as chairman and actually organized the international council of women, and chose the Machinists of Aberdeen and Tenaire as president.

All the artistic, scientific and executive ability of this large group of organized women will be called upon to produce an exhibition of their club's accomplishments that will surpass anything of its kind yet seen.

This, in addition to the tremendous number of individual women's exhibits classified by their own professions, will give the world a round-up picture just how important the American woman's contribution has been not only to her own country and civilization, but to the world.

Among the larger clubs affiliated with the National Council of Women who will participate in this project are the American Association of University Women, the American Homemakers' Association, the Association of Women in Public Health, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Medical Women's National Association, the National Association of Colored Women, the National Council of Jewish Women, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the National Federation of Music Clubs, the National Kindergarten Association, the National Motion Picture League, the National Women's Christian Temperance Union, the National Women's Relief Society, the Osteopathic Women's National Association and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

Many of America's most eminent women, connected with the National Council of Women, are participating in the women's exhibitions, including Mrs. Anderson of Washington, D. C.; Lena Madeline Phillips, Mrs. Harold Vincent Milligan, and Mrs. Estelle Sternberger, all of New York.

Engineer Will Describe Work With Russians

A. H. Worsham, American engineer who recently returned from Russia, will address the Beth-El Temple Sisterhood on "Modern Russia," at 2:15 next Monday afternoon at the temple.

Worsham was one of the engineers who worked on the gigantic new Ford plant in Russia, and will give a first-hand picture of how Americans, who work with the Soviet, see that country.

Mrs. H. Joseph Hyman will give a program of Russian songs, in costume, accompanied by Mrs. Isaac Marks.

A special social hour will follow Worsham's lecture. Mrs. Marks, chairman of the program committee, has announced Mrs. J. A. Goodman, Sisterhood president, will preside.

another sister of the bride: Mrs. Zwiethuch and E. T. Sajous of New York.

observation of fashion reveals that inconsistency still is a jewel.

Where one back is covered with a substantial mannish polo coat with pinched-lucked sleeves, another exposes itself to the sun in a halter-necked golf dress.

This year, too, one can play tennis in satin, providing the back is of evening elegance and the skirt divided. Scarfs, smart for informal wear, have a new way of crossing themselves and tucking their ends under a matching belt.

Colors, always important here, reflect the scenic beauties, the Biscayne blues and sea greens, or the sports life with its jockey reds, or the marine foods, even with lobster reds. The brilliancy of the atmosphere assures white, for its correctness and effectiveness, a steady position in the southern wardrobe, especially in combination with vivid hues.

Seagreen was adopted the other day by a visitor to the Roman pools, who appeared in a sports dress of that color with matching shoes, hat, gloves and bag. Her luxurious car was of the same soft shade.

Many of the men are wearing only bathing shorts, dispensing completely with a covering shirt, permitting the sun full sweep of manly chests and broad backs.

Not only have the fashionable resorts given the stage to this new attire, but they have contributed their name to the swanky material, cabana flannel, which is appearing as "gigolo top" slacks, golf skirts or blazers.

For all her femininity this season and her demureness in high-necked evening gown, or "angel skin" jersey frock, the best dressed winter colorist is selecting the tailored, masculinely broad shoulder and slim hip lines for her sports costumes. Fabrics have the nubby roughness, too, men like for their own clothes.

As usual, the "around-the-clock"

Nationalism Vital, D.A.R. Group Told

Sidney S. Miller, former superior court judge, addressed Caroline Scott Harrison chapter, D. A. R., Thursday, on "Nationalism."

On nationalism depends the success or downfall of a country, Miller avowed. People of the United States should confine themselves to building up their own country, tolerating no slights from others, he said.

Discussing current world conditions, and nationalistic movements of other nations, Miller told of a large loan made by Germany to Russia at the time the moratorium on war debts was declared by the United States.

"Germany has money to spend for nationalistic endeavors," Miller declared.

Inadequacy of the League of Nations is shown in its attempt to settle the Sino-Japanese difficulties, Miller said. "As long as our countries are ruled by human beings, we are bound to have war," he added.

At the business meeting preceding the talk, Mrs. F. Ellis Hunter, Mrs. James Sutherland and Mrs. George A. Van Dyke gave reports on Ellis island and mountain school committees. Mrs. Maurice Tennant, regent, presided.

Mrs. O. L. Watkins made an appeal for volunteer workers to assist in mending clothes collected by the Red Cross and American Legion for distribution among the poor of the city.

Mrs. Ernest De Wolf Wales and Mrs. John McLean Lockhead presided at the tea table during the social hour.
