

FEMININE FASHIONS ARE FITTED TO SLIMMER BUDGETS

No Drastic Changes Are to Be Made

BY ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Service Writer

PARIS, Jan. 11.—Never have the couturiers displayed such ingenuity in trying to make almost universally restricted dress allowances still capable of keeping up with ever-changing fashions.

The mid-season collections clearly indicated that no drastic change need be expected when the advance spring showings will be held in February.

But an infinity of new details, however, will go a long way to renewing the styles now in vogue and will assist us all in replenishing wardrobes at less cost, but with a maximum of success until better days are with us again.

Two-in-one dresses and coats have been launched by such world-reputed couturiers as Vionnet, Lelong, Lanvin and others.

Two sets of fur trimmings, one formal, the other more luxurious, harmonizing with the neutral, dull wool fabrics that are so popular this season for coats is an idea that was certain to appeal to the average person.

Double-Purpose Coat Shown

For the bigger dress allowance, there was the reversible coat combining fur and fabric which could be worn on either side according to circumstances.

With dresses, the trick was usually accomplished by the addition of a bolero, scarf or, as in some cases, a formal gown complete with train could be transformed into an informal affair by winding the train around the figure.

These economy fashions probably explain the new and interesting crop of separate fur or cloth fur-trimmed tippets, scarfs and boleros that were offered in all the mid-season collections.

Although much less important than either the spring or autumn showings, these between-season models can generally be relied upon as a pretty good indication of future style trends.

The fur caplet and muff made a somewhat timid appearance in August, but they are pretty well established by this time and there is every reason to believe that next spring the banal fur piece of one or two foxes or any other pelt will be considered quite obsolete.

Jackets Shorter

Street dresses completed by short, fitted boleros, jackets or scarfs that replace either will be worn so soon as weather conditions permit. Everybody knows that there is nothing as youthful as a well-tailored street dress and the new models shown are particularly jaunty.

To begin with, they are an inch or two shorter than before and neither boleros nor jackets extend lower than the hip bone, when they are not shorter.

Many of the new scarfs accompanying outdoor dresses have the two ends banded with fur into which the hands can be slipped, others tie at the bac band cross in front, fuchi-wise.

Still another kimono bolero accompanying a light beige wool frock has deep cuffs of baby otter. All three versions are seen in Worth's midseason collections.

Original Pieces Offered

Schiaparelli, who launched the now famous 'e' fur collar last year, has a number of original ideas to offer in separate fur pieces.

To transform an informal coat into a dressy, afternoon model she created a detachable cape collar formed of a wide band of fur that extended to the waist in front backed by the coat fabric.

This was made to fit snugly around the shoulders and was held in place by ties of the material or finished with loops through which the coat belt was slipped.

This formula has been repeated by Madame Schiaparelli in some of her midseason models for southern wear. Her braided silk or wool scarfs in three different colors will be equally as popular as one advantage is that they can be worn exactly as it suits the wearer's fancy. Plaited like a pig-tail, hanging loosely on the shoulders, or slipped through the dress belt.

DONALD HOOVER TO APPEAR ON PROGRAM

Donald D. Hoover of the Indianapolis News, and author of "Copy," will address members of the Indianapolis branch of the League of Pen Women at a luncheon at 12:30 Saturday at the Claypool.

Mrs. Ovid Butler Jameson, president, will preside. Mrs. Frank N. Wallace is chairman of the program committee, assisted by Mrs. Myron R. Williams and Miss Grace M. Shoup.

Ward Club to Meet

Mrs. William B. Schoenrogg, 1002 College avenue, will entertain women of the Eighth Ward Democratic Club at 8 Wednesday night at her home. Miss Betty Wulz will assist the hostess.

Ears Ring With Head Noises? Try This

If you are growing hard of hearing, and fear catarrhal deafness, or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to Hook's or your druggist and get 1/4 oz. of Parment (double strength) and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and a little sugar. Take 2 tablespoonsful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief to those who have had no relief. Clanged nostrils should open, and breathing becomes easier. It is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with catarrhal deafness or head noises due to catarrh should give this prescription a trial.—Advertisement.

New Furniture for the Living Room

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

MANNERS AND MORALS By JANE JORDAN

MEN, have you written your letters yet, telling exactly how you feel about marrying a girl who has a mistaken love experience to confess? Many girls want to know how you feel on this question. The best letters will be published in a few days.

Dear Jane Jordan—I am 19 years of age and have been going with a girl three years younger. This is a slight difference, but I am not a girl for a girl to go with a fellow younger than she if he is as nice as the one to whom I am engaged. I am not sure he can be and acts better than the older boy and that is why I like him.

The reason is that he doesn't like him and I can't have him at home at all, but I like him elsewhere.

One is the butterfly which has the convenient drop leaves, just as a gate-leg has, but which are held up by a support in the shape of a butterfly's wing.

Another is the Duncan Phyfe, with a drawer and drop leaves at each end instead of at the sides.

Furniture like this does things for a living room. Gives it a "tone" or more of one. Gives it more comfort, more convenience.

WHAT TABLES WITH YOUR CHAIRS?

The clever ones to do, if you're getting an end table to go by a chair, is to be sure it's the right kind for that particular chair.

If you'd like to know the kind to use with your chairs clip this notice and send it to Amos Parrish, care of The Times' Fashion Bureau, 500 Madison Avenue, New York. He'll send you a free bulletin showing different types of chairs and the tables that go best with them.

Be sure to enclose stamped, addressed return envelope.

Next—New fabrics for the home dressmaker are discussed by Amos Parrish.

RUTH DALE, SOLOIST ON SONG PROGRAM

Miss Ruth Dale, senior at Butler University, will be soloist with the Butler university double octet, which will present a program of songs before the Brookside Community Center at their monthly meeting Monday night.

Members of the octet will be Misses Eleanor Marshall, Florence Palmer, Winifred Holmes, Mabel Pruitt, Betty Akin, Mary Margaret, Jeanette Sticker, Jeanette Palmer and Miss Dale.

Miss Dale will sing four numbers under the direction of Franklin Taylor, director of the Butler glee club.

The speaker will be Dr. Tolbert Reavis, professor of sociology at Butler, discussing "Curbing Crime."

Mrs. S. T. Bogert, Pendleton road, will return next week from a trip to California.

Card Parties

Big Sisters Maternity branch, Catholic Women's Union, will hold a card party at 8:30 Tuesday at St. Cecilia's hall.

There will be a bunco party at 8 Tuesday night at Holy Rosary hall, 520 Stevens street, for the benefit of Holy Rosary church.
