

PRESS FREEDOM FIGHT ECLIPSES MURDER TRIAL

Mt. Sterling Editor Backs
Judge's Gag Ruling; Calls
Criticism 'Insult.'

BY FOSTER EATON
United Press Staff Correspondent

MT. STERLING, Ky., Jan. 11.—A newspaper's fight for what it terms "freedom of the press," has become a matter of household, drug store and street corner debate as the murder conspiracy trial which developed it entered its third week.

Interest in the fate of the newspaper's battle with the courts almost has eclipsed interest in the fate of the union mine official who may be called upon to serve a life term in prison if found guilty.

The relatively academic question of "freedom of the press" developed when the trial judge banned Knoxville News-Sentinel reporters because of that paper's editorial comment upon conduct of a trial.

The present case against William Hightower, 77, president of the Everts (Ky.) local United Mine Workers of America, probably will reach a jury Wednesday night or Thursday. The reporters were banned during his trial.

Editor Defends Judge

Meantime, Judge Henry R. Prewitt's court action against the News-Sentinel, which the newspaper has carried to the Kentucky court of appeals for a writ of prohibition, drew a two-column front page editorial in the current issue of the Mt. Sterling Gazette, a weekly newspaper.

"Was ever a more brazen insult offered by any newspaper writer to a court than that?" The Gazette editorial said of the News-Sentinel's editorial.

The News-Sentinel editorial said, in substance, that any fair-minded man who had followed a previous trial might wonder whether the defendant was convicted of murder or "because he was a labor leader."

Verdict Was Jury's
"Judge Henry R. Prewitt was as fair and impartial as he could possibly be toward the defendant and the state," said the Gazette editorial in part. "He administered the law as he saw it—not as the Knoxville News-Sentinel and the Reds would have him do. He had nothing whatever to do with the verdict rendered by twelve men, good and true."

The Gazette is published by W. Hoffman Wood under the motto "The Republicanism of Abraham Lincoln, the Democracy of Thomas Jefferson and the Americanism of Theodore Roosevelt."

Newton D. Baker, appearing before the state court of appeals for the News-Sentinel, characterized that paper's editorial as "exceedingly temperate, philosophical and just statement." Allen Prewitt, son of the judge, argued for his father that the editorial was "libelous, slanderous, false."

NEW CARS RICH IN ACCESSORIES, SWEEPING LINES

Free Wheeling, Automatic
Starting Features of 1932 Show.

BY BATES RANEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—This is a back seat driver's year.

The 1932 models on exhibition today at the thirty-second annual automobile show, do everything but drive themselves.

Take a ride in a composite car including the best features of the 300 automobiles crowded on four floors of the Grand Central Palace. The thirty-two manufacturers of those cars represent all the leaders, but Henry Ford. As usual Ford is abstaining. He will bring out his new model later.

This red car looks good. That's the favorite color this year. Notice the stream-lined radiator with the chromium plating and the high lacquer finish on the body.

Starts Automatically
This composite car represents $1,880,000,000 invested capital. Its manufacture provided work for 5,000,000 persons. But the price is lower, with a great increase in quality.

Hop in, and try it out. There is no self-starter button. That's obsolete. Just put the key in the ignition lock and turn it. That automatically starts the engine. It'll restart should it stall. That's a real safety feature for beginners.

Don't look for a choker. There isn't any. That button on the instrument board is a thermostat heat control for manifold temperature regulation. It has eliminated the old-fashioned choker and guessing by the driver on the amount of choke for starting a cold engine.

Now comes the best feature of all—ride comfort. Without moving from the driver's seat, one can adjust the shock absorbers to compensate for rough or smooth roads, fast or slow driving and for differences in passenger loading.

Motor Is Cradled
And that isn't all. See that button on the dash board just to the right of the steering column? Just push it in or pull it out and you regulate free wheeling—like the old coaster brake on a bicycle—it's not even necessary to adjust the free wheeling button to go into reverse now.

You needn't worry about the gears being stripped either. With the new synchro-silent mesh transmission it's almost impossible. There's less vibration, too. Our floating power—the engine is in a sort of cradle which gives it only an indirect attachment to the chassis—removes a lot of vibration.

Helps Hill Climbers
Then there's dual ratio or two-speed axles. That helps in climbing hills. It gives you instant adaptation of engine speed and wheel power to driving conditions without affecting the speed of the car.

There's a new wrinkle. When going around a curve those two small, extra headlights mounted just above the front bumper swing around automatically to face the curve. They light up the turns.

There are another thousand and one new details. The sets like to describe to all who hesitate before the 1932 models all this week.

Shanty on Hillside Avenue Mecca to Neighborhood Youth

Charley, Children's Friend,
Lives Rent-Free in Tiny Home.

Charley pays no rent, and the latch-string always is out at his 18x7-foot home at 1952 Hillside avenue.

The neighborhood youngsters always are hanging out around Charley's place. He has apples and candy to give away at times, and then, too, who could resist his pigmy home?

"Charley," is Charles Merrell, 60. He's lived in his small shack off Hillside on the alley for the past two years without being pestered by the landlord.

Birds, Dogs and Kids There
Two canary birds, Billy and Betty, and his rat terrier, Buster, are the other reason why Hillside avenue urchins flock to "Charley's."

Odd jobs buy food for Charley in his one-room shanty. And between those odd jobs his hammer beats a tattoo, fixing an observatory to the rear of his home.

Sure, the observatory may observe nothing but tin cans and ash heaps when it's finished, but it'll be an observatory for all that, made from discarded window panes.

Comfy on Cold Days
When frigid days come you can always bank on hearing a Civil war or two fought in his kitchen by cronies who visit him.

You'll know he's home by the curling smoke from the stubby chimney, askant the shanty. Don't knock! Just walk right in and say "Howdy" to Buster and Charley, for they truly live by the side of the road and, we suspect, are a friend to man.
