

League Will Review Year at Meeting

Annual meeting of the Hoosier unit, of the Women's Overseas Service League, will be held tonight at the home of Mrs. Otto Gresham, 3111 Washington boulevard. Committee reports for the year will be given and officers elected.

Members will be the guests of Mrs. Gresham and Miss June Gray at a dinner at 7, preceding the meeting.

Work of the Hoosier unit has been primarily among disabled ex-service women, many of whom are without compensation or hospitalization. The unit is raising a local fund for disabled work and has made regular contributions to the league's national fund.

Recommendation of hostesses for the Citizens' Military Training Camp; chaperonage of entertainment for enlisted men in the new Service club at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, contribution of material for occupational therapy work at city hospital, the Marion Soldiers' home, and Miller cottage of Dayton Soldiers' Home, where about forty supernumerary nurses are domiciled, make up the work of Hoosier unit. Out of town members who will attend the dinner are:

Miss Nelle Birch, Ruth Dillon and Alice Mergy of Terre Haute; Misses Maud Elizabeth Melville of Newcastle; Miss Birds Hunt of Center; Mrs. Glen Heim of Washington; Mrs. John Heim of Anderson; Miss Nelle Baldwin of Greenfield; Miss Linnie Best of Brookston; Dr. McNamee of Lafayette.

Officers of the unit are:

President, Grace Hawk; vice-president, Miss Gladys Cline; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Melville; Miss Amy Prosser; executive board, Miss Nelle Baldwin, Mrs. Birds Hunt of Center; Mrs. Glen Heim of Washington; Mrs. John Heim of Anderson; Miss June Gray; men's bership chairman, Miss Florence J. Martin.

Club Meetings

MONDAY

Monday Afternoon Reading Club will meet with Mrs. Edward Blythe, 3144 North New Jersey street, with a program on Canada by Mrs. W. H. Ball and Mrs. G. A. Everett.

Irvington Woman's Club will have a program on Amy Lowell and Marion Harward Barnard at the home of Mrs. Clarence Forsyth, 548 North Audubon road. Leaders of the discussion will be Mrs. Robert Lee Glass, and Mrs. Guy H. Shadiner.

Electing of officers will be held by the Sesame Club. Mrs. Lewis P. DeVellis and Mrs. L. P. Gorton will read a short story. Mrs. Lewis Finch, 44 Layman avenue, will be hostess.

Monday Conversation Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. E. J. Baker, 5256 North Meridian street. Mrs. Roy E. Adams, and Mrs. Charles R. Yoke will give the program.

New Era Literary Club will meet with Mrs. Thomas S. Martin, 2011 Park avenue, with Mrs. J. D. Day as hostess.

Mrs. Charles E. Cottingham, 3641 North Pennsylvania street, will be hostess for the Woman's Research club. Mrs. John Kolmer, pianist, will play, and Albert Stump will speak.

Three Arts Literary Club of the Brightwood Library will have an "Irish Literary program." Leaders will be Misses Hazel Clark and Elsie Colvin.

TUESDAY

Fortnightly Literary Club will meet at the Propylaeum. Mrs. Roscoe C. Johnston will read a paper, "We are Concerned About Russia," and Mrs. Joseph A. Miner on, "The Best Seller Changes Countenances." Heyl Study Club will meet at the Ruth Memorial Library. Mrs. M. F. Connor will talk on "D'Annunzio."

Mrs. W. H. Hanning, 909 East Maple Road, will be hostess for the monthly luncheon meeting of the Chalcedony club at 12:30. She will be assisted by Mesdames Frank Hollister, F. Hebbelwhite, and Martin J. Hyland. Cards will follow the business meeting.

Hostess Tourist Club will meet with Mrs. H. K. Fout, 3107 Rockle street. The papers will be given by Mesdames J. B. Phillips, C. M. Finney, and Salem Clark.

Mrs. Alfred T. Rapp, 4414 Gullford avenue, will be hostess to the Proctor Club. The Rev. Michael Lyon will speak, and Mrs. Carrie S. Carr will give a report.

Multum in Parvo Literary Club will meet at the home of Mrs. William H. Polk, 52 South Irvington avenue. A program on China will be given by Mrs. Bell E. Vaughn and Mrs. Horace G. Casady.

Expression Club will meet with Mrs. Wayne A. Reddick, 418 Bosart avenue. Mesdames Paul Dorsey and Roy H. Lloyd will give papers. Independent social club will meet at the John Herron art institute.

WEDNESDAY

"George Washington: The Man of Action in Military and Civil Life," will be the topic at the meeting of the Minerva Club. Officers will be elected. Mrs. Emil Ebbner, 3330 North Meridian street, will be the hostess, and a paper will be given by Mrs. J. A. Cameron.

Mrs. W. J. Betz, 42 North Hawthorne Lane will be hostess to the Irvington Catholic Woman's Study Club. The program will be given by Mrs. C. D. Mitchell and Mrs. O. H. Worley.

Oct.-Dahl club will have a luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. Harold D. Warren, 3736 North Meridian street.

Anagnos chapter, Epsilon Sigma Omicron, will meet with Mrs. C. J. Finch, 2837 Rockle street.

THURSDAY

Portfolio Club will meet at the Propylaeum. Howard Foltz will speak on "For a New Age." The supper committee is Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Daggett, and Miss Estelle Peal Izor.

Beta Delphian chapter will have a luncheon meeting at the home of Mrs. A. R. Young in Muncie. Mrs. C. O. Warfel, leader, will present "Two Famous Medieval Stories," assisted by Mrs. J. E. Barnes and Mrs. W. A. Bohne.

Thursday Lyceum Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. F. M. Smith, 536 Sutherland avenue. Galsorth's "Maid in Waiting" will be reviewed by Mrs. H. T. Brown. Mrs. J. H. Brill will be hostess to

SATURDAY

Magazine Club will have a luncheon and election of officers at the W. W. C. A.

Butler Alumnae Literary Club will meet with Mrs. Mark H. Harrison, 920 Campbell avenue. A program on American Poetry will be given by Miss Ruth Carter and Mrs. Samuel O. Brewster.

—WHAT'S IN FASHION— Three Designs for Bedroom Furniture

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—"I'd like to wake up every morning in a room like that," you often hear women say as they look at pictures of smartly-appointed bedrooms.

And when you glance over their shoulders at the picture, you're apt to see one of these three fashionable kinds of bedroom suites: Early American, or later Colonial, or a simple non-period type of charming design.

More and more smart homes are having at least one bedroom done in Early American type, with the maple furniture which has such a simple sturdiness about it.

Some poster beds. Some ladder backs (like a ladder back chair). Some in Jenny Lind design . . . that is, with little vertical posts between the horizontal bars at head and foot.

You can have your maple dressing-table with mirror attached, if you like. But many women prefer to keep strictly to the period effect, with separate hanging mirrors.

LATER COLONIAL TYPE GOOD

Mahogany shines as the loveliest of all bedroom furniture in the eyes of lots of fashionable women. They use it in the later colonial designs that are much like the earlier American maple. It's usually a bit more elaborate, though.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . . . walnut with green . . . with rose or yellow. It chimes right in with almost any color scheme.

Of course, walnut suites in period design are often used, too. Queen Anne is best. Its slim delicacy of line is particularly appropriate for a feminine bedroom.

And that's because it reflects a time when our ancestors were not so wholly taken up with whacking down forests and building cabins.

They were more settled and could put their time on copying good English designs and embellishing their own.

And so you find this later colonial mahogany furniture with simple carvings on the posts . . . flutings . . . maybe crotch mahogany on the top dresser drawer.

We use walnut used with blue . .