

Women Plan
Evansville
Convention

Plans for the annual state convention in Evansville May 14, 15 and 16, were discussed at the state council meeting of Indiana Federation of Business and Professional Women Sunday at the Clayspool.

Members of the nominating committee chosen are Mrs. R. L. Collins, Lafayette; Miss Jennie Rae Hirsch, Portland; Miss Katherine Patton, Gary; Miss Nina Ray Swift, Marion; and Miss Harriett Bass Jenner, Evansville.

It was announced that Miss Lena Madson Phillips, New York, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will make the presentation of the state star of service medal awarded for outstanding public service, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, at the convention.

Date of issuance of the Hoosier Business Women, state magazine, was changed from the fifteenth day of each month to the first day of alternative months.

Miss Merica Hoagland, state director of 1933 women's exposition in Chicago and one of the members of the women's council of the first Chicago world's fair in 1893, asked the co-operation of the federation in helping issuance in book form of historical research concerning organized women.

Dr. John Hewitt, chairman of Governor Harry G. Leslie's unemployment relief commission, spoke on the "Friendly Five Plan" being sponsored by the committee and being adopted by organizations and industries. He asked the co-operation of the federation in extension of the project, which calls for five-person groups to assist in caring for needy families. Mrs. Adah O. Frost, state federation president, is a member of Mrs. Leslie's advisory council. Mrs. Leslie is chairman of the project.

Honor roll of clubs at Fortville, Nappanee, Huntington and Whiting was announced. These clubs have retained all their members and are four out of only eleven in the entire country, no other state having more than one honor roll club.

More than 150 women attended the meeting.

Miss Summers,
R. H. Brown in Home Wedding

In a double ring ceremony performed Sunday noon at the home of her parents, Miss Lucile Summers became the bride of R. H. Brown, La Porte, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Brown, Rushville, Ill. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Summers, 4009 East New York street.

The service, performed by candlelight before an improvised altar of palms and roses, was read by the Rev. B. B. Shaker.

The bride, gowned in pastel blue crepe, was given in marriage by her father. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Her sister Ethel, as bridesmaid, wore grey crepe and carried pink sweet peas. Lyle Summers was best man.

Following the ceremony, a luncheon was served, with Miss Helen Rilling of Culver, pianist, who played the bridal music, and Miss Neva Daugherty, La Porte, as guests. Mr. and Mrs. Brown left in the evening for La Porte, where they will make their home. The bride is a graduate of Butler university and a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

How Do Dancers Manage?

The professional engagements of a dancer make no allowance for the time of month when she may be helpless with pain, but avoid it. They use Midol and do not suffer even a twinge of periodic pain. Why don't you meet these emergencies with this remarkable modern discovery.

Midol takes pain off the clematis. Such martyrdom is foolish. For Midol is as harmless as the aspirin tablet you take for your headache! All drug stores; just ask for Midol.—Advertisement.

HIDE THAT LIPSTICK AND THAT POWDER PUFF!

Dining Room Never to Be Used for a Boudoir, Assert Paris Gourmets

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
A Service Writer

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Women who make up their faces and comb their hair in the dining room are condemned as plagues of the table and unworthy of a good meal by celebrated gourmets here in a campaign for the revival of the high art of eating and drinking.

They agree that nothing is so irritating to those who appreciate good food as to have a woman shake her powder puff indiscriminately and throw a shower, however faint, over the plates and wine glasses.

Table manners unfortunately are becoming more and more decadent, in the opinion of Mme. Gabrielle Reval, well-known writer and prominent member of the Club des Belles Perdrix (fine partridges), a feminine gourmet association which includes many women distinguished in arts and letters.

"The women who should give a tone to society are those who have lost it," she says. "Modern women always forget that they are not in their bathrooms when they are in public."

"Whether you lunch or dine in the smart restaurant or the little cafe where the shop girls gather, you will see that women's movements are absurdly alike and similar."

"Everything from the pocket comb to the eye mascara comes into play, finished off by the puff which usually scatters powder all around.

"We are so used to these gestures that they pass without comment, but any one who stops to study women in a public place will be compelled to smile at their antics."

MME. REVAL deeply regrets this state of things on behalf of her own sex, for she adds: "Women do not realize how much of their charm they lose by revealing in public the mysteries of their makeup and the secrets of their boudoir."

She is rising against these practices and she is strongly supported by male gourmets many of whom are even less tolerant with the table manners of many women of today.

Curnonsky, popular writer and caricaturist, who in private life is Maurice Salliant, admits that women should be welcome to a well-ordered dinner because, after all, he says, they are admitted in Heaven, but he stoutly denies that they should be admitted if they are going to use a powder puff and lipstick there.

"What! A comb, a puff and rouge at table?" he asks. "Why not a sponge, nail scissors and all the other paraphernalia of the boudoir? They should use them before or after, or not at all."

CURNONSKY, who is known as the "Prince of Gastronomy," in Paris and weighs 225 pounds in his happy bachelor state, is even less tolerant with women who smoke at table.

Mme. Gabrielle Reval . . . of the Club of Fine Partridges . . . "smiles at women's antics."

"Women who smoke between courses, or when the cheese is passed around because they do not happen to like cheese, are lacking in courtesy, taste and brains," he says. "They should be shunned as one of the most terrible plagues in the realm of good eating."

Another practice condemned as a plague is the use by women of tenacious perfumes in the atmosphere of food and wine.

This explains, according to G. Dumont-Lespine, vice president of the Association of the Regional Gastronomes, why some male dinner companions often turn out to be bad-tempered and irritable after having started off perfectly charming and happy.

Perfume at the dinner table should be most discreet, and he can not see why perfumers have not yet created essences appropriate for the table.

"WHEN a wine waiter whispers such magic words as 'Haut Brion, 1914,' in your ears a man will easily turn his attention from even the prettiest woman," says M. Lespine.

"But after having appreciated the beautiful ruby red of the wine and its bouquet, he turns to his companion to have her share his enthusiasm for the magic beverage. He more often than not will be greeted with a careless smile. At the same time she will, discreetly enough, take out her powder puff and, prior to using it, shake it considerably under the table.

"Not only is that fateful to black trousers, but as women often enobly use the most renowned and highly perfumed brands of powder it takes a few seconds before the odor evaporates."

"And that is how even the most beautiful and adorable women contrive to spoil a perfectly justifiable delight."

Mrs. Bartholomew Retained
as Magazine Club Head

Mrs. W. C. Bartholomew was re-elected president of the Magazine club at an election held following the luncheon Saturday at the Woman's Department Club. All other officers were re-elected, including:

Mrs. Robert T. Ramsey, first vice-president; A. E. Shirley, second vice-president; Rudolf Grosskopf, recording secretary; Othello Hinch, corresponding secretary; D. C. Wainwright, federation secretary; E. J. Wolfarth, treasurer; and Miss Frances Mohr, historian. Mrs. E. H. Knodel was named publicity chairman.

The program included a group of vocal selections by Mrs. Knodel, accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Jarvis. Tributes were paid to the memory of Mrs. O. L. Huey, one of the founders of the club, and Miss Mary Brown, who died recently.

The luncheon table was laid with a lace cloth and centered with a silver bowl of white carnations, lighted at each end with candles tied with orchid tulle. Small tables were centered with silver bud vases holding white carnations.

The club will hold its next meeting Feb. 6 at the Y. W. C. A.

Don't Make Work of Bowling Is Teacher's Advice at Times School

"Relax" is Mrs. Floretta D. McCutcheon's war cry, as she instructs women of the city in the art of bowling in The Times free school held at three local alleys—Parkway, Uptown and Fountain Square—this week.

Mrs. McCutcheon is the leading woman bowler in the country. "Don't work at bowling," is her advice to Mrs. C. A. Jaqua, 3534 College avenue (upper left), president of the Woman Golfers' Bowling League, as she prepares to swing, and to Mrs. Sidney Fenstermaker, 3102 Washington boulevard (left), with whom she is pictured in the photo at the upper right.

One of the beginners profiting by Mrs. McCutcheon's instructions is Mrs. Herbert Piel (lower) 18 West Thirty-third street.

Hundreds of Indianapolis women today were converts to bowling, following completion Sunday of the third day of The Times free school for women bowlers, conducted by Mrs. Floretta D. McCutcheon, leading woman tenpin artist of the country.

Starting Friday, with the first lessons of the course, the number of students has grown steadily and Sunday night hundreds thronged the Parkway alleys, Thirty-fourth and Illinois streets, to watch Mrs. McCutcheon roll in a match game and to receive instructions.

Good crowds also were reported at classes at the Uptown alleys, Forty-second street and College avenue, and at the Fountain Square alleys.

Mrs. McCutcheon will continue her classes through Thursday at the three alleys, teaching beginners the fundamentals of the pastime, and giving suggestions for improving their play to those experienced in the art of topling the pins.

The schedule for the remainder of the course follows:

Monday, Jan. 25
1:30 P. M.—Parkway.
3:00 P. M.—Uptown.

HE DIDN'T HAVE TO WALK VERY FAR

Mr. Robert Galanti of the firm of R. Galanti & Bros., fine accordion makers, 71 Third Avenue, New York, is also a teacher of the piano accordion. When he got a cough not long ago, he didn't have to walk very far for relief. "I was on the subway one evening," he says, "and chanced to see a REM car-card. Having a cough and cold at the time, I stopped at the nearest drug-store and bought a bottle. I was astonished at the quick relief REM gave me. I had used other cough remedies without such good results." The "why" of REM's great record for relieving coughs is simple. It's a perfectly harmless, thoroughly scientific, different cough remedy! There's really nothing like it!

To get REM's results you've got to make sure it's REM! Insist on it!
