

Repeal Vote on City for Parley Site

Vote to make Indianapolis the permanent state convention site for the Indiana Federation of Clubs was rescinded today, when question of constitutionality of the ballot was brought up.

Mrs. Frank Sheehan, parliamentarian, contended the vote was unconstitutional and the decision to hold the convention here permanently was cast aside pending further discussion. The federation board met Tuesday night and today at the Claypool.

Invitation for the 1932 convention was received from Mrs. Frederick G. Balz, president of the local Seventh District Federation of Clubs and the invitation suggesting that Indianapolis be made the permanent site was received from Mayor Reginald Sullivan and the Indianapolis convention bureau.

Location in Favor It has been the custom for the federation to meet in Indianapolis in alternate years, but with the growth of the federation, it has been found that few cities are equipped with convention facilities to conveniently accommodate such a large group. The central location of Indianapolis also is an argument in its favor.

The convention bureau has offered to the federation clerical aid, registration service, entertainment and other committee details heretofore the responsibilities of Seventh district, the Hostess Club.

Dates for the convention were changed from October to Nov. 1, 2 and 3. Headquarters will be at the Claypool.

Mrs. Edwin I. Poston of Martinsville, second vice-president, conducted a symposium of two-minute talks by the thirteen district federation presidents on "Is the Federation a Reality in My District?"

Institute Is Conducted

An institute also was conducted by Mrs. Robert A. Hicks, Cambridge City, with department chairmen as speakers. Mrs. James D. Hinkle, Vincennes, chairman of fine arts department, announced a prize for the best community festival combining the three arts.

Dean Mary L. Matthews of the education department attached discrimination against married women in teaching, and urged that district women guard against reduction in the educational program of districts by cutting funds. Miss Alice Yeakel, Knox, chairman of American citizenship, stressed the importance of the primary, and Mrs. Herman Jones thanked the federation club women for their co-operation in upholding the eighteenth amendment.

The program was continued at luncheon in the Chateau room, where district and department chairmen were introduced. Hamilton Miller, Indiana representative on the George Washington bicentennial celebration, spoke.

Two Women Preside

Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Poston presided at the board meeting. Mrs. Canine, president, who was present, was unable to speak because of a cold.

Among changes in committee personnel made last night are Mrs. J. V. Thacker, Indianapolis, to replace Mrs. E. C. Hall of Auburn on the state library committee; Mrs. Joseph Marshall, Rosedale, to replace Mrs. Francis Whipple, Rockville, on the educational agencies committee; Mrs. Frank J. Crawford, Terre Haute, as chairman of the division of community service; to replace Mrs. Earl Shagley, who has been made chairman of the department of press and publicity.

Announce Prizes

Mrs. Paul Miller, Mt. Summit, chairman of the American home department, announced a prize of $5 to be awarded at the fall convention to the district holding the most home institutes during the year and a $5 essay prize on the subject, "American Home—What Makes the Best."

Mrs. Edwin F. Miller, Peru, director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, announced that the search for the oldest mother in the United States has been abandoned by the government, but will be continued by the federation.

Review to Meet

Hollister Review No. 52, Women's Benefit Association, will meet at 2 Thursday afternoon at Castle Hall, 230 East Ohio street. A social hour will follow the business meeting.

Social Circle to Meet

Olive Branch Social Circle will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Glen H. Rhoads, 1106 West Thirty-third street. Assistant hostesses will be Mesdames E. E. Yount, William Bryant and Charles Beisinger.

What's in Fashion?

Gay Sweaters for Winter Days

Directed By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Like to wear sweaters? You're in fashion if you do. For certainly gay sweaters are in fashion, and getting more so. Not only for sports wear, either.

We've seen bright sweaters smartly worn these last few days in lots of places. Parading at tea time in the new Peacock alley, traditional rendezvous of fashionables since the days of the old Waldorf Astoria.

Stepping into the New York-Pacific Coast airplane. Leaning on the rail of the crack new Bermuda liner.

Typing briskly in a busy office. In the foyer at Broadway's most popular matinee.

And they all looked right at home, too.

Many of these fashionable sweaters have copied so many blouse ideas that now they're worn as formally as a blouse. Which, of course, is the reason we see them so many places they didn't use to be.

And those stripes are one of the smartest designs you can choose, we think.

You know about those sweaters with contrasting color yokes—just as many a good dress or blouse has contrasting color yoke.

But have you seen the newest tailored type blouse-sweater... the kind you'll like to wear with a tailored suit?

One of them certainly has all the earmarks of a regular fabric blouse, even to the side-to-back belt.

"But aren't there any sports sweaters left?" some one asks. Of course, there are. Snuggly warm turtle-necked ones and neat polo shirts, knit to look like lace.

The best thing about this fashion for sweaters is the wide variety of styles you can wear with confidence in their fashion-rightness. That's worth a cheer, don't you think?

Bowling stands fair chance of replacing bridge as Indianapolis women's favorite indoor sport, since the inauguration of The Times Bowling school, headed by Mrs. Floretta McCutcheon, foremost woman ten-pin artist of the country, as instructor, and being held at Fountain Square, Parkway and Uptown alleys.

Mrs. Frank Addison, 4070 Broadway, upper right, is taking position for a try at the maples.

It's not too late to get some good instruction, if you want to take up bowling. Classes will be held Thursday by Mrs. McCutcheon, as a wind-up of her course of instruction here, during which hundreds of women have received tips on how to achieve skill in the ten-pin pastime. Send the blank to the alley where you prefer to take a lesson. Thursday's schedule follows:
