

Miami Beach Season Is in Full Swing

By Times Special
MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3.—Miami Beach society took its daily exercise by proxy this week.

Sleek boxers left hooking and right crossing were substituted for the Saturday night dinner dance at the Surf Club.

With the seats all ringed, two hundred or more of Miami Beach's socially elect watched the thirty rounds of boxing in the improvised ring in the patio, and approved between rounds, the obvious appreciation of one of the performers of a full moon rising over his head, even though one of his eyes was fast closing.

New Fashions Shown

From the attire of the fashionable spectators, it was evident that, what was a good enough style for mother in her deb days is apparently more than good enough for her daughter's fashion revival.

Of particular interest was a coffee-colored satin jacket, waist length, with leg-of-mutton sleeves. The neckline was severely plain. The insistence of the breezes made it imperative that coiffure waves be confined to keep them from becoming too wild. Several gave scarfs a chance to pinch-hit as mantillas or turbans while the fights were on. Milliners can not be blamed justly for the popularity of the "wooden soldier" silhouettes at the Sunshine Fashion show this week at the Roney Plaza hotel.

The broad shoulder and slim hip lines of the current sports styles are only another effort of feminine admirers to emphasize the grace they find in masculine form. The models shown have merited the admiration for their distinctiveness as resort wear and have lured the most pacific to expressions of praise.

Build Hotel Roof Stage

Lace evening gowns, among the favorites this season, have as dangerous rivals the gowns of voile, wide-ribbed corduroy pique and linen. They are the coming events of next summer which already have cast their shadows before them at Miami Beach exclusive gatherings this winter. The bathing costumes modeled at the fashion show continue to show the influence of the sun and Mahatma Gandhi.

Electricians are getting up in the world with the building of a stage for the Theater Guild, of Miami Beach atop the Fleetwood hotel. Winter residents dramatically inclined are finding active outlet for their footlight energies in "Cock Robin" to be presented next week as the first offering of the season.

Another kind of playing is going on at the fashionable Flamingo hotel where a game room is drawing patronage from the youngest to the not-so-youngish guests. Those who must have their backgammon have it, while those who hold shuffleboard, quoits and dominoes have their place in the social order can indulge to their heart's content.

Yacht Parties Popular
In a place where hostesses are guests alike understand the value of entertaining in the great outdoors, no one, apparently, is allowing a roof to stay overhead for long during a twenty-four-hour stretch.

As a consequence, an unusual number of parties are being given now on the decks of yachts anchored near the Nautilus, Flamingo and Fleetwood hotels, and those who have no boat are making use of the less rolling decks at the cabana clubs.

Buffet luncheons and swimming parties are more popular these days at the Nautilus and Flamingo hotels on the bay front and at the Fancourt, Roney Plaza and Wofford hotels on the ocean side.

A delicious fruit drink to quench the thirst is "Florida freeze." It is made by adding a tablespoon of lemon or orange ice to a large glass of lemonade, orange juice or other fruit beverage. Before adding the ice the fruit juice should be cold, but should not contain any chipped ice.

MRS. LEETH HOSTESS AT CLUB LUNCHEON

Mrs. H. B. Leeth, 3273 College avenue, entertained member of the Heyl Study Club with a luncheon bridge Tuesday at her home. She was assisted by Mrs. F. Pierce Woolery and Mrs. Albert M. Alexander.

Small tables were arranged with bowls of sweet peas in the center. One large table was centered with pink roses, the club flower, and lighted with pink tapers. Appointments were in keeping with the Valentine season. Covers were laid for twenty-four.

Miss Dean Entertains

Miss Belle Noble Dean, who returned recently from Europe, entertained Monday with a small tea in honor of Mrs. Henry Beveridge, West Newton, Mass., formerly of Indianapolis, who is visiting here. She is at the Propyleum while in Indianapolis.

Miss Boatman Hostess

It's a charming dress to wear beneath the fur coat. It carries with it a sporty-air. And a dress, that a little later, can be worn for early spring smartly without a top coat.

You can also make it as a complete dress. It's delightfully lovely in sapphire blue canton-faille crepe.

Hospital to Give Thanks to Sorority

When Psi Iota Xi sorority delegates from more than fifty chapters of the state gather Saturday for the unveiling of a tablet on the new oxygen therapy department of Riley Hospital for Children, officers of the Riley Memorial Association will review the part the sorority's several gifts have played in lending progress to the project since its inception.

Early in 1922, soon after the Riley Memorial Association was formed with the definite commitment to build a living memorial to James Whitcomb Riley, friends surviving the Hoosier Poet pondered over a plan to invite public subscriptions to the hospital enterprise.

Sorority First Donor

While contemplating the various means of permitting participation by each native Hoosier, a representative of the young women's sorority, Psi Iota Xi, appeared in the memorial association's offices with a check for $5,000. This became the first contribution by any organization dedicated to charity and fraternal purposes.

Hugh MacLendon, chairman of the Riley hospital directing body, will attend the dedication of the new oxygen therapy department which a gift of $7,500 from Psi Iota Xi has made possible. He will receive the completed department from grand officers of the sorority and in turn will deliver it to administrative executives.

Dr. W. D. Gatch, acting dean of the Indiana university school of medicine, will acknowledge the gift and speak for university officials.

Miss Sines to Preside

Miss Thelma Sines, Logansport, grand president of the sorority, will preside over the dedication program and the sorority's annual state luncheon, to be held in Riley hospital, preceding the ceremony.

Mrs. Norman H. Shortridge, former chairman of the sorority's charity committee, will make the formal presentation. Mrs. Willard Stahr, Hagerstown, present charity chairman, will unveil the bronze tablet bearing the sorority crest at the entrance to the department.

Grand officers will participate. Mrs. Adeline M. Wirtz, Petersburg, will present a history of the interest taken by Psi Iota Xi through the ten years of the development of the Riley hospital.

On Sunday, the sorority delegates will attend midyear conferences in the Lincoln.

FRENCH GIRLS STILL RULED BY FAMILY

Co-eds now form a large part of the student body of the universities of France, bringing a note of color, smartness and gaiety to the venerable buildings, Francis Biraud of the Indiana university faculty, told the Alliance Francaise Tuesday night at the Washington.

His subject was "French Girls of Today." Biraud said that although French girls today are succeeding in many professions formerly open only to men, they do not enjoy the freedom of their American sisters. Due to the strength of tradition, he asserted, they do not cut loose from their families. They must be accompanied to dances by their mothers or chaperons, they do not "have dates" until after they are engaged and weddings still are, in a large measure, a family business, he said.

Size 16 requires 2 1/2 yards 39-inch for blouse with two yards 39-inch for skirt.
