

M. C. TAYLOR NAMED STEEL INDUSTRY CZAR

Full Executive Power Given Him, First to One Man
Since Gary's Death.

By United Press
NEW YORK, March 30.—Myron C. Taylor has become the czar of the steel industry, the first since the death of Judge Elbert H. Gary in 1927, with assumption of full executive direction of the United States Steel Corporation and his election as chairman of the board.

Taylor replaces a triumvirate which was set up, in charge of the corporation's affairs, following Gary's death. That triumvirate consisted of J. P. Morgan, banker, James A. Farrell, president retiring next month, and Taylor.

Morgan, who has been chairman, relinquished that post Tuesday, in accordance with an agreement made when he accepted the office in 1927.

Taylor, who previously has held the office of chairman of the finance committee, now becomes the directing head of the world's largest industrial enterprise, with full title to the authority.

Farrell, on retirement, will be succeeded by William A. Irvin, now a vice-president. Irvin will rank next to Taylor, but he will be concerned chiefly with operations.

Morgan assumed the chairmanship in 1927 reluctantly and at the request of his friend, the late George F. Baker, chairman of the First National bank and the largest individual stockholder in the Steel Corporation. Morgan will remain a director.

It was through Baker's influence also that Taylor accepted the finance chairmanship.

Taylor, a lawyer turned industrialist, directed company policies in co-operation with Farrell.

By United Press
CHARLOTTE, N. C., March 30.—Demonstration of the semigraph, an automatic typesetter invented by Buford L. Green, North Carolina printer, interested publishers and printing experts today.

The machine, exhibited here Monday, employs a photo-electric cell to operate the linotype or intertype machines automatically from copy. The cell is actuated by a light shining upon characters of a printed code which appear directly beneath letters in copy being set.

Copy is prepared upon an especially designed typewriter.

HE 'PLAYED CHOKE' It's Serious Now; Wedding Bells

Greta Nissen

By United Press
HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—Marriage at Tijuana, Mexico, today will culminate a romance of the films in which the caveman acting of a screen player won the real affections of Greta Nissen, Norwegian star.

The bridegroom will be Heyburn Franks, actor known on the screen as Heyburn. They met in a picture which called for Heyburn to choke Miss Nissen.

At the first rehearsal of the choking, according to the bride-to-be, so kindly did Franks pretend to throttle her that affection developed.

They plan to fly to Tijuana, be married, and then return to Santa Monica, postponing a wedding trip until pictures in which they are working have been completed.

Miss Nissen, whose legal name is Grethe Rutz-Nissen, has had many prominent parts in pictures. She was born in Oslo, Norway, and educated there and in Copenhagen.

BONDSMEN PLY TRADE, BACKED BY HIGH COURT

Chief Justice Travis Insists
City Judges Must Not Halt Solicitations.

Professional bondsmen proceeded to ply their trade among the customers in municipal courts today backed temporarily by approval of the supreme court.

The supreme court informed Judges Clifton R. Cameron and William H. Sheaffer of the municipal court that they must obey a temporary restraining order issued last week which prevented interference with operations of Eli Gmil and other qualified bondsmen.

Chief Justice Julius C. Travis laid down the law to the municipal judges at a hearing in the supreme court Tuesday afternoon on the petition to make the order permanent.

An affidavit, filed by T. Ernest Maholm, attorney for Gmil, asking Sheaffer be cited for contempt still is pending action by the court. The affidavit is based on the allegation that the municipal judge failed to obey the temporary order.

Eliza O. Rogers, Lebanon, attorney for Sheaffer, told the high court at the hearing that the order will be obeyed, but the citation request has not been dismissed.

Attorneys agreed to file briefs by next Friday on the question of making the temporary writ of prohibition permanent. No oral argument was asked and none will be held unless requested by the court, it was agreed.

Thirty lawyers and bondsmen attended the hearing.

By United Press
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 30.—Featuring winsome co-eds in dancing and singing the "1932 Jordan River Revue," Indiana university's annual musical comedy, will open in Bloomington, April 12, playing here three nights. The revue will be presented April 21 and 22 at Masonic temple, Muncie, and on Saturday afternoon and night, April 23, at English's theater, Indianapolis.

Under direction of Miss Margaret Morgan, efficient dancing director of this year's revue, and Miss Marjetta Coval, Indianapolis, assistant dancing director, the fifteen co-eds and the fifteen "eds" are holding daily rehearsals so the intricate dance steps chosen for this year's revue may be presented with perfect precision on the opening night.

This year's show, according to Charles R. Dant, Washington, director, will be outstanding due to the many catchy and melodious tunes which have been written.

"We are indeed fortunate to have the large quantity of talent which we have this year," Dant said. The leads this year will be played by Miss Martha Temples, Bloomington, and Fred Sims, Carthage, Miss Temples and Mr. Sims played together in the "1931 Garrick Gateways," scoring a big hit. Both have voices of unusual quality and are well able to do justice to the honor awarded them.

Miss Temples, a senior at the university, has for three years taken major roles in a number of campus dramatic productions.

COURT GUARDS NAME WORTH 350 MILLIONS

Enjoins Film Company's
Use of Label, Holding It
Jeweler's Property.

By United Press
NEW YORK, March 30.—Tiffany & Co., Fifth avenue jewelers, have done a gross business of more than $350,000,000 in the last forty years, it was disclosed when Justice Edward S. Dore granted a permanent injunction restraining Tiffany Productions, Inc., motion picture producers, from using the Tiffany name.

Justice Dore pointed out that some member of the Tiffany family had been with the jewelry firm since its founding, while none of that name had been with the motion picture company, incorporated eleven years ago.

The court held that the injunction did not mean that the plaintiff had a monopoly of the name.

Webster's dictionary lists "Tiffany" as a common noun, meaning "a very thin muslin gauze."

SOVIET BAN ASKED Customs Want All Russian Imports Barred.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, March 30.—Customs officials have asked Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills to recommend congressional action to bar Russian imports, the United Press learned today.
Their suggestion was made after a series of secret hearings at which various domestic industries, particularly coal producers, presented evidence to support a claim that all labor under the Soviet system is forced or indentured.
