

HOOVER LEADS WAR AGAINST CASH BONUS

Currency Inflation Is Chief Argument by Foes of Veterans' Proposal.

BY WALKER STONE

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Arguments for aid against currency inflation are marching to the forefront in the growing controversy over cash payments of the remainder of the soldiers' bonus.

The two leading bonus measures, those of Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem., Okla.) and Representative Wright Patman (Dem., Tex.), both provide that the $2,000,000,000 payment be met by printing the money. There appears to be no formidable support behind any measure to raise the money by levying additional taxes or selling government bonds.

In his attack on the plan Tuesday, President Herbert Hoover, without mentioning the proposed inflationary feature, sounded the keynote of the opposition when he said that the payment at this time "irretrievably would undermine" the government's credit.

Advocates of the Thomas and Patman bills are contending that putting the money in circulation would help revive prosperity.

Thus far no attempt has been made to divorce the inflationary feature and the bonus feature in the Patman and Thomas bills. Such an attempt may be made when hearings on the Patman bill are opened before the house ways and means committee, which has promised to consider the measure when the tax bill is completed.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, after an informal poll on the house proposal, claims that 174 members of the house have pledged their support to the Patman bill, in addition to thirty senators.

Replying to Hoover's contention that the American Legion is opposed to the cash bonus at this time, Patman claimed that 95 per cent of the Legionnaires support his bill.

Opponents answered Patman by declaring congress has received petitions favoring his bill from only 560 of the 10,400 legion posts. Of the 560 posts, 432 were in Texas.

Motorist Who Laughed at Car Summons, "Gets Action."

Destroying a "sticker" under the nose of a policeman is a costly pastime. P. E. Scott, 3015 Park avenue, learned today.

Before Municipal Judge William H. Sheaffer Ferdinand Finchum, traffic officer, related how Scott Tuesday tore to bits a sticker placed on his parked automobile at 218 South Meridian street.

"I'll get some of my influential friends to take care of this," Finchum quoted Scott as declaring. "Did you tear up the sticker?" Sheaffer asked Scott.

"Yes, I did," the witness answered. "Guilty," said Sheaffer. "One dollar and costs."

If Scott had paid for the sticker without trial it would have cost $2. He paid $13.
