

2,000 HARVARD STUDENTS RIOT; BATTLE POLICE

Scores Bruised, 12 Arrested in 5-Hour Clash; Jail Raid Repulsed.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 22.—One of the worst riots in Harvard's history—a five-hour battle between 2,000 undergraduates and police, firemen and civilians ended early today with many students nursing bruises and a dozen persons under arrest.

Stiff disciplinary action may follow the demonstration. It began with an invasion of dormitories where Radcliffe college girls were preparing to retire. It spread throughout the Harvard square area as students rushed buildings, trolley cars, busses and automobiles.

Charles R. Apter, head of the Harvard yard police, was felled by an automobile. Two score students received bumps and minor bruises from police clubs.

The climax came when hundreds of angry students stormed the police station in an unsuccessful attempt to free others under arrest.

A report that a freshman had found the forty-pound clock bell hammer stolen last fortnight from the belfry of Memorial hall led to the celebration which later assumed riotous proportions. The hammer today remained listed as missing.

Police Seek Trio Seen Near Playhouse; Labor Row Is Blamed.

ANDERSON, Ind., April 22.—Harper McCune of the state fire marshal's office joined local authorities today in investigation of the Orpheum theater bombing here Thursday night. Labor difficulties were blamed for the attack, which caused damage estimated by police at $500.

Front of the theater and the sidewalk and pavement were damaged. No one was injured.

Police reported today that one suspect had been questioned and subsequently released. Meanwhile, police continued their search for three men reported to have been seen in an auto near the theater immediately after the bombing.

Gone Primitive

Family of Beavers Sets Up Housekeeping in North Indiana.

INDIANA'S great northern industrial area is returning to the primitive, reports from the fish and game department of the state conservation department indicate.

According to game wardens, a family of at least twelve beavers now are living on Rock creek in Liberty township, Wells county.

Nor are the beavers faced with any unemployment problem. They already have erected three dams and fresh cuttings are noticed on brush and trees bordering the creek.

Each of the dams raised the water in the creek one foot, so that the water above the upper dam is three feet higher than formerly, the department reports.

Farmers along the creek are anxious to protect the beavers with an eye to a rich fur crop, it was said.
