

POLITICAL WAR IS THREATENING LA FOLLETTES

'Dynasty' Under Fire; Editor Shouts Racket Charge.

BY WILLARD R. SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
MADISON, Wis., May 31.—Wisconsin, cockpit of American politics, is the battleground today of partisan strife as fierce as any of the state's stormy history.

The La Follette "dynasty" defends its throne against new foes. Socialists, their national nominating convention just over in Milwaukee, drive deep salients into opposing lines.

John B. Chapple, 32-year-old Ashland newspaper editor, campaigning for the United States senate, storms up and down the state and back and forth from Washington crying "racket" at the La Follettes and "Communists, atheists" at the University of Wisconsin and its dynamic young president, Glenn Frank.

Regulars in Revolt

"Regular" Republicans, controlling a majority of the state's delegation to the national convention for the first time in a quarter century, threaten the La Follette rule.

Democrats, strengthened by deserters from the La Follette Progressives, menace all other parties. Communists scorn the old line parties, and the Progressives and Socialists, claiming many new adherents.

In the foreground are the La Follettes, sons of "Old Bob" keeping up the dynasty of more than thirty years. The sons hold offices their famous father once filled. Philip Fox La Follette, 35, is Governor. Robert Marion La Follette Jr., 37, is United States senator.

Chapple Leads Fight

Governor La Follette's ultra-liberal policy estranged Republican stalwarts, and brought the charge from Chapple that he was attempting to lead the party into socialist and Communist channels. Chapple entered the senate race against the incumbent, Senator John J. Blaine, La Follette follower.

Walter J. Kohler, millionaire manufacturer, has announced he will not enter the lists against La Follette, who displaced him in the last election after Kohler had been drafted as a "business man" Governor.

The only opponent actually in the field against the Governor is a man twice his age, Charles B. Perry, 76, Speaker of the assembly.

FUNERAL SET FOR JOE BECKETT JR.

Rites to Be Held Wednesday at Mortuary for Young Shooting Victim.

Funeral services for Joe Rand Beckett Jr., will be held at 4 Wednesday in Flanner & Buchanan mortuary, 25 West Fall Creek parkway.

The 14-year-old boy, son of State Senator and Mrs. Joe Rand Beckett, 3528 East Fall Creek parkway, died Sunday night as a result of an accidental revolver shot fired by his pal, Lowell Patterson Jr., 1220 College avenue.

In a statement to detectives, Lowell described the accident in which he killed Joe Beckett, whom he described as "my best friend."

About 8 Sunday night the Patterson boy said he and Beckett went to a room on the second floor of the former's home to examine a 45-caliber revolver belonging to John Cross, 2615 Broadway, which Lowell had tried to sell for the owner.

"Then he went to mother's room," the statement continued. "I picked up a 38-caliber revolver and started to hand it to Joe to examine. The gun was fired—I don't know what caused it. Joe bent over and said something about being shot. My

JAIL COMMON 'SCOLD'

Woman Held on Charges of 'Destroying Peace.'

By United Press
ABINGTON, Pa., May 31.—Charges that she is a "common scold" kept Catherine Cairns, 40, behind bars at the Abington police station today under $500 bail, pending action of the Montgomery county grand jury.

Browder Benningfield swore out the warrant for her arrest, and, at a police hearing, testified that the defendant "had destroyed the peace of his neighborhood for nearly six years, and that verbal attacks from her had made life miserable for the residents."

His testimony was corroborated by seven other residents. "Her actions made life miserable during the night as well as during the day, for she did not cease even when darkness came," it was testified.

The defendant was held in jail for action of the grand jury.

FIRST AWARDS MADE IN SALES SLIP CONTEST

Mrs. H. G. Parsons, Woodruff, Gets $5 Check, Top Daily Prize.

She never thought she'd find a check for $5 in a pair of beach sandals.

But she did. That's how lucky Mrs. H. G. Parsons, 774 East drive, Woodruff Place, happens to be.

And all because she saved a sales slip and entered The Times great Sales Slip contest, just started, to continue to June 30.

Mail Lots of Them

Just tell why you think this particular slip is lucky. And mail as many slips and statements as you wish. They'll all get the judges' attention.

"My beach sandals have given me the 'grin' from Lohengrin. I've been lucky," is Mrs. Parsons' winning contribution, accompanied by a sales slip from Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Second prize of $3 goes to Mrs. C. H. Hardy, 3333 Carrollton avenue. "Early bird should catch the worm. This probably was first purchase and first gift wrapped at Ayres' Friday. Purchaser also first guest tea room," was her statement, accompanied by an Ayres slip.

Others Get $1 Prizes

Kendallville Woman, Despondent, Is Suicide: Body Recovered.

By United Press
KENDALLVILLE, Ind., May 31.—In Lake Bixler, where twelve hours before flowers had been scattered in tribute to dead soldiers, Mrs. Clayton Parker ended her life. Her body was recovered today after other members of the family started a search.

Despondency was blamed. The husband and three children survive.

Here Is List of Rules for Sales Slip Contest

Here are the rules of The Times Sales Slip Contest. Read them carefully. You will find them easy to follow:

1. Any one and every one may compete in the Sales Slip Contest except employees of The Indianapolis Times and their families.

2. Any one may enter the Sales Slip Contest by sending sales slips of merchandise they have purchased from Times advertisers, accompanied by a brief statement of not more than twenty-five (25) words telling why they think any one or any number of these sales slips should be lucky or why they have been lucky in purchasing them.

3. In preparing brief statements at not more than twenty-five words, give simple reasons you think of which can be associated with luck. Here are a few examples: Example 1—"This sales slip represents a lucky purchase. It's the greatest bargain I've ever secured in The Times."

Example 2—"It was a lucky day when I saw this merchandise advertised in The Times. Example 3—"I have had nothing but lucky breaks since I bought this dress at my favorite store." Example 4—"The new hat I purchased at (name store) was lucky because it also brought an engagement ring from my future husband."

4. The brief statement may be written on the reverse side of each sales slip or on a separate piece of paper. Also write your name and address plainly on each sales slip.

5. There is no entrance fee or charge of any kind necessary to purchase a copy of The Times to compete. The Times may be examined at its office or at public libraries free of charge.

6. Sales slips from all cash, C. O. D. or charge account purchases made from Times advertisers are eligible. Sales slips for purchases made on credit or by note plan purchase are also eligible.

Where no immediate sales slips are given with time payment or note plan purchase ask store to acknowledge your purchase on file letterhead and send this in to The Times the same as a sales slip. No matter what you have bought so long as the purchase was made from a Times advertiser, your sales slip or other evidence of purchase is acceptable throughout the sales slip contest.

7. Contestants may enter one or any number of sales slips (accompanied by brief statements) each and every day throughout the sales slip contest.

8. Any one or any number of individuals may send in and enter all their sales slips obtained through purchases they have already made from Times advertisers, and credit them to some charitable, church, Sunday school, hospital or other worthy institution.

In this case, be certain to sign the sales slip and attach a statement of the complete acceptance of all the conditions and regulations as printed in the Times. Originality and brevity will count, but no elaborate treatment is necessary. Simply state the facts.

9. Each entry in the sales slip contest must be sent to The Sales Slip Editor, The Times by first-class mail, fully postpaid. Entries with insufficient postage will not be accepted, but returned by the post-office department.

10. The Times can not, and does not assume responsibility for returning sales slips to any contestant. All sales slips entered in the sales slip contest become the property of The Times. Sales slips which have no personal value to contestants should not be entered.

11. The first day's prize winners will be announced the day after the start of the contest and following this, daily prize winners will be announced each day at the close of the contest. Final prize winners will be announced a few days after the close of the contest.

12. The decisions of the sales slip contest judges on the merits of the brief statements submitted, telling why one or more sales slips should be lucky and the final disposition of awards, will be absolutely final. The entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all the conditions and regulations as printed in the Times. Originality and brevity will count, but no elaborate treatment is necessary. Simply state the facts.

Here's What You Do

1. Save the sales slips that you get with any purchase made from any Times advertiser. When you make a purchase, ask salesperson if that store's sales slip is eligible in The Indianapolis Times Sales Slip Contest.

BLACKMER SURE TO FACE TRIAL IF HE RETURNS

Congress Members Will Oppose Compromise on U. S. Charges.

By Scripps-Hoover Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, May 31.—When and if Henry M. Blackmer, self-exiled Colorado oil man, forsakes his residence in a Paris hotel to return to his home in Denver, he will be confronted with implacable opposition in congress against any compromise of the six criminal indictments for alleged income tax fraud facing him in Denver.

Blackmer may beat the Denver indictments, but that senate leaders prominent in the Teapot Dome exposure would castigate the legal authorities if they consented to dismiss the Colorado indictments is well known to the justice department.

Tempting Offer Made
It generally is understood that Blackmer made a tempting offer to the government to be relieved of all his embarrassments, civil and criminal.

The effort failed, except in the case of his civil liabilities which were compromised at the staggering figure of $3,700,000.

But on his fine of $60,000 for contempt, because of failure to appear as a witness in the Fall and Sinclair trials, Blackmer had to pay the full penalty.

Attention is being given to the present status of Blackmer's affairs in the senate, where Albert B. Fall and his associates in the Teapot Dome scandals met their nemesis in the committee on public lands.

Gerald P. Nye, youthful progressive Republican from North Dakota, still heads that body. Thomas J. Walsh (Dem., Mont.), veteran inquisitor, still is a member of the committee.

Senators Are Adamant
"He must remain an expatriate," said Walsh, quietly but firmly, today. "If Blackmer wishes to return to America, now that he has discharged all his other obligations, he must stand trial. Otherwise, let him remain abroad forever."

The same attitude is expressed by Nye.

Quite as adamant in his attitude is Chairman George W. Norris of the judiciary committee.

"Let him stay abroad, as Benedict Arnold had to stay," said Norris. "He has been a traitor, like Arnold, to his own government."
