

Nutrition Is Subject for Child Study

Nutrition and better homes was to be the theme today of the second day of the Winona Lake Child Health Institute. The session opened at 8:30 this morning with the examination of babies and preschool children.

Mrs. Charlotte Schweitzer Burford, Indiana State Teachers' college dean, presided this morning. On the program was J. L. Barton, instructor in agriculture and the Future Farmers' Club, who presented a paper, "A Child's Garden and Its Vitamins." It was demonstrated by Miss Priscilla M. Warr and home economics girls of Warsaw.

Frank C. Wilson, director of the milk laboratory of the state board of health, Dr. Fred R. Patterson of the State Dental Association, of Decatur, and Miss Aneta Beadle, extension division of Purdue university were included on the morning program.

An open forum on Indiana home ideals and housing laws opened at 1, with Miss Lella Gaddis of Purdue university as the presiding officer.

Mrs. Paul T. Hurt, chairman of the American home department of the Indianapolis Women's Department Club, spoke on Indiana housing laws.

Others speaking during this period were Lewis S. Finch, sanitary engineer of the state board of health; Mrs. Erna Brown Christy, director of home economics of Muncie city schools; Miss Mary Beaman of Ball State Teachers college and Miss Ivah Rhyman of the Indiana State Teachers college.

At 3:30 meetings adjourned for trip to summer camps Croesley and Lucerne.

At 7:45 tonight a film will be presented, entitled "The Garden of Childhood."

Advisers for the day were E. J. Barker, secretary of the state board of agriculture; A. E. Wert, housing division of the state board of health; Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon of Evansville; Mrs. Felix T. McWhirter, state Better Homes secretary; Mrs. J. W. Moore, member of the advisory council American Better Homes; Miss Agnes Watson, state supervisor of home economics education, and Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, home and community chairman of the American farm bureau.

SIMPLE, SMART FOR OFFICE
The one-sided rever neckline gives it a smart, tailored appearance and is slimming besides.
The skirt lines are especially likeable, with the faithful panel effect that gives the figure graceful height. Inverted plaits provide necessary fullness to the hem.

For the office, a cool print in crepe silk is most economical choice. Navy and white or an orange-red and white is decidedly youthful. The rever collar may be made of plain crepe to tone with print or of white pique.

Style No. 512 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material, with 1/2 yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Our summer Fashion Magazine will help you economize. Price of book 10 cents.

Price of pattern 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap conl carefully.

LONDON SOCIETY WOMAN FIGHTS DEATH IN NOOSE

wrote to Stephen was addressed "My Darling Baby." It said in part:

"I feel like suicide when you are angry. Sometimes when you are feeling furious, do try to think of the hell I have had to endure with J. B."

"Are J. B. the initials of Mrs. Barney's husband?" Sir Patrick Hastings, defense counsel, asked.

"Yes," Inspector Winter replied.

Mrs. Barney, in a low voice, testified she became very devoted to Stephen and kept him "almost entirely." She wished to marry him, she said.

Jealous of Her Lover

She testified her husband had "behaved very unkindly to me," and was often physically violent. She was unable to get a divorce for lack of the grounds required in England.

She told how she once fired a shot from a window after Stephen left, pretending to have committed suicide so he would come back.

"He used to go out and gamble with a woman," she said.

The chances of saving Mrs. Barney from the gallows rested chiefly with Sir Patrick Hastings, chief defense counsel.

He contended at the first hearing that his client was in too "crazy a state of mind" to have invented her version of the shooting.

She contended that she and Stephen struggled for a revolver, which was discharged.

Stephen, she said, went into a bedroom saying weakly, "fetch a doctor," and she did not realize the extent of his injuries.

Collapses in Court

Dr. Durrant, summoned by Mrs. Barney by phone with the message, "come at once, there has been a terrible accident," furnished the chief testimony for the opening of the prosecution's case, Monday.

Mrs. Barney collapsed when he described how he found Stephens' body, in evening clothes, on the floor, and how Mrs. Barney had kissed the dead man and cried hysterically.

The prosecution built up its case against Mrs. Barney from the time detectives from Scotland Yard arrived at her Williams Mews flat, known to the "bright young things" as "Gaiety cottage," at 5 on the morning of Memorial day. They found Stephen lying dead on the floor with Mrs. Barney sobbing hysterically over the body.

CONTRACT BRIDGE as the EXPERTS PLAY IT

BY W. S. M'KENNEY
Secretary American Bridge League

I OFTEN wonder if even the good player at contract isn't inclined at times to give too much information to his opponents during the bidding. Take for example the following hand.

The Bidding
South the dealer passes. The six-card spade suit headed by ace-king is not strong enough for an original bid—it requires at least a side king.

West would pass and now North has two biddable five-card suits; therefore, the higher ranking suit should be bid first and his opening bid is one diamond. East passes and South then bids one spade.

This, of course, is a one-over-one and North must bid again. Now it is up to North—he knows that his partner does not have two and one-half trick tricks, therefore it does not look as though there is a possible slam for that even a game can be made in a minor suit.

If North now shows his clubs, undoubtedly South will rebid his spades, because with North being void in spades, he feels that South probably has six of them, and then North will be forced to bid no trump.

So why give the opponents the information—regarding your clubs? There is a possibility that you may get that suit opened, therefore North should conceal this strength after his partner has bid one spade and jump right into three no trump.

The Play
When North has not bid clubs, East's natural opening is his fourth best club—the five-spot, which is won by North with the nine.

It is necessary for North to get a reading on the hand, so he leads the ace of clubs and finds that East held a five-card club suit. West discards a spade.

Declarer's next play is the ace of diamonds, followed by a small diamond, upon which East drops a spade. Then ten from dummy forces West's queen.

It is quite apparent to West that North has no spades.

He further knows that to lead a diamond will establish North's diamonds for him, therefore, West leads to weakness in dummy, returning his fourth best heart—the five.

The declarer, by the rule of eleven, knows East holds only one heart higher than the five, so finesses the nine, which East wins with the ace.

East does not want to lead into the ten-ace in clubs—nor does he want to grant the declarer a spade trick, so he returns his heart, which the declarer wins with the queen and now plays the jack of diamonds, East discarding a spade.

West wins with the king of diamond and returns the jack of hearts, North winning with the king. The two good diamonds are cashed and East is forced to discard his two spades. This leaves him with the queen, ten and seven of clubs, while the declarer holds the king, jack and three of clubs.

All that the declarer must do now is to lead the three of clubs, which East wins with the seven and he is forced to lead into the declarer's king-jack.

This position play allowed the declarer to make his contract of three no trump.

AKRON ORDERED TO SEARCH FOR MISSING YACHT

Boat With Six Aboard Is Long Overdue, in Race to Bermuda.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Uncle Sam's giant dirigible Akron was ordered today to search for the yacht Curlew, missing since June 25, with six persons aboard.

More than 100 ships have been seeking the white ketch, which disappeared during the 628-mile yacht race from Montauk Point to Bermuda.

Fear was felt in shipping and yachting circles that the trim vessel, encountering bad weather, may have foundered, with all hands.

The Akron was to leave the naval air station at Yachurst, N. J., today and will fly in circles along the coast taken by the missing craft. The vessel had an auxiliary motor, but damage to masts and motor easily might occur in bad weather, leaving the vessel to float helplessly if it did not founder.

Commander A. H. Dressell will be in command of the Akron.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 5.—Vigilant watch was kept today for the ketch Curlew, with a crew of six, overdue on the race from Long Island to Bermuda.

The last of the other boats, the Spanish Rose, docked today. It was becalmed for long periods and reached here from the unexpected

DE VOE KNOWS WHAT TO PUT INTO SONGS

The Donatellas Would Have Grandma in the Act If She Was Not Playing Baseball, But the Rest Are Present.

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN
It seems to me that Frank De Voe knows exactly what to put into a song and knows exactly what to keep out.

De Voe has had years of experience on the stage and he has remembered many lessons.

This season Frank has a rapid moving routine of songs and conversation.

He has the speed of Rae Samuels and the comedy approach of Gene Greene. All three of these artists know how to make direct contact with the audience the second they walk out on the stage. The result is that De Voe is the hit of the Lyric bill this week. There is no doubt about that because he stopped the show when I was present. And many of his songs are old and some of the others are not entirely strangers.

De Voe knows how to sell every article of song and comedy. In other words he is a mighty clever showman.

The Three Donatella Brothers and their sister, Carmen, have a splendid instrumental and dance routine. Carmen is a fine acrobatic dancer. The accordion work of the brothers is also fine.

When the act is ended, Carmen brings her father on the stage and he plays the Shepherd's horn. Then she brings her mother on the direction of the southwest, with gasoline exhausted.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 5.—Eighteen persons were rescued from the grounded yacht Virginia, off Long Island today, after drifting in the fog without food since Sunday.

The yacht was chartered Saturday to take the party to Santa Cruz island. The party became lost in the fog Saturday and ran out of fuel. All day Sunday and Monday the craft drifted helplessly until it grounded on a reef.

HOOVER ASKS $120,000 FOR RELIEF BOARD

Sends Special Message to Congress, Urgently Pleading for Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—President Hoover today sent a special message to congress urgently requesting an appropriation of $120,000 to continue the work of his organization on unemployment relief headed by Walter S. Gifford.

"The appropriation requested for continuance of this organization is infinitesimal in its ratio to the large resources which are put at the command of those in distress," the President's message said, "and that also relieves burdens upon municipalities, states and the federal government."

"This organization is the only agency for national co-ordinating and stimulation for the multitude of voluntary efforts and a clearing to these thousands of organizations with suggestions and methods for the alleviation of unemployment and distress."

"Should this organization be discontinued not only would it be important functions of stimulation of private giving and co-ordination be destroyed, but there would be grave danger of national, state, and local volunteer groups concluding that services such as they have rendered are no longer necessary."

The President declared that demobilization of his unemployment relief organization "might easily promote widespread confusion and bring great hardships where the work is needed."
