

Vote League Organizes on Legislation

An emergency executive committee to act between meetings of the legislative steering committee of the Indiana League of Women Voters was appointed Thursday at the meeting of the executive board at the Columbia Club.

This committee, composed of Mrs. S. N. Campbell, Mrs. Warren K. Mannon, Mrs. Walter S. Greenough and Miss Florence K. Kirlin, will follow progress of bills introduced in the special session of the general assembly.

Indianapolis was chosen as the location of the meeting of a legislative institute to be held the middle of November. At this time problems confronting the regular session of the assembly in January and the legislative program of the league will be discussed.

Mrs. Mannon, chairman of the steering committee, reported on the activities of that group. Mrs. T. J. Loudon of Bloomington, state chairman of the general legislative committee, and Miss Kirlin, executive secretary, gave reports.

Mrs. Richard E. Edwards of Peru discussed the Winona Lake child welfare institute, now convening. Mrs. Edwards spoke at the all-club day session Wednesday.

Charm and Dash Galore Shown in Hollywood Play Clothes

By NEA Service

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 8.—When the last scene has been shot and Hollywood faces the sun instead of the camera, she doesn't sacrifice any of her style.

The stars are going outdoors in costumes that are every bit as striking and glamorous as those that they wear when they are pretending they are somebody else.

There is a certain debonair charm and dash about their play clothes that give plenty of room for action without hampering their style in the least.

Estelle Taylor knows that dark hair and eyes say twice as much when they have a bright color to add a lively sports touch.

She lounges around the beach, or sits on the deck in brief black trunks that are topped by a huge handkerchief that fastens around her neck.

Lines that are so simple they are almost severe are Irene Dunne's choice for golf clothes. She goes around very effectively in white sports skirt, worn with a dark sweater that is belted, and a knitted beret that matches, looking quite like any co-ed might on any campus.

There is a little more drama to the beach togs that are preferred by Betty Boyd and Maxine Cantway.

Betty wears a glorified pair of pajamas which have a long slit in the right trouser that doesn't interfere with any race she may enter along the western beaches.

There is a dot so huge and so gay that it would be too startling for anything but a pair of pajamas. The suit, made with a bodice effect, has rolled straps of material that catch and wind their way across her shoulders.

She carries Debbie, her dog, as a necessary finishing touch.

Betty Boyd goes twice as far when she swims away from the camera, whenever she wears her brief, gay suit that fits in a bright, tight manner.

It is a two-piece affair with dark trunks and a striped waist that forgets about sleeves, and ties around the neck in such way that it doesn't interfere with any sun-tan plans that her shoulders may have.

The famous Brown Derby restaurant in Hollywood is getting used to the sports costumes. Shirley Gray knows the effectiveness of simple white sports dresses that gain a touch of mystery by using high necks, short sleeves and no ornamentation, except a belt.

She wears white pumps, a white beret and gloves and carries a white pocketbook. Caryl Lincoln has a pair of white slacks fashioned from yachting cloth, which she combines with a sweater shirt, in which the stripes go around in circles.

A white beret and beach bag are her only accessories.

Claudette Colbert has more of her usual number of tricks up her sleeves in her new street dress that follows a jumper style.

The voluminous sleeves that droop intriguingly are caught at the wrists, and a scarf ties itself with a chic of its own at her throat.

The blouse is spattered with small polka dots and the jumper is dark. A small felt hat completes the ensemble, adding an autumn note.

NAME CITY WOMAN
NATIONAL TRUSTEE

Mrs. Lura Lee Whitesell, local member of the Delta Theta Tau sorority, was chosen as a member of the board of trustees, appointed at the national convention held recently at Troutdale in the Pines, Evergreen, Col.

Other members of the board which will act as an advisory group are Mrs. Eileen Miller of Dayton, O., and Miss Mildred Lawrence of Detroit.

THREE-IN-ONE HAT
IS WORN ON BEACH

The new three-in-one hat starts with just a wide brim of fabric... stitched linen or cotton generally. And this you wear on the beach... crownless. It made your eyes but give the top of your hair a sun-kissed glow.

Second, you button on the jersey crown that comes with it and you have a street hat.

Third, leave off the brim and your jersey crown becomes a smart fabric turban.

FACULTY WILL BE
GUESTS AT PARTY

Dean and Mrs. J. W. Putnam, 327 Buckingham drive, will entertain members of the summer school faculty of Butler university with a garden party at their home Saturday night.

House Party Slated

Mrs. Joe Swope, 5767 Central avenue; Mrs. Roger Smith, Mrs. Clarence Zinn, Mrs. Charles V. Castle, Mrs. Charles G. Binkley, Mrs. Howard McClure and Mrs. George A. Stafford, all of Indianapolis, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Dunn of Louisville and Mrs. Archie Erhart of Anderson, will be guests at a house party to be given by Mrs. Frank Levinson next week at her summer cottage on Lake Wawasee.

Girl Scouts to Study

By Times Special

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., July 8.—A training course for young women who desire to be Girl Scout leaders will be held at Indiana university one week, beginning Monday. The instructor will be Miss Helen Everett, a representative of the national Girl Scout organization, New York.

Hold Swimming Party

A swimming party was to be held this afternoon by the Alpha chapter of the Pi Sigma Tau sorority for guests. The guest of honor was to be Miss Jessie Dorman, who returned recently from California. The sorority held a pajama party Thursday night.

Official Olympic Shoe

Mercury shines on the side are the decoration of the official Olympic parade shoe. It's a spectator sports pump, of ribbed fabric with pigskin tip, foxing, collar and wing applique. Right now you'll see it in white, but later it will make its appearance in fall colors.

Senate Likes White Sports Shoes

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, July 8.—Page the United States senate if you want a nation-wide slant on what the well-turned-out man is wearing. That's what we did. Looked 'em all over as they balanced the budget to see what shoes they were wearing.

We noticed that for a warm day when light sports clothes have the floor, lots of them like all-white shoes.

Hiram Johnson of California, for instance, was wearing the new white buck shoes with soles and heels varnished black. With plain toe and saddle, they made a mighty smart combination with his white linen suit.

And we've counted thousands of these same shoes tramping the boardwalks of smart resorts.

Connecticut's senator, Hiram Bingham, had white-shod feet, too... in wing tip brogues of buckskin with heavy perforations.

And Senator Fess of Ohio had stepped into a white buck version of the regular business shoe. All white, with welt tip.

Wisconsin, New York, Louisiana, Kansas and Maryland supported black-and-white, according to Bob La Follette Jr., Royal Copeland. Huey Long, Arthur Capper and Millard Tydings.

Alabama's Bankhead, Idaho's Borah, and New Hampshire's Moses went strong for brown-and-white. Ham Lewis of Illinois has had to live up to a more-than-well-dressed reputation ever since he appeared in a tattersall vest. He did it this time in the swank new brown buck shoes.

And when they're dressing for active sports, lots of men like a complete change from the wing and welt tip types of shoes. So they pick black-and-white or brown-and-white moccasins.

Of course after you've fixed on the kind of shoes you want, your next thought is the right socks to go with them. We have a bulletin telling you all about them. Send the coupon for it.
