

'IRON JACK' GETS HUGE BALLOT IN OKLAHOMA RACE

Ousted Governor Leads for Corporation Commission; 'Will' Rogers Wins.

By GEORGE B. ROSCOE
United Press Staff Correspondent

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 27.—J. C. (Iron Jack) Walton, ousted as Governor by impeachment proceedings in the turbulent days of the Ku-Klux Klan ascendancy in Oklahoma, forged into the lead today in his vindication race in the state runoff primary election.

Walton had a lead of almost 2,000 votes over A. S. J. Shaw for the Democratic nomination for the key position on the corporation commission. Fewer than 900 precincts remained to be tabulated.

Shaw, who was favored to win in pre-election predictions, did not yet concede defeat.

"Will" Rogers Is Victor

The victory of Will Rogers, the Moore schoolmaster, was the biggest upset in the primary. Rogers, who bears the name of the famous humorist but is no relation to him, took the lead early in the tabulation of returns in the race with Mabel Bassett, state charities commissioner, for the nomination for Democratic congressman-at-large and increased his strength as additional counties reported.

Senator Elmer Thomas won a smashing victory for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, defeating Homer Smith, Oklahoma city attorney, by approximately two to one.

Wirt Franklin, veteran independent oil tariff advocate, apparently was assured of the Republican nomination for senator and the right to meet Senator Thomas in the November general election.

Murray's Success in Doubt

The question whether Governor William H. (Alfalfa) Bill Murray had succeeded in obtaining nomination of legislative candidates favorable to him still is in doubt.

The militant Governor stumped the state for candidates he favored, openly predicting that an "unfriendly" legislature might attempt to impeach him next January, if the people did not back him up.

In six strategic races for nominations for state senator, the Murray candidates tasted both victory and defeat.

Tabulations today gave:

For corporation commissioner, Democratic, 2,522 precincts of 3,310; Walton, 193,721; Shaw, 193,775. Republican, 1,494 precincts of 3,310; Johnston, 18,900; Walker, 14,938. For United States senator, Democratic, 2,740 precincts of 3,310; Smith, 148,496. For congressman-at-large, Democratic, 2,740 precincts of 3,310; Rogers, 253,601; Bassett, 131,996.

WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE FROM 'KEPT HUSBAND'

'Women Support Men in Indiana,' She Charges Her Mate Said.

"Men in Indiana don't work; their wives support them."

At least, that is what Harriet Graham's husband told her, she alleges in her complaint asking annulment of her marriage and damages of $175, in a suit filed today in superior court five.

The husband, James D. Graham, 3513 East Twenty-fifth street, is a native of Missouri, where they were married in June. When he proposed, he said he was a building contractor and that they would live on a farm in New York state, the complaint charges.

The wife supplied $110 from her $800 life savings for the purchase of a trailer and to pay difference in trade-in value of Graham's old car for a new one, according to the complaint, but the trip ended in Indianapolis.

'KINGFISH' TO CAMPAIGN FOR WIDOW CARAWAY

Huey Long Will Make Whirlwind Drive for Arkansas Votes.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Not content merely with making a roving senate speech in behalf of the candidacy of Senator Hattie W. Caraway for re-election, Senator Huey Long (Dem., La.) will stump Arkansas for Mrs. Thaddeus H. Caraway during the week before the primary election on Aug. 9.

The flamboyant, swashbuckling orator from New Orleans and the black-clad "kingfish" from Arkansas, sit side by side in the back row of the chamber. Now they are planning to campaign side by side in the hectic primary fight in Arkansas, and it is a foregone conclusion that the six male rivals of Mrs. Caraway will know they have been in a fight before Huey Long gets through.

The Louisiana champion plans to make two dozen speeches, and Mrs. Caraway will appear on the platform with him on many of these occasions.

They will form a campaign team the like of which never before has been seen in the United States.

Pet Saves Lad

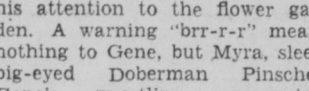

Gene Boldman, 3-year-old, was saved by his dog, Myra, when he was about to be run over by a car.

Tired of wrestling around the backyard of his Dayton, O., home, 3-year-old Gene Boldman turned his attention to the flower garden. A warning "brr-r-r" meant nothing to Gene, but Myra, sleek, big-eyed Doberman Pinscher, Gene's wrestling companion, sprang to the alert, hackles a-bristle, teeth bared.

A three-button, 27-inch rattlesnake struck at the boy, but Myra leaped in time. When Gene's screams brought his mother, the rattler was dying and Gene was unharmed.

Myra, twice bitten, was given serum and is recovering. Boy and dog hero are shown above.

'THEY TELL ME'

WITH apparent utter disregard of political consequences, or the platform pledge adopted at the recent state convention of their party, Republican members of the house of representatives with only two exceptions, are on record against repealing the Wright bone dry law.

Thus they tossed a hot coal into the laps of their G. O. P. brethren in the senate.

The house Republicans did not even leave themselves an out by splitting their vote, and by the speeches branded the repeal bill as Democratic.

By such action the G. O. P. house generals perhaps thought they would gain for their party the dry support. That group was theirs without any need for further bait. The fact that Hoover heads the ticket is enough to win the prohibitionists.

HANDS IN COURT PAY SLASH BILL

Walsman Introduces Measure to Cut Judges' Wages.

Reduction of salaries of the Marion county judges and fixing of maximum salaries of superior and juvenile court reporters, bailiffs and pages are provided in bills introduced in the Indiana house of representatives Tuesday by Representative Albert Walsman (Dem.), Indianapolis.

Under provisions of the bills, the circuit court judge would be paid $3,800 by the county and $4,200 by the state, a total salary of $8,000 a year. At present, the county pays $5,800 and the state $4,200, totaling $10,000.

Judge Harry O. Chamberlin, incumbent, recently voluntarily pared his salary from $10,000 to $7,500.

Huey Long (Dem., La.) will stump Arkansas for Mrs. Thaddeus H. Caraway during the week before the primary election on Aug. 9.

CHAIN BOY LIKE DOG

Father Charged with Tying Son, 8, in Yard.

By United Press

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—Police charged today that Stanley Wamurski strapped a dog collar around the neck of his 8-year-old son and chained him up in the backyard in the same manner as he would a pet collie.

They rescued the child, and arrested the father.

The boy, Stanley Jr., was exhausted and weeping bitterly when rescued. A heavy link which locked the collar around his neck had to be broken with an ax. He said his father had kept him chained to a rocking chair in the yard for three days.

"Pop, wasn't so bad," he said, "but when he lost his job he started drinking a lot, and beating and chaining me."

LIFE BREATHED INTO BILL FOR JOBLESS RELIEF

House Revives Measure to Pay Families Maximum of $10 a Week.

After two "deaths" the Weiss-E. C. White bill providing for unemployment relief today again had been revived in the house of representatives.

The measure would pay unemployed families a maximum of $10 weekly, the funds to be derived from a 10 cent stamp tax on documents requiring notarial seals.

Last week it was brought out of committee and an amendment for a 1 cent cigarette tax was killed and one of the authors, Jacob Weiss (Dem.), Indianapolis, only saved the bill from death by having it recommitted to the committee on rights and privileges.

This committee returned it Tuesday, without recommendation, and, on motion of Representative John D. T. Bold (Dem.), Evansville, the bill was postponed indefinitely by a vote of 59 to 28.

The Tuesday afternoon session of the committee had been held on motion of Representative John D. T. Bold (Dem.), Evansville, the bill was postponed indefinitely by a vote of 59 to 28.

The measure was joined by Delph McKesson of Plymouth, Democratic floor leader, and the bill again is alive, but no one can say for how long.

Pentathlon Chief Event in Ancient Greek Games

Pentathletes of ancient Greece about to enter the famous five-part contest. From an ancient painting.

Jumpers Carried Weights in Old Olympics to Add Distance.

ALTHOUGH the pentathlon contest of modern Olympic games does not receive the greatest amount of attention among the various events, this five-part feature was the leading young man's contest of the ancient Greek Olympics.

The athlete who emerged the winner in the jumping, discus throwing, javelin throwing, wrestling and running of the pentathlon was considered the best in general development, even if he were surpassed by others in any one of the individual events.

The pentathlon so is named because it is a five-part contest, "pent" being Greek for "five." It is not one of the oldest of Greek contests, as the five events in combination seem to have been introduced into the Olympics after they had been organized formally although the individual events date back to Homer and earlier.

It seems probable that in the jumping portion of the pentathlon, the ancient Greek pentathletes surpassed the records of modern Olympic jumpers. But the long jumps probably were made with the use of weights, carried by jumpers to allow them to jump farther.

These jumping weights, of lead, stone and iron, are found by archaeologists in Greek and Roman ruins, and their use is explained by vase paintings, mosaics, wall paintings and statues.

The present Olympic running broad jump record is 25 feet 4 inches, made in 1928, but in 1852 an English athlete jumped 29 feet, 7 inches with the help of five-pound weights.

WALTER HAMPDEN TO VISIT THIS CITY

Great Star to Present "Cyrano," "Hamlet" and "Capon-sacchi" on Two Trips to English's Next Season.

BY WALTER D. HICKMAN

ON Walter Hampden's own authority I am able to state today that Hampden will present "Cyrano de Bergerac" matinee and night on Wednesday, Oct. 19. He will return on Feb. 23 for two days, presenting "Capon-sacchi" and "Hamlet."

Some years ago when Hampden was presenting "Cyrano" at the Shubert in Cincinnati, Nelson Trowbridge took me backstage and I pleaded that Indianapolis be included in his tour.

Many personal letters were exchanged between the great star and myself. And now I am delighted to state that Hampden will visit Indianapolis.

S. M. Weller, personal representative of Mr. Hampden, sends me the following data:

Walter Hampden is preparing for the longest tour he has undertaken since he became an actor-manager. Using his three great successes, "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Hamlet," and "Capon-sacchi," he plans a season of thirty-five weeks which will take him from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., and from Duluth, Minn., to San Antonio, Tex., with all important cities between included in the itinerary.

"Capon-sacchi" and "Hamlet" will be used in the far west and south in the cities where Mr. Hampden appeared for the first time in "Cyrano de Bergerac" last season, while "Cyrano" will be presented east of the Mississippi river in cities that never have seen this thrilling play, with return engagements in Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago and other centers in which the Rostand heroic comedy was played to tremendous business last winter.

The "Cyrano" tour will end with a four weeks' engagement in New York, just before Mr. Hampden starts for the Pacific coast, via the southwest, with "Capon-sacchi" and "Hamlet" the last week in January.

Mr. Hampden is moved to this extensive activity by the great success of his last season's tour in "Cyrano." The capacity audiences which greeted him throughout the country were ample proof that the "road" is not only not dead, as surmised, but not even sleeping.

To make a financially successful tour in depressed times, with an organization as large as to require a special train of seven cars speaks volumes both for the potency of the attraction and the eagerness of drama lovers all over the land for the spoken plays of which they have been deprived so long.

As usual, Mr. Hampden will take his complete metropolitan productions with him—a company of seventeen for "Cyrano," and a company of fifty for "Capon-sacchi" and "Hamlet," all so-called supernumeraries being carried as well as principals.

Indianapolis will see Mr. Hampden in all three plays next season. He will present "Cyrano" at the English theater for a matinee and night on Wednesday, Oct. 19, and "Capon-sacchi" and "Hamlet" for a matinee and two nights on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 23-24.
