

REFUGEE GATES OPENED WIDE FOR VETERANS

Disability Allowance Is Given for Defects Dating From Birth.

Major developments have taken place in the veterans' relief situation since Talcott Powell wrote a series of stories for The Times several months ago. They are expected to have important bearings on the government's future policy.

To explain these developments and their probable effects, Powell has written a series of three more stories of which this is the second.

BY TALCOTT POWELL
Times Staff Writer

Veterans suffering from cross-eyes, near-sightedness, far-sightedness, inferiority complexes, and defects they have had from birth have been added to the pension pay roll as eligible for disability allowance.

This form of compensation permits a former soldier of the World war to receive from $12 to $40 a month for permanent disability received in civilian life years after the armistice.

A veteran run over by a taxicab today or contracting tuberculosis next week is eligible for this compensation, just as though his disability had resulted from the hardships of war. The only requirement is that he shall have paid no income tax in the year previous to his injury.

This form of veterans' relief is mounting most rapidly, both in cost and number of cases.

400,000 on Pay Roll

There now are more than 400,000 men on this pay roll. The United States had a total casualty list of 327,883 individuals wounded and dead from all causes during the conflict.

There are fewer than 350,000 men and women veterans being compensated for disabilities directly connected with their war service under the most liberal interpretation of what really constitutes service-connected disability.

In February, 1931, there were 115,246 veterans getting these disability allowances, at a cost of $3,234,714 a month. The following February the figures had mounted to 353,744 men, costing $6,613,541 a month.

On June 1 last there were 396,000 individuals on this pay roll at a monthly cost not yet made public by the veterans' administration. The figures still are soaring.

The provisions of this disability allowance law further were liberalized by the veterans' administration when on May 16 last, Administrative Regulation 2006 became effective.

Gates Are Opened

This regulation stated:

"Eye defects resulting from myopia (short sight), strabismus (cross-eyes), presbyopia (far sight), diplopia (double sight) producing defects of visual acuity uncorrectable to 20-40 by proper lenses hereafter will be regarded as disability, for disability allowance purposes, though not resulting from disease or injury."

"Similarly, in proper cases, mental deficiency and constitutional psychopathic inferiority may be regarded as disability, for disability allowance purposes, though not resulting from disease or injury."

"Disability allowance also may be based upon defects other than the above, even though of congenital origin, if there is convincing evidence of reduction in ability to earn a support."

The regulation adds that pensions shall be paid only when these disabilities exist in a pronounced form. Experts point out that the possibilities in this regulation are enormous.

Easy for Veterans

The average age of a World war veteran today is 40. As the ex-soldiers grow older, eye defects will grow more numerous and more serious. Constitutional psychopathic inferiority is one of the common concomitants of criminality.

Giving pensions for congenital defects—disabilities which existed at birth—means simply that men are receiving taxpayers' money for something which happened long before anybody even knew there was going to be a World war.

There is nothing in the law to indicate that such was the intent of congress when it passed the Disability Allowance Act in 1930.

Watch Out for Two of These

Here's the fourth group of photos to appear in The Times-Circle theater $3,000 Vacation Contest. We think you'll have to be rather careful with two of these. However, the "stickers" in this group that we are speaking of, might not even be "stickers" at all, if you occasionally read the movie magazines.

The stars in question are enjoying an amazing amount of publicity at present, so much so that their ascent from featured stars to stardom may be by an exceedingly short cut.

Here's another little hint to those working for a prize in this contest. Watch your spelling, because there are tricks in some of the names that might prove costly. Now read the rules elsewhere in this edition.

Traveler Paints Russia as 'Land of No Worry'

But Communism Has No Use for Loafers, Says Hiker Visitor.

"Land of no worries" is the description of Russia under Soviet rule given by John Lavich, world hiker and socialist-at-large, who left Indianapolis today for St. Louis.

Lavich, who arrived here Monday from Columbus, O., spent considerable time in Russia, but becoming disgusted with Communism for what he terms its dictatorial policy, started a hike around the world to gather material for books he intends to write.

A Russian has no cause for worry, Lavich explained, because he is assured of employment and being cared for in sickness and old age. If he contracts an unhappy marriage, neither the law nor pressure of social usage prevents him from ending the union.

Doesn't Make Loafers

Communism does not make loafers, according to Lavich. A Russian workman who fails to perform his full share, loses his union ticket and, automatically, his job. Under such circumstances, existence almost is impossible.

He asserts the charge that Russia spreads Communist propaganda is false, holding the nation has no interests outside its own borders.

Whatever propaganda is spread in the work of The Third International, in which Russia holds membership, Lavich asserts, adding that "unfortunately the headquarters of the Third National are in Moscow."

No Restriction on Art

There is no restriction on art in the Soviet regime, Lavich continued, except that an individual must not be placed in the limelight, but the workers, as a whole, honored.

Lavich was born in Russia but came to America when he was 8. He worked as a miner in Alaska and made a trip to Australia. On his return, he engaged in social welfare work at Chicago, being associated with Jane Addams, founder of Hull House. He is a graduate of Northwestern university.

Central and South America will be visited by Lavich next winter.

DRIVERS MUST PAY FINES, CITY JUDGE DECIDES

Ownership of Car Proof of Financial Standing, Rules Cameron.

In addition to possession of licenses and gasoline, operation of an automobile in the city now requires $11 in ready cash, according to policy adopted by Municipal Judge Clifton R. Cameron in handling traffic ordinance violation cases Monday.

Cameron's attitude in several cases was that possession and operation of an automobile is proof of ability to pay fines assessed in court.

After scathing lectures in answer to pleas of poverty, Cameron suspended one fine and extended time of payment for two other violators.

Makes Plea in Court

Charles Dawson, 1218 N. La Salle street, charged with failure to stop at a preferential street, was fined $1 and costs. After a consultation with the bailiff he again appeared before the bench with the plea he only had $10.

"Your honor, I have been out of work for three years," Dawson said. "My mother is sick and I was on my way home to prepare her dinner when I was arrested. I never have been in court before. When I came down here, I took $10 of my mother's money in case I was fined."

"But you have an automobile," Cameron stated.

For a few minutes it appeared that the recent case of a man committed to fourteen hours in jail for lack of 30 cents to complete payment of his fine would be duplicated. Cameron relented, however, and suspended the fine, after a lecture.

Speeders Are Warned

Giving his trade as a carpenter, Oscar Baker, 632 Warren avenue, fined $12 and costs, a total of $22, for speeding, told the court the gasoline used by him was purchased by a friend. The automobile was used in his work, he said. He was given three months in which to pay the fine.

Three months' probation was given Norman Ford, 713 East Vermont street, who was fined $1 and costs.

"People who have money for automobiles can't expect to break the law and then come into this court expecting leniency because they haven't money to pay," Cameron stated. "It's been too easy for some of these fellows. A few days in jail and they might change their minds about some things."

GEN. COXEY REFUSED HELP BY SHIPSTEAD

Farmer-Labor Party in Minnesota Ignores His Candidacy.

By Scripps-Hoover Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—"General" Jacob S. Coxe, who will campaign for the presidency on the Farmer-Labor ticket without the support of Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, the senate's only Farmer-Labor member.

Shipstead made this clear today when he learned of the eleven-day, 2,000-mile campaign through the west planned by the 78-year-old mayor of Massillon, O., who in 1894 led his famous "army" to Washington.

"I'm mighty careful whom I underwrite," said Shipstead, in response to a question about his support in the coming presidential battle. His statement summed up the attitude of his party, which in the past has avoided alliances with weak and abortive third party movements in the northwest.

MILLS BROTHERS TO OPEN HERE FRIDAY

Richard Dix Is Said to Reach New Acting Heights in "Roar of the Dragon," Booked at Circle.

FOR one week starting Friday, the Circle theater offers on its stage, in person, the Mills Brothers, sensations of the radio. On the screen with this stage attraction, Richard Dix will appear in his newest and one of his greatest hits, "Roar of the Dragon."

The Mills Brothers are unquestionably the most unique of entertainers. There are but four of them and yet, without the aid of any musical instrument whatever excepting for one guitar, these youngsters perfectly simulate such musical instruments as the French horn, tuba, clarinet and trumpet so that even expert musicians have been fooled.

During their extensive radio engagements thousands of letters and telephone calls demanded to know if they really were getting such musical effects without the aid of instruments.

Such skepticism is only natural for they can simulate an entire orchestra to such a remarkable degree that when one watches them in the theater it is only necessary to close the eyes to believe that an orchestra is occupying the stage instead of just four singers.

At their appearances here next week the Mills Brothers will offer a varied program of popular numbers selected from the most popular of their repertoire as well as introducing some new numbers.

In "Roar of the Dragon," Richard Dix is said to achieve even greater heights than he did in "Cimarron." "The Lost Squadron" and other of his most outstanding productions. As a leading lady in this thrilling pack drama, Dix has Gwili Andre, young Danish actress who even before the release of her first picture, Tall, slender, and with a striking blonde beauty, Miss Andre is a perfect foil for Dix in this spirited film.

Edward Everett Horton, Zasu Pitts, Arline Judge and Dudley Diggs have important roles in this picture directed by Wesley Ruggles. The remainder of the program will consist of short reels and a Paramount News Weekly.

BOSS RULE BIG ISSUE IN MISSOURI PRIMARY

Kansas City Democrat Chief Is Fighting to Be Dictator.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Voters of Missouri will decide in the primary election today whether the "Show Me" state will elect a Governor, United States senator and congressional delegation, hand-picked by Tom Pendergast, veteran Democratic boss of Kansas City.

Pendergast's efforts to obtain complete control of state politics has precipitated one of the most bitter conflicts in years, especially as the thirteen winners of the Democratic nominations to congress must run at large.

Pendergast's candidate for Governor is Francis Wilson, and his senatorial favorite is Charles Howell. Wilson is opposed by Senator Russell Dean.

The senatorial race is a three-cornered fight. Charles M. Hay, Democratic progressive, is giving Howell a hard fight, and Bennett Clark, son of the late Champ Clark, once Speaker of the house, is rolling up strength in the closing hours.

ONCE-FAMOUS SONG WRITER DIES DERELICT

'Looking at World Through Rose Colored Glasses' Made Fortune.

By United Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Tommie Maile, who wrote the song, "Looking at the World Through Rose-Colored Glasses," and then spent most of his life in flophouses so dismal that the rosiest of glasses wouldn't have helped, died in the charity ward of the county hospital Monday.

Even while he died at 35 from a complication of ailments, friends of his happier days were searching for him in North Clark street hobo centers.

They had collected a generous fund, made arrangements for his care in a sanitarium far from Chicago.

After Tommie had written that, and the money began flowing to him in an apparently endless stream, he wrote "Highways Are Happy Ways," which added to his wealth.

Other popular songs followed in quick succession, including "Jealous" and "Stars Are the Windows of Heaven."

He was worth approximately $100,000, said his friends, and then his money went for his head.

He married a pretty Chicago cabaret entertainer.

The bright lights of Randolph street, and the ornate speakies on the near north side began to see much of him.

Things didn't stay rosy long. Tommie's wife left him.

At his money went for fancy automobiles, ornate wardrobes and liquor. Soon Tommie found that he was a derelict.
