DRAMA TO RULE DURING TRIAL OF JIMMY WALKER

'Terrier' Mayor to Clash With 'Bulldog' Prober Before Roosevelt.

BY SIDNEY B. WHIPPLE
United Press Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The ninety-sixth burgomaster of New York, the Hon. James J. Walker, will go on trial next Thursday before Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in what promises to be the most dramatic political struggle since the impeachment of former Governor Suiter of New York.

It will bring together two dominant personalities, but they are personalities as far apart in physical appearance and mental operation as the poles.

Walker—With the humorous, twinkling eye, a master of sartorial display, "looking like the other half of a vaudeville team," with a keen, rapid wit, and an appeal that makes him loved by the masses.

Seabury—Judge Samuel Seabury, as distinguished in appearance as a solemn lord high justice, ruddy-cheeked like an English squire, silver-haired, aristocratic, a man "above nonsense," dogged, penetrating in his sarcasm, unanswered by wise-cracks, won by the sweep of unthinking emotion.

Terrier Against Bulldog

It is the terrier against the bulldog, the rapiers against the war mace.

There is no denying the appeal for the ordinary man that Mayor Jimmy Walker contains in his slender body. But while his appeal is to the heart, the appeal of Samuel Seabury is to the brain. Again, this will be a battle of instinct against emotion.

It also will be a battle between two schools of political thought. Those who know Jimmy Walker best say he is indignant that any man, most of all Seabury, should impugn his political dealings.

If he has favored his friends, bowed to Tammany, "played the political game," it has been because, in his conception, is "the right thing to do." He can not understand why any man even should stand back on a friend.

Two Schools of Thought

To Jimmy Walker's mind, political leaders are leaders because the people have put them there, and they have the right of political leaders so long as they do not betray their friends.

To Seabury, however, a political leader, however popular, is a leader only so long as he deserves leadership by unimpeachable public conduct, and if he must betray a friendship to do what he terms "the right thing," the friendship must go.

Thus Seabury can not understand Walker. Nor can Walker understand Seabury.

As reference between these two men will stand a Governor who, regardless of his decision, stands to lose and gain much—and probably to lose more than he can gain.

Crisis for Roosevelt

If he decides to retain Walker, he will offend many of his own party in the south and west, to whom the name "Tammany" is anathema, and he will at the same time alienate many Republicans who might be expected, under present conditions, to support him.

Whatever happens, therefore, there is human drama in this situation. And a lot of it.

Tumulty Lauds War Debt Stand by Borah

By Scripts-Howard Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Joseph P. Tumulty, President Wilson's close friend and secretary for years, today lauded the courage of Senator William Borah (Rep., Idaho), chairman of the foreign relations committee, in his stand on the war debts.

In a statement to Scripts-Howard newspapers, Tumulty said the issue far transcends party lines and assumes world proportions.

Until war debts, armaments and tariffs are revised on a sane basis fair to all, America included, he said, prosperity never can return.

Disaster hovers around the corner, said the nationally known Democrat in his praise of the equally well-known Republican, unless politics and petty prejudices are brushed aside and Senator Borah's advice is taken.

Tumulty said: "Every person who holds the welfare of humanity close to his heart gained refreshment and renewal from the debt cancellation speech of Senator Borah.

"All praise should go to former Governor Al Smith of New York and Senator Borah for their courage in pointing the way. This question will continue to harass and distract the people of the world and hold in check the underlying forces of prosperity until an adjustment, fair alike to America and the world, is reached.

"Now is the opportune moment for public men who have the time to speak out and show the they are willing to risk a little to help save a sorely distraught world from cancellation of these debts. We can, however, make a previous use of these debts to bring the world to a basis of real disarmament and sanity in the matter of tariff.

"Let us strike boldly at this bleeding sore of world unrest and check, if possible, the spread of its poisonous infection."

KLINCK WAITS ON JUDGE NOW

Court Turns Tables on Former Kluxer.

The law waited several hours last week for a prisoner; today the prisoner waited for the law.

As a result, Earl Klinck, once active in the Ku-Klux Klan, has not yet been sentenced to a term of one to three years in the state prison for testifying in a false affidavit.

Klinck appeared today in criminal court, but Thomas E. Garvin, judge pro tem, could not be found. The prisoner was returned to the county jail.

After being the object of a statewide search for several hours, Klinck surrendered Friday morning and was remanded to jail, with instructions to appear today for sentencing.

Originally, he was to have been sentenced Wednesday, but the court was informed he was in a hospital in Brazil suffering from injuries received in an automobile accident.
