STILL HOLD "FORT"

City Family Defies Eviction

HERE they are, and here they stay, despite protests, constables and police.

And so the family of James Evans, including his wife and six children, ranging from 2 to 12, today are holding their castle at 826 Coffee street.

Having been evicted more than a half-dozen times in the last year or so, the threats of constables to put them out again for nonpayment of rent has not affected the family this time.

"There has been some mixup with the landlord and the rental agent," Mrs. Evans said. "The offer of a house up the street still stands, but we won't move until there is a definite understanding with the owner of the other house."

NEIGHBORS said that recently when a constable sought to evict the family, neighbors and several unemployed men replaced the furniture as fast as it was put on the sidewalk. The family's case came to attention of the safety board Tuesday when Chief Mike Morrissey said he would not aid in evictions. "The police have been out here and have been nice to us," Mrs. Evans said. "There has been no trouble, but we won't move until we know about that other house. We can't pay the rent and we have to have a roof over our heads. They can put the furniture in the street if they want to."

Girl 'Bum' Is Freed; Heads for the 'Rods'

"I started for the coast, and I'm gonna get there. When you turn me loose, I'm headin' fer another box car."

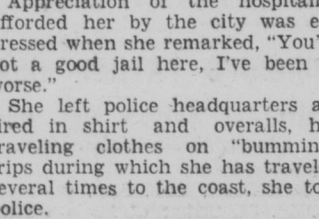

That was the way Geraldine Davis, 21-year-old girl from the West Virginia mountains, explained her plans to a policeman Tuesday, following her release in municipal court on a vagrancy charge.

In her pocket she carried her entire financial outlay—$1 given her by Sol C. Bodner, judge pro tem.

Geraldine, whose age is estimated by police as nearer 17 than the majority she claims, was arrested July 27 after a railroad detective aroused her from slumber on a bed of steel rails in a box car.

Appreciation of the hospitality afforded her by the city was expressed when she remarked, "You've got a good jail here, I've been in worse."

She left police headquarters attired in shirt and overalls, her traveling clothes on "bumming" trips during which she has traveled several times to the coast, she told police.

Their Advice Broke Up His Home, Collector Charges in Suit.

Marriage proved too expensive for Floyd B. Parker, 40, of 1002 North Beville avenue, collector, he charged Tuesday in a suit demanding $40,000 damages from his wife's parents for breaking up his home.

A happy married life with his wife, Eloise, 23, ended, the suit alleges, when Eloise began to "take advice from her father and mother." Parker charges Mr. and Mrs. Christian Amacher, 609 North Emerson avenue, his wife's parents, encouraged her to join "sororities, clubs he couldn't afford."

"This was done, he declares, despite his providing many luxuries for his wife."

The suit in superior court two states Parker provided "a fine home for her," but when it was necessary for him to move to Cleveland, to take a job, his wife refused to go with him.

Mrs. Parker's parents are charged with advising their daughter "they would see she enjoyed luxuries if she left her husband."

The couple was married Feb. 27, 1931.

Parker went to Cleveland and did not learn that he had been sued for divorce in superior court three until he returned to this city, his attorney, Sidney Horn, said today.

The divorce petition still is pending.

FRONT PAGE IS BIG 'ISSUE' TO OUR STATESMEN

Political Dog Days Here Again; Everybody Is in the Squabble.

By Scripps-Haward Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Republican resentment against Governor Roosevelt's alleged effort to steal the front pages from President Hoover has convinced the old-timers that political dog days are here.

When Roosevelt first set Thursday as the day for hearing Mayor James J. Walker answer charges against him, only a few columnists noted that it might take the spotlight from Hoover's acceptance address.

But now, the Republican elders are affronted deeply by the coincidence.

If such it was, and Senator L. J. Dickinson, keynoter at Chicago, spent at least $3 to send a denunciatory telegram to Albany, Hoover's personal friends also take it as deliberate affront.

Every spokesman seems to forget that this is ancient procedure. It is recalled that Hoover laid himself open to the same suspicion two years ago.

Tables Turned on Cal

Calvin Coolidge came to the capital to attend the signing of the Kellogg pact at noon, and gave a delightful interview to the press later in the day.

Hoover, however, supplied even more sensational news with an evening announcement that, pending the outcome of the London disarmament conference, he would suspend construction of several cruisers.

As the President's secretary handed out the statement to reporters, he said, with a wink: "Well, I guess that will keep Mr. Coolidge from stealing the front page from us."

But there are other episodes indicating the politicians are losing—or forgetting—a sense of humor.

Roosevelts Are Active

The Republican Roosevelt, for instance, are taking pains to let the country know they still think the Democrats' candidate a "maverick," as "Young Teddy" dubbed him in 1920.

But some folks in the backwoods section seem to think he is the hero of San Juan. And, lest the Roosevelt name roll up to many Democratic votes, the widow of "the" Roosevelt will attend Hoover's notification, and the son, governor-general of the Philippines, will return to this country to take part in the campaign. That is, provided he does not heed the resolution of Philippine provincial governments to stay on the job, where he is popular.

"If our information is correct, this percentage is equalled by only one other city in the country."

He leaves his widow and a son George, the latter a resident of Texas.

He became a member of the department in 1899, was retired on pension in 1928.

PENALTY FOR FRIGHT DEATH GOES UNPAID

Man Called Responsible by Coroner Has Sentences for Deeds Suspended.

Fright death of Robert Brake, 75, of 2524 College avenue, brought no punishment to the man declared responsible by Dr. John A. Saib, deputy coroner.

The aged man, said to have been threatened by Benjamin H. Rynearson, 34, a suitor of his daughter, died Monday night of heart disease, after fleeing to the home of a neighbor.

Rynearson, arraigned Tuesday before Municipal Judge Clifton R. Cameron on four charges, was given suspended sentences on two, and two others were dismissed. The court denied a request of Dr. Saib that Rynearson be held under $1,000 bond.

On a charge of drunkenness, Rynearson was fined $10 and costs with a thirty-day jail term, but the judgment was suspended and he was placed on probation. He was fined $1 for resisting an officer, judgment being withheld, and charges of disorderly conduct and vagrancy were dismissed.

One Smoker tells Another

IT is perfectly natural for smokers to talk to each other about what they smoke and why they smoke a certain brand. Tastes differ, and therefore different people smoke different kinds of cigarettes. Those who smoke CHESTERFIELDS seem to take more pride in telling other smokers — "that CHESTERFIELDS are milder; that there is no harshness — no bitterness." They also tell them — "that CHESTERFIELDS taste better: that they have a pleasing aroma." . . . CHESTERFIELDS are clicking with millions.
