Three deaths in week-end traffic accidents brought the 1932 toll in Marion county to fifty-nine. The dead are:

Mrs. Alice Marie Heiler, wife of Captain O. F. Heiler of the Indiana naval militia.

Clarence S. Wikoff, 42, of 3727 North Capitol avenue, Liberty party candidate for United States senator.

Fred McCullough of Anderson.

Fatal injuries were incurred early Sunday by Mrs. Heiler when the car she was driving collided with one driven by Morris L. Brown, 21, of 3106 Washington boulevard, on Kessler boulevard, near a Crow's Nest.

Her home was on R. R. A. near New Augusta.

Brown and his occupants escaped injury. With him were Miss Phoebe Emerson, 21, of 3177 North Pennsylvania street; Miss Lillian Young, 20, of 4353 North Pennsylvania street, and Arthur Cox Jr., 21, of 3161 Washington boulevard.

At the time of the accident, Captain Heiler was in command of the U. S. S. Hawk, cruising on Lake Michigan. He was informed of the tragedy by Major H. Weir Cook, who flew to Benton Harbor, Mich., where the Hawk docked. Captain Heiler returned with him.

Mr. Wikoff, injured when struck by an automobile while walking at Sixteenth street and Central avenue, died three hours later. The automobile was driven by the Rev. Cyril J. Conau, 24, of 317 North New Jersey street, who was released on his own recognizance.

The victim was a graduate of Drake university with a doctor of divinity degree. He leaves his widow and two children, residing in Wichita, Kan.

Less than two hours after being injured in an automobile in which he was riding collided with a street car, Fred McCullough died at city hospital. Charles Stewart, 33, of 2146 Randolph street, also in the automobile, incurred cuts.

The street car was operated by Ralph Woodward, 32, of 6049 Dewey avenue. The accident occurred in the 2100 block South Meridian street.

DISCOVER RUINS OF OLD ROMAN CASTLE

Fortification Stood on Shores Where Jesus Taught People.

JERUSALEM, Aug. 29.—Ruins of a Roman castle that once looked out on Lake Genesareth, on whose shores Jesus taught the people and wrought miracles, have been excavated by Dr. A. E. Mader, a Jerusalem archaeologist.

Whether the fortification stood in apostolic times, however, is doubtful. Dr. Mader inclines to the opinion that it is not earlier than about the end of the first century.

The mound of rubbish and stumps of protruding wall have been known for centuries, and pious legends have held that this was the site of Capernaum, "Jesus' town," or Bethesda, the home of several of the apostles. For this reason, several digs had been undertaken previously, but had yielded nothing new.

Dr. Mader's excavation carried the history of the place back to the time of either Trajan or Hadrian as first builder. Their reigns extended from 98 to 138 A. D. The place was rebuilt by the Byzantine emperor Justinian I in the fifth century, and destroyed by Persians or Arabs in the seventh.

LOVE SURVIVES BRICK

Negress and Mate Won't Separate Over Little Battle.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 29.—A little thing like a thrown pavement brick and a resulting scarp on her husband's head isn't going to separate Mamie Roper and her hubby.

Mamie, a Negress, and her hubby were haled into city court to explain her brick-tossing actions.

"Aw, I don't know, judge," she said. "I just hit him with it 'n' he broke his head."

The first Negro to hold public office in the United States was Ebenezer Don Carlos Bassett, of Philadelphia, who was made consul-general to Haiti by President Grant in 1869.

FARM STRIKERS MEAN BUSINESS

Husky Iowans in Deadly Earnest as They Block Roads

This is the first story in a series of four by Bruce Catton, staff writer for NEA Service and The Times, who was sent to the Midwest corn belt to find out what the "farm strike" is all about.

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Writer

SILOUS CITY, Ia., Aug. 29.—

Along the trunk highways leading into this busy agricultural market there lounge groups of men in blue denim—husky, purposeful, deeply tanned men, who tilt soiled felt hats over their eyes when the sun is high and swing their brawny arms indolently as they saunter from one cluster of shade trees to another.

They are the men in the front line trenches of Iowa's famous "farmers' strike"—the men who have enforced an almost complete stoppage of the movement of farm produce to the market in the hope of lifting the corn belt out of the depression.

They are good-natured, but they mean business. Every truck that approaches gets stopped. Big telephone poles and heavy planks with long spikes set at two-inch intervals are ready to be tossed out on the pavement in front of any car that will not stop.

When a truck is stopped, the men look in it to see if it contains any farm produce. If it does not, it is allowed to proceed. If it does, it goes back where it came from.

When no trucks are coming the men lounge about, talk, smoke, make jokes.

One young giant amuses himself by cracking a twenty-foot blacksnake whip so that it makes a report like a pistol. When an outsider appears among them, they become suddenly silent.

To find out why they are there you should not ask them. Instead you should go about among the farms outside of Sioux City.

There, talking to the men who are going broke telling what is some of the finest farming soil in America, you get an understanding of the driving force back of this strike.

FARMERS of the corn belt are in the strike to stick to the finish, declares Milo Reno, the fiery, energetic president of the National Farmers' Holiday Association and stormy petrel of the Iowa corn belt for more than a decade. For ten years he was president of the Iowa Farmers' Union.

Reno, who organized the farm strike, traveling hundreds of miles and addressing countless mass meetings to bring militant groups of farmers into activity, declares bluntly:

"We propose to fix a price for farm products upon the American standard of living, and we insist that the farmer refuse to deliver for less."

"Values must and will be determined by the labor required to produce, instead of by a manipulated and fluctuating dollar."

"We propose to stop the confiscation of our farm homes by criminal deflation. We propose to save our farm homes for our boys and girls instead of forcing them in to the industrial areas to swell the army of unemployed."

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 29.—Many a small boy will stand in awe of Louis Gehring. A week after being sentenced to drink a half-pint of castor oil for being intoxicated, Gehring was back before the judge on the same charge.

This time he was handed a suspended sentence of thirty days in the workhouse, his release ending Gehring's tenth appearance before the bars of justice on an intoxication charge.

Ranch Hand Does Good Deed, and Animal Pays With Bite.

Earhood, after being treated at a hospital, was for several days unable to sit down.

OFFICIAL BROWN DERBY BALLOT

To the Editor of The Times:

THE farm strike, Reno declares, is not the result of the waste of any food, and is not operating to cause any hardship to unemployed people in the cities.

Such perishable goods as milk, eggs and the like which are being held off the market are being distributed free to the poor in the corn belt cities.

Garden truck, including such fresh vegetables, does not come under the provisions of the blockade. Livestock and other produce that is being held back can wait for a better market without wastage.

Reno insists that the farm strike is not the sudden outgrowth of unexpected adversity. Instead, he says, it stems back through more than a decade of agricultural distress and disappointment.

"Every promise made to agriculture in the last twelve years remains unfulfilled," he asserts. Seventy-five per cent of the farm values have been destroyed by and in the interests of the money lords.

IN organizing the strike at Sioux City, Reno, showed a good deal of strategic ability.

Sioux City already had a "milk war" before the farm strike began. The milk producers were getting approximately a dollar a hundredweight for their milk, and they said that twice that sum would be no more than a fair price.

A boycott on the Sioux City market was established, and Reno immediately leaped into action and coupled the general farm strike to it.

The milk strike was immensely popular among farmers in the Sioux City territory, and thus the general farm strike got an impetus that it would not otherwise have received.

And once it got started, the idea took hold, so that the farm strike has a whole overshadowed the milk strike. Now the farm strike goes on independent of the milk strike, which has been settled by a compromise price agreement between the milk producers and the milk buyers.

IF you want a closeup story of what the strike is all about, go back to the farms off the main highways and talk to the horny-handed farmers in stained overalls and floppy straw hats.

I talked with several such men in their barn yards and one of them gave me a clear, forceful explanation of the meaning of the strike.

"The deflation of 1921 is the real background of the whole thing," he said. "The losses caused by the low prices of that period caused a good deal of suffering, and nothing ever was done to prevent that agricultural depression from continuing and getting worse."

"As a result, the agricultural people, especially in the western part of the country, have had everything taken away."

"This applies to tenants, owners—every one. We're not bankrupt yet, but we know where it's all leading to."

"The farmers are fearless because they know they have nothing to lose. They can't go on as they are any longer."

Often nowadays a farm doesn't produce enough of an income to pay the taxes. And the meaning of what's being done now may be more far-reaching than any one can see at the present time."

"But I do know enough about economics to know that there are only two ways to raise the price of any given commodity."

"You either must increase the amount of money in circulation or decrease the amount of that commodity that reaches the market."

"There has been no apparent reason to increase the amount of money. Anyway, it's a deep-seated thing to change the monetary system, and it can't be done in a short time. So we're trying the other way."

"Who's at the head of this movement? No one. Go to any of these picket lines and ask who's in charge and you'll find out."

"There's no head, because everybody feels exactly the same way about it. Everybody's thinking the same thing."

"And don't think those boys out on the picket lines aren't in earnest. They are. Look at them—see if you can find one who hasn't got a forearm too thick to grasp with your thumb and fingers."

"These boys are used to pitching hay, and they haven't got their muscles for nothing."

Next: A visit to the farmers' picket lines at night and what it disclosed. . . what the men say and what they think of their crusade for higher farm prices.

PLANT 50,000 TROUT

Waters in Jasper National Park Are Well Stocked.

JASPER, Alberta, Aug. 29.—With the planting of nearly 50,000 Kamloops trout in Ananyst lake in the Tonquin valley area of Jasper national park this summer, the third major lake in the park has been stocked with game fish and in less than three years this playground—largest in the world—will be unrivaled as a fishing area.

Maligne and Medicine lakes, stocked with eastern brook trout in 1928, have provided extraordinary fishing this year.

BOTTLE SURPLUS TO HIKE

Farm Prices, Is Plea

Senator Says U. S. Can Halt Agricultural Strikers.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The farmers' strike in the west can be stopped if the federal government will take the steps necessary to keep farm surpluses off the market, in the opinion of Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem., Okla.).

"If this year's crops can command this year's market," said Thomas, "prices will rise and the farmers will call off their strike."

In an effort to bring this about, Thomas sent a written request to directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation that they approve loan applications of farm co-operatives to enable them to bottle up their surpluses until this year's crops are marketed.

"Farmers strike in the west in spreading to south and east," Thomas wired President Miller, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and other members of the R. F. C. "Strike is result of neither program nor promise for their relief."

"Farmers can not pay taxes nor interest, nor even exist on 30-cent wheat, 20-cent corn, 8-cent oats, and 5-cent cotton."

VON PAPEN FOR ONE-YEAR PLAN FOR RECOVERY

German Chancellor Flays Hitler as 'Unfitted for Leadership.'

BY FREDERICK KUH
United Press Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, Aug. 29.—The republic of Germany, seething with political strife, entered a critical week today with the government of Franz Von Papen urging a "one-year plan for economic recovery" which it hoped would help it rule Germany against all opposition.

The chancellor struck out unexpectedly Sunday at Adolf Hitler and his strong Fascist party, declaring that the mustache-tipped Nazi chieftain is "unfitted for leadership of the state."

Von Papen, speaking before a group of Westphalian farmers in the town hall of Muenster with his words broadcast, denounced Hitler's attitude toward the recent death penalties imposed on five of his storm troopers, convicted of political terrorism, as "nothing short of 'licentious.'"

Today there was no doubt that when the new reichstag convenes Tuesday, it will be dissolved by presidential decree the moment a hostile movement toward the government is made.

It is certain that the reichstag will attempt to sweep Von Papen from power with a vote of misconfidence.

A dissolved reichstag means at least three more months of power for the Von Papen cabinet.

Chancellor Von Papen, in representing his program for economic recovery, made it clear that his government, by instituting a vigorous campaign for rehabilitation, expects the German people to maintain his cabinet in power.

Private capitalism, he said, is better than any other economic system and will be supported and encouraged by the government.
