

Best Poster to Be Sought in Contest

Co-operating with the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the Indiana Federation will sponsor this fall, for the third consecutive year, a poster contest to obtain an official poster for National Business Women's week, which will be observed in March.

The contest will be open to 1,350 clubs in communities throughout the country, to students in art schools, high schools and colleges, and to those who have had specific training in art. None under 15 years old may enter.

State Prize Is Offered

The Indiana Federation is offering a prize of $5 to the winner, while the national prize will be $50. There are seventy-six clubs in the state group, all of which are expected to conduct local contests.

The state contest will close Oct. 21. Judges will be appointed by Mrs. Adah O. Frost, Indianapolis, state president.

A poster is sought which will emphasize the contributions made by the business or professional woman to present-day progress. This will be in keeping with the theme of national business women's week.

Contest Ends Nov. 10

The national contest will close Nov. 10, when winners in state contests will be judged in New York City. Announcement of the national winner will be made in the December issue of the Independent Woman, official magazine of the national federation, along with a photograph of the prize-winning poster.

Harriet Bass Jenner, Evansville, director of publicity for the state federation, has made announcement of the contest to the Indiana clubs.

KATHLEEN HOTTEL

WILL BE HONORED

Miss Kathleen Hottel, who will be married to William Weaver Perin, Sept. 5, will be honored at a linen shower and bridge party to be given tonight by Mrs. Chester C. Ridge at the Lumlley tea room. Guests with Miss Hottel will be her mother, Mrs. Milton B. Hottel, and: Mesdames W. J. Curran, Louis Hottel, Lee H. Hottel, Russell B. Hottel, J. D. Sparks, Frank Langenkamp Jr., Ralph Busch, Allan L. Sparks, Robert Armer, Charles Price and W. C. Bugz of Plainfield and Misses Hildago and Margaret Carroll, Margaret Holdaway, Edith Reed, Mary Catherine Dyer, Grace Buckler and Helen Curran.

NEWS OF SOCIETY FOLK

Miss Betty Hadley and Don Hadley, 3117 Guilford avenue, have returned from a visit to The Lakes, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Katherine Rish, who accompanied them, will return early in September.

Mr. and Mrs. William Low Rice, 5164 North Capitol avenue, have gone to Detroit for a short visit. Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Stille, 2960 Guilford avenue, will return this week from a trip in the east.

Dr. John J. Diller and Dr. Mabel Diller, 3272 Fall Creek boulevard, have returned from a week's stay at Davenport, Ia., where they did post-graduate work at the Palmer school of Chiropractic.

Mrs. Carrie Koff of Evansville will arrive Tuesday for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Coogan, 1235 Central avenue.

Miss Carolyn Madden is the guest of the Misses Catherine McManus and Catherine Taney of Greensburg.

Misses Barbara and Louise Wilde are visiting their aunt, Mrs. L. E. Fritsch at Evansville.

Dr. and Mrs. Norman Beatty, 3234 North Jersey street, are home after a visit with Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Vermillion at Greencastle.

Miss Elizabeth Preston, 3529 Central avenue, will return this week from California.

Miss Hildred Helfert who has been visiting Miss Florence Tomlinson of Plymouth, a college roommate, has gone to Chicago before visiting relatives at northern Wisconsin lakes.

Miss Beulah Tindler, 1417 West Twenty-seventh street, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Griffith at Connersville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Raffensperger and son, William Raffensperger, 4240 Washington boulevard, spent the week-end at Lake Wawasee.

Miss Albert J. Beveridge and Miss Abby Beveridge, 1164 Washington boulevard, are at their summer home in Beverly Farms, Mass.

Indianapolis residents registered last week at the Edgewater Beach hotel in Chicago were Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Mooney, 4480 North Meridian street, and Mrs. Paul H. Roach, 3702 North Illinois street.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Rankin, 2651 North Delaware street, have returned from Bloomington, where Mr. Rankin completed work at Indiana university for his master's degree. They have as their guest Miss Ruth Rankin, Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Binkley, 5446 North Pennsylvania street, are motoring through Canada.

Miss Maxine Rigbee, 4002 North New Jersey street, is visiting in Sheridan with relatives.

Miss Mabelle Sherman, 21 Meridian place, returned Sunday from a trip in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Levinson, 5639 North Meridian street, have returned from Lake Wawasee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hueber, 4325 College avenue, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Moody of Gary.

Daily Recipe

APPLE FLOAT

Peel and slice six tart apples and cook them in barely enough water to cover. When they are tender put them through a colander, then stir in enough sugar to sweeten, also the grated rind and juice of half a lemon and a skimpy dusting of nutmeg.

When cold, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs, then put the dish on ice until meal time. Serve with whipped cream.

Four Slipper Types March in Latest Fashion Parade

BY JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

Parents Will Entertain at Bridal Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan S. Ratliff will entertain tonight at their home, 2327 Broadway, with a bridal dinner in honor of their daughter, Miss Helen Ratliff and Lloyd A. Jackson, who will be married Wednesday at the First Evangelical church.

The centerpiece of the serving table will be wedding bells and a miniature bride in white.

Roses and delphinium in the bridal colors of peach and blue will be used in the decoration.

Places of the guests will be marked by corsages and boutonnières of roses and delphinium.

Guests besides members of the bridal party will be Dr. and Mrs. Waldo Stein, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newby, and Mesdames Emma Pfafflin, Anna Newby and Fern Gerber.

The bridal party will be Mrs. Wilbur Phillips, matron of honor; Misses Helen Thompson and Dolly Burk, bridesmaids; Messrs. Melvin Robbins, best man, and Martin Cochran, Gilbert Morrison and Robert Newby, ushers.

Mr. Jackson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jackson, 334 North Colorado avenue.

BY JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

If you want to keep your place in the fashion parade, the four pairs of slippers sketched here will make the step easier. They are fashioned from the newest materials and designed according to the latest patterns.

Every pair has an intricate decorative touch that lends it a trifle more fascination.

At the left is a romantic white sandal, flowered in alluring bits of silver, which is attractive enough to make any one keep it to any music. It is trimmed with tiny strips of green satin piped with gold.

The large amount of openwork shows off the new cowbeauty stockings. A gown of the same material, whose description has been cabled straight from Paris, makes the slipper appear twice as alluring.

Next to the silver-patterned slipper is a white crepe de chine pump that is charming for tea and cocktails. The shoe, which is hand-made, is trimmed with gold and thin strips of red satin.

The dress which it matches is red and white.

AN afternoon shoe of kid comes in wine-red, gray, brown, or black. This shoe, next in place to the red and white one, is trimmed by clever inserts of the same color of the kid; in suede.

The strap, placed high, adds grace to the line of the slipper. It should be worn with the new afternoon dress that features the high neck, low waistline, and pleats.

For street you will need a slipper especially designed for walking. Shopping will be twice as interesting if you are wearing these pumps, at the end of the shoe row.

Lizard applique winds up in a circle to decorate one side of each pump. The other side, from vamp to heel, is solid lizard. The street costume shown with the shoes is beige trimmed in brown Kolinsky.

lem, I am glad to share his letter with our readers.

Dear Jane Jordan—I think that you dismissed one of life's real tragedies in your letter. "Books, plays, and life" is a tragedy. The boy is the one I recognize as the tragic figure, because when I was 18 I played the part of the bashful boy who is a romantic as she describes, and just as she no doubt will tell you that she is a more demonstrative lover.

Now if a girl realizes that it is the boy who will get up at 5 o'clock in the morning to play tennis with her who will let her say what she pleases, and who will cry baby if she is not with him, and who will have her charms that he is willing to worship from afar off who is the more in love with her?

That the boy whom she inspires to talk about "books, plays, and life" is not so much a fool for her to fall in love with that another fellow who starts out with various other pretenses, but always in love with her?

Now if this affair has the potentialities of one of those lovely serious/love affairs that, contrary to popular opinion, occasionally do occur outside of fiction, if the two of them are of the same religious belief, and there is no other serious barrier to their union, why did I think I am sure I know what the ending, but preferably tonight, when the stars are blinking and the moon hangs high in the sky, why did I think it is all right for boys to kiss girls? I know my answer. I should say, "Well, you have been so good to me that I am going to allow you to kiss me."

She has my word for it that from then on her love affair will proceed smoothly. And I'm sorry I can't be there to see the result. But you see I have a love affair with the girl who once gave me up for a more demonstrative lover. J. M. C.

Dear J. M. C.—You may be exactly right. It is entirely possible that the young man suffers more from timidity than from scruples. If it is timidity that holds him back, your method will work like a charm. If it is scruples that tie his hands and seal his lips, he will be highly paid and shocked.

Woman to be the aggressor in a love affair is when her partner is diffident. The modest man finds it difficult to press his own suit. He may be ever so bold in his work, but timid where women are concerned. Such a man is grateful for every bit of encouragement he receives from his girl.

He needs it to bolster his self-esteem. The girl can do all the courting so far as he is concerned. The more she loves him, the more he loves her.

If College Girl has the nerve to try this experiment, will she be kind enough to write to the column and tell our readers how she came out of it? L. T. H.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

BY JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

If you want to keep your place in the fashion parade, the four pairs of slippers sketched here will make the step easier. They are fashioned from the newest materials and designed according to the latest patterns.

Every pair has an intricate decorative touch that lends it a trifle more fascination.

At the left is a romantic white sandal, flowered in alluring bits of silver, which is attractive enough to make any one keep it to any music. It is trimmed with tiny strips of green satin piped with gold.

The large amount of openwork shows off the new cowbeauty stockings. A gown of the same material, whose description has been cabled straight from Paris, makes the slipper appear twice as alluring.

Next to the silver-patterned slipper is a white crepe de chine pump that is charming for tea and cocktails. The shoe, which is hand-made, is trimmed with gold and thin strips of red satin.

The dress which it matches is red and white.

AN afternoon shoe of kid comes in wine-red, gray, brown, or black. This shoe, next in place to the red and white one, is trimmed by clever inserts of the same color of the kid; in suede.

The strap, placed high, adds grace to the line of the slipper. It should be worn with the new afternoon dress that features the high neck, low waistline, and pleats.

For street you will need a slipper especially designed for walking. Shopping will be twice as interesting if you are wearing these pumps, at the end of the shoe row.

Lizard applique winds up in a circle to decorate one side of each pump. The other side, from vamp to heel, is solid lizard. The street costume shown with the shoes is beige trimmed in brown Kolinsky.

lem, I am glad to share his letter with our readers.

Dear Jane Jordan—I think that you dismissed one of life's real tragedies in your letter. "Books, plays, and life" is a tragedy. The boy is the one I recognize as the tragic figure, because when I was 18 I played the part of the bashful boy who is a romantic as she describes, and just as she no doubt will tell you that she is a more demonstrative lover.

Now if a girl realizes that it is the boy who will get up at 5 o'clock in the morning to play tennis with her who will let her say what she pleases, and who will cry baby if she is not with him, and who will have her charms that he is willing to worship from afar off who is the more in love with her?

That the boy whom she inspires to talk about "books, plays, and life" is not so much a fool for her to fall in love with that another fellow who starts out with various other pretenses, but always in love with her?

Now if this affair has the potentialities of one of those lovely serious/love affairs that, contrary to popular opinion, occasionally do occur outside of fiction, if the two of them are of the same religious belief, and there is no other serious barrier to their union, why did I think I am sure I know what the ending, but preferably tonight, when the stars are blinking and the moon hangs high in the sky, why did I think it is all right for boys to kiss girls? I know my answer. I should say, "Well, you have been so good to me that I am going to allow you to kiss me."

She has my word for it that from then on her love affair will proceed smoothly. And I'm sorry I can't be there to see the result. But you see I have a love affair with the girl who once gave me up for a more demonstrative lover. J. M. C.

Dear J. M. C.—You may be exactly right. It is entirely possible that the young man suffers more from timidity than from scruples. If it is timidity that holds him back, your method will work like a charm. If it is scruples that tie his hands and seal his lips, he will be highly paid and shocked.

Woman to be the aggressor in a love affair is when her partner is diffident. The modest man finds it difficult to press his own suit. He may be ever so bold in his work, but timid where women are concerned. Such a man is grateful for every bit of encouragement he receives from his girl.

He needs it to bolster his self-esteem. The girl can do all the courting so far as he is concerned. The more she loves him, the more he loves her.

If College Girl has the nerve to try this experiment, will she be kind enough to write to the column and tell our readers how she came out of it? L. T. H.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way. Do you think I should wait until she says it is all right to do this? She says I can't kiss her, but it is a feeling that I can't fight off. L. T. H.

Dear L. T. H.—It seems to me that you are 100 per cent human in your reactions to the young lady, but I would be guided by her sense of discretion. I am unable to see anything deep, dark, or sinful in kissing between people who are sincerely in love. If your young lady isn't quite sure of her own feelings, I know what you can do, except wait on her pleasure, provide by her sense of discretion. If she did this, I would suspect her of stringing me along.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have fallen in love with a girl. We were to become engaged, but she has broken it off, and now she has asked me to wait until she has decided. She says she will know more about it by then.

Should I wait, or insist on her answer now? When I kiss her, I feel some over me that makes me want to be free with my hands. I love her and don't think of it in an "ornery" way