

HIGHER WAGES DEMANDED BY LABOR'S CHIEF

Green Asks Redistribution of Swollen Fortunes to Aid Jobless.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5.—Warning that the nation faces its worst winter of unemployment, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today demanded higher wages, a greater share of wealth for the workers, "redistribution of swollen fortunes" through inheritance and gift taxes, and shorter work days and work weeks.

In his Labor day speech, delivered to the Central Labor Union, Green also attacked the sales tax and the practice of corporations of selling stock to employees who subsequently lost their jobs and had to sell the stock on a declining market.

The latter, he said, "marks a black page" in the history of industrial management.

Green called for ratification by legislators of the anti-child labor amendment, now at a standstill following its unanimous passage by congress several years ago.

No Help for Jobless

He estimated 11,400,000 are out of work and unable to get jobs, and charged that the government's aid to business, banks and corporations "has not had any perceptible effect upon the unemployment situation."

"Strive as we may," he said, "to interpret every hopeful sign in the most hopeful way, we know, with fatalistic certainty, that the nation is facing its worst winter of unemployment."

He closed his address with the optimistic note that "there are indications that the economic skies are clearing and that faith and confidence are being restored," and a plea for a remedy of "our faulty distribution system."

Assails Wage Cutting

Green outlined the federation's program, emphasizing the shorter work periods, the Davis-Kelly bill for government regulation of the coal industry, and restriction of immigration.

He reiterated his attack on wage-cutting and asserted that there will be no economic upturn until "the owners and management of industry cease their pursuit of a stupid, unwise, destructive wage-cutting policy."

TRAIN HITS TWO CARS; SEVEN ESCAPE INJURY

Both Automobiles, One Towing the Other, Become Stalled on Tracks.

Seven persons escaped injury Sunday night when a freight train struck two automobiles at the Big Four tracks and Sherman drive.

Those who had a close brush with death were Carl Egler, 38, 1933 Broadway; his wife, Mrs. Eva Egler, 37, and their daughter Norma, 3; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bibe and three children, Helen, 7; James, 4, and Marjorie, 2.

With the exception of Bibe, all were riding in a car owned by Egler's father, which was being used to tow Egler's disabled automobile to a repair shop. Bibe was steering the second car.

Wheels of the second car, which had no tires, became caught in the tracks, and both automobiles were halted. The train was too close to afford opportunity for any of the occupants to escape before the automobiles were struck.

POSTAL CLERKS CLOSE REGIONAL PARLEY HERE

Delegates From Five States Attend Convention at Antlers.

Final sessions of the annual regional conference of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks were held today in the Antlers. The conference opened Sunday night with a dinner.

Speakers at the Sunday dinner were Representative William H. Larabee, Leslie D. Clancy, master; C. H. Strauss of Indianapolis, chairman of the arrangements committee; George H. Boehm, Cincinnati, O., president of the Ohio branch; Fred D. Sullivan, Chicago, Ill., national treasurer; James O'Malley, St. Louis, Mo., chairman of the advisory board; M. R. Killmeyer, Pittsburgh, Pa., chairman of the finance board; and Thomas F. Dolan of Boston, Mass., national president and guest of honor.

Delegates from Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana attended. O. M. Stevens of Kokomo is Indiana president.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

New Roosevelt Victory Club Opens Headquarters in City.

Officers of the newly organized Roosevelt-for-President Victory Club with headquarters at Gladstone avenue and New York street, were named today.

They are: G. L. Wade, president; Mrs. Blanche Miller, secretary; and Carl Strahl, treasurer. The board of directors will be composed of a woman from each precinct in the territory of the club.

Armed Bandit Is Routed

Refusing to obey a "hands up" command, W. K. Ellington, operator of a barbecue stand on Road 31 near Southport, routed an armed bandit Saturday night. A bandit answering the same description obtained $4 a few minutes later at Small's service station on Road 29 while deputy sheriffs were investigating the first robbery.

Times Readers' Week at Hooiser Airport

Kessler Boulevard and Lafayette Road

Family Coupon

This coupon and 75 cents each is good for two, four or six regular $1.50 passenger flights at Hooiser airport.

Passengers are taken in groups of two and four.

Positively not good after date specified.

Horrors! Put on Some Clothing

Brighter Day Seen for Labor by Sen. Wagner

Senator Wagner Declares
Workers Are Entering Encouraging Period.

(Continued From Page One)

Corporation will act at once," he continued, "I am confident that by the beginning of winter we can have put two million persons back at work. And because of the increased buying and the partial restoration of confidence which will result, I believe an additional two million will be re-employed a couple of months later."

In Critical Position

As the forces of Republicans and Democrats are being mobilized for the drive that will place either Herbert Hoover or Franklin D. Roosevelt in the White House, this janitor's son who fought his way to national prominence stands out as a pivotal figure.

On Sept. 20 he faces the primary which will decide whether New York will give him the chance to return to the senate. And the New York election will, of course, affect greatly the Roosevelt cause.

Wagner is elated because so many of his ideas he has sponsored are being accepted.

A short, stocky man, he quickly impresses with his quick understanding and his outlook upon the problems confronting the United States at this critical time.

Not Afraid of Names

"Some say I'm radical and some say I'm a Socialist," he said. "I do not care. I'm not afraid of words. My belief is that government has to step in to help its people, to feed the hungry and starving and create employment for the unemployed. Some say I have tried to tear down the Constitution, but I have not."

The welfare clause in it, if rightly interpreted, takes care of that. I believe in government for the whole people and in an emergency like this they must not be overlooked. Helping the big banks and railroads is not enough.

"There must be a re-distribution of wealth, and anything I can do, I will do. It's pure bunk that the government can not enter business to help its people."

"Where there is injustice, it is the duty of the government to right that injustice, and if that involves entering business, then it must be done."

Up From the Bottom

You understand that slant when you know his story. When little more than 8 years old, he came to New York from Germany with his parents.

Poor immigrants, they settled on the East Side, where they lived in a basement and the senior Wagner worked as a janitor.

Young Robert picked up a little English, fought with the janitor's son next door, went to school and sold papers in his spare time.

An older brother got a job as a cook in a club and soon Robert was employed there as a hall boy.

A good student, he eventually was graduated from grammar school, then high school, and entered city college. There he worked his way through by tutoring and doing odd jobs, despite the frequent urging of his father to quit college and go to work.

Rises Rapidly in Politics

But he didn't quit. He graduated as valedictorian of his class and subsequently he finished at New York law school and was admitted to the bar.

Entering politics as a speaker in a campaign, he was soon elected to the assembly, then the state senate and finally Lieutenant-Governor. He declined a nomination for Governor.

His greatest ambition was realized when he was appointed to the state supreme court. He ran for the senate to help Al Smith, then running for Governor. Beating the popular Jimmy Wadsworth established him.

State Fair Sidelights

"DADDY, why don't you get one of those canes all the men are carrying?"

"Why? Why? Where do you get them, son?" retorted the wondering parent, as the 8-year-old guided him through the maze of state fair booths.

"I don't know, but the gateman had them and you ought to have one, too," was the answer, as the boy pointed out with badge of office—

"a cane."

Luckless hunters have a chance to take a mental potshot if they visit the animal and bird cages in front of the state game and fish building.

The birds and the beasts are there, with yowls and owls.

Just a little sisterly contest will be staged at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in front of the grand stand, when Mary Alice and Dorothy Kelly of Boggs-town ride for the honor of the family on their mounts, Billy and Spot.

They meet even weights and no handicap in the two-horse race.

SMACK 'em lips, newspaper men! On Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. the state fair board will give its annual press banquet to those covering the 1932 exhibition.

And the bill-of-fare mentions but one article of food and that one will suffice, CHICKEN—fried.

Disgusted with the old lawn-mower that been doing service the past summer?

Then visit the Decatur county exhibit in the agriculture building and see two grass-cutters of thirty and forty-year longevity.

The heart, that organ whose comings and goings govern love and life in this world, is getting more than its share of attention among the exhibits in the new Indiana university building.

The Bloomington school has arranged an exhibit showing the workings of a beef heart, with small panes of glass to give fair visitors the inside dope on the organ's workings.

The Grant county 4-H orchestra has a composer among its numbers. She is Olive John, 18, of Fairmount. Donald Jenkins, pianist for the group, played one of her arias, "Hawaiian Dreams," during the orchestra's radio broadcast from the WOWO fair studio Saturday.

DEATH by solitary confinement is the sentence which Miami county farmers have passed on Messrs. White Snake Root, Water Hemlock and Wild Cherry. Their crime, according to the farmers' exhibit at the state fair, is "murder, stealing, and causing serious illness" among live stock.

Among the first injured persons to report at the Red Cross building

ing the big banks and railroads is not enough.

"There must be a re-distribution of wealth, and anything I can do, I will do. It's pure bunk that the government can not enter business to help its people."

"Where there is injustice, it is the duty of the government to right that injustice, and if that involves entering business, then it must be done."

Up From the Bottom

You understand that slant when you know his story. When little more than 8 years old, he came to New York from Germany with his parents.

Poor immigrants, they settled on the East Side, where they lived in a basement and the senior Wagner worked as a janitor.

Young Robert picked up a little English, fought with the janitor's son next door, went to school and sold papers in his spare time.

An older brother got a job as a cook in a club and soon Robert was employed there as a hall boy.

A good student, he eventually was graduated from grammar school, then high school, and entered city college. There he worked his way through by tutoring and doing odd jobs, despite the frequent urging of his father to quit college and go to work.

Rises Rapidly in Politics

But he didn't quit. He graduated as valedictorian of his class and subsequently he finished at New York law school and was admitted to the bar.

Entering politics as a speaker in a campaign, he was soon elected to the assembly, then the state senate and finally Lieutenant-Governor. He declined a nomination for Governor.

His greatest ambition was realized when he was appointed to the state supreme court. He ran for the senate to help Al Smith, then running for Governor. Beating the popular Jimmy Wadsworth established him.

"Foul play at fair time" might be the title of this photo as an old-fashioned "Missus" glimpses one of the canvas beauties in the art exhibition at the Woman's building of the Indiana state fair today.

"Out" would be her verdict as you can see by the exclamation in her hands, eyes and mouth. Artists say the exhibition of paintings and sculpture is more liberal this year in mood than at former fairs.

The nudes are not so far and few between.

But the beribboned painting, by Elmer E. Taffinger, city art teacher, which causes the above horror, is said to be unfinished.

So, the only hope the "Missus" could be offered was that a paint pot and brush and palette was in the offing.

WOMAN KILLER IS SENTENCED

Mrs. Kumer Sent to State
Feeble-Minded School.

By Times Special

LIBERTY, Ind., Sept. 5.—Mrs. Nellie Burns Kumer, slayer of Mrs. Eleanor Gunsale, today began service of a 2-to-21-year term in the Ft. Wayne institution for the feeble-minded, after she pleaded guilty to manslaughter Saturday.

Rose Roscoe O'Byrne ordered her to the institution after medical examination revealed mental derangement. If her condition improves she may be returned to the Indiana woman's prison to complete the sentence.

Mrs. Kumer shot Mrs. Gunsale two weeks ago after an argument over domestic affairs. Mrs. Kumer was housekeeper at the Gunsale home.

LEGS BROKEN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Man Standing on Rear Step of Truck Hit by Car.

Fractures of his legs incurred today by Frank Haverkamp, 34, of 1503 1/2 North Illinois street, when he was struck by an automobile as he was standing on the rear step of a bakery truck he drives.

Haverkamp was on the step loading break in a basket for delivery to a grocery in the 2800 block Southeastern avenue.

Owner of the grocery, James Haverkamp, 35, of 350 Grand avenue, driving an automobile, approached the rear of the truck. He says brakes of his car failed to work, and it struck the truck, pinning Haverkamp between the two vehicles.

Haverkamp's legs were broken about five inches below the knees. Haverkamp was not arrested. Haverkamp said he did not wish to prosecute, according to police.

VETERAN GROUP ELECTS

Henry Smith Named President of 801st Aero Squadron at Parley.

Henry-Smith of Indianapolis was named president of the Eight hundred and first Aero squadron Sunday at the first annual meeting in the Washington hotel.

The squadron, made up of 135 men and fifteen pilots, adopted a resolution favoring immediate payment of the bonus, and cancellation of interest on loans.

The group sent a congratulatory telegram to Major James C. Hanley of St. Louis, Mo., a former member of the squadron, who broke the coast-to-coast flying record recently. Chicago was named the meeting place for 1933.

Seek Escaped Bank Robber

Indianapolis police today sought Gem Yarell, bank robber, who escaped from the Louisiana state penitentiary several days ago, after reports were received that his wife may be in the city. A friend of Yarell's is in Louisiana, held after he was found in possession of new clothes from an Indianapolis store.

Sues for Park Accident

A $5,000 damage suit against the management of Broad Ripple park has been filed in superior court one by William A. Walker, father of John A. Walker, 17. Young Walker, it is charged, slipped on a metal ladder while leaving the park swimming pool, suffering a broken nose and nervous shock.

EDITOR, WIFE INJURED

Hartford City Couple are Victims of Auto Crash Near Home City.

By United Press

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Sept. 5.—Jack Dolan, 34, editor of the Hartford City News, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Dolan, 33, today were recovering from injuries suffered Saturday when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another.

The accident occurred three miles south of here.

STATE PICNICS AND REUNIONS MARK HOLIDAY

40,000 Expected to Attend
Southern Indiana Fete
at Washington.

By United Press

Community programs in various sections of the state and summer-end picnics at nearly all resorts comprised Indiana's observance of Labor day.

Business activities in general were suspended. In some localities only postoffices and banks were closed, but in most cities and towns it was a complete holiday.

In Indianapolis the state fair was the center of attraction. No community celebration was planned.

The largest gathering was expected to be at Washington, where more than 40,000 were to attend the southern Indiana celebration. Ten state policemen were sent to aid local police in handling the crowd.

Speeches by labor and civic leaders, a band concert, and fireworks were on the day's program.

Landis to Speak

Thousands were expected to attend the Logansport celebration, sponsored by the Isaak Walton League at the league's farm north of Logansport. Frederick Landis, editor, was to deliver the principal address.

The day's program includes trap, rifle and pistol shooting, archery, swimming and diving events, running races, baseball pitching, and bait casting.

In Shelbyville a baseball game between New Palestine and the Shelbyville Mercantile was to feature the day's activities.

An all-day Republican rally was held in Valparaiso, at the Porter county fairground. Raymond S. Springer, gubernatorial nominee, was to be the chief speaker during the morning. A picnic dinner followed.

A band concert and athletic contest was on the afternoon schedule. The Valparaiso Pontiac and the Chesterton A. C. baseball teams were to play.

Old Settlers Gather

More than 5,000 were expected to attend Old Settlers' day celebration in Wabash. President Otto Winger of Manchester was to be the principal speaker. An old-fashioned contest was one of the main features.

The heavy holiday traffic on the Dunes highway necessitated ten state police on special duty.

The celebration in McNaughton park at Elkhart was to be the chief event in Elkhart county. The labor unions are sponsoring the program.

In Harmony park, Vincennes, crowds gathered for an all-day outdoor. Games and contests were scheduled, with prizes donated by merchants.

ARTHUR C. WELLS IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Prominent Insurance Operator's
Funeral to Be Tuesday.

Funeral services for Arthur C. Wells, 51, prominent Indianapolis insurance operator, who died Sunday in St. Vincent's hospital, will be held at 10 Tuesday at the home, 3620 Washington boulevard. Burial will be in Evansville.

Mr. Wells had been state agent for the Travelers' Life Insurance Company, retiring in October, 1931. He also had headed several other insurance companies in the twenty-seven years of his residence in Indianapolis.

Survivors are the widow, Mrs. Genevieve K. Wells; three daughters, Mrs. Jack Hendricks Jr., Patsy Wells and Barbara Wells, of Indianapolis, and a sister, Miss M. Edythe Wells, of Evansville.

800 TO GET PAY CUT
OF $60,000 A YEAR

Salaries of State Highway Commission's Employees to Be Slashed.

Salaries of 800 employees of the state highway commission will be reduced $60,000 a year under provisions of the new general salary reduction law passed by the special session of the legislature, Ralph Simpson, assistant director, announced today.

Under the formula provided by the law the pay roll will be reduced $1,069,520 to $1,009,274.59, Simpson said.

The slashes will be acted upon by the commission at the meeting Wednesday. The new pay schedule will go into effect Oct. 1.

GUNMEN ROB LAUNDRY

$500 Taken From Lux Firm After Four Locked in Room.

Menacing four persons with revolvers, two of whom obtained $500 in currency Saturday night at the Lux laundry, 5301 Winthrop avenue, after locking their victims in a rear room.

J. D. Craig, 25, bookkeeper, was checking over the day's receipts when one bandit entered and the other stood guard at the door.

Two laundry drivers, Harry Matthews, 975 Somerset avenue, and M. R. Spanon, 4935 East Fifty-second street, then were captured, as was Ralph Craig, the bookkeeper's brother, who sat in a parked car in front.

Returning several checks in the collection, the bandits fled with the $500.

BURGLARS FLEE STORE

Make Escape When Police Are Called to Ideal Furniture Company.

Burglars fled Sunday night when police answered a call to the Ideal Furniture store, 225 West Washington street.

Entry was obtained by breaking into the empty Gem theater next door and then opening a roof window.

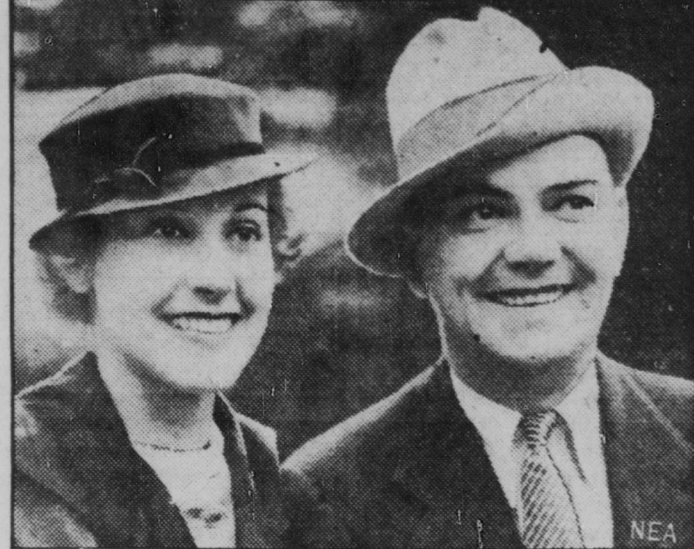

Yantis Castile Barn
Labor Day Dance

9:30 to 12:30 P. M.

Featuring Jimmy Williamson and his 12-piece novelty orchestra.

Post Road and Pendleton Pike.

Listen to Wedding Bells

Wedding bells are ringing for one of Hollywood's young movie players and Cliff Edwards, "Ukelele Ike" of the talkies and the records, Edwards was divorced a year ago. His bride will be Nancy Dover, shown above with him.

Chances Dwindle for Walker to Run Again

Hearst Threatens to Quit
Support If Playboy
Holds to Plan.

By United Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—William Randolph Hearst, only New York newspaper supporter of James J. Walker, former mayor, today warned the resigned Broadway idol that he would desert his cause if he ran for re-election in a move to punish Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for President.

The warning served to increase chances that the playboy who served as mayor of America's largest city would not be a candidate to succeed himself this fall, even though the leader of Tammany Hall announced his whole-hearted support of Walker's reported plan to run.

It was Hearst who editorially suggested that Walker resign and seek vindication with the people. His warning today, therefore, was significant in view of Walker's bitter attack on Roosevelt when he resigned.

Walker "has not strengthened himself" by his "unjustifiable attack," Hearst said. "Governor Roosevelt is more honest than shrewd, or he never would have allowed himself to be precipitated into this conflict," he said.

"Mayor Walker, according to the best belief, is not an evil person; he merely is an irresponsible one. . . . he is irresponsible in his personal behavior, which is deplorable, but apparently not unforgivable in the eyes of his fellow citizens."

Meanwhile, John F. Curry, boss of Tammany Hall, let it be known in Lenox, Mass., that he wholeheartedly is behind Walker, his reported plan to seek re-election this fall, and his bitter attack on Roosevelt.

Curry believes the rank and file of democracy in every New York City borough, except the Bronx, is with Walker. He is to return here Tuesday to confer with district leaders on their plan of battle.

If Walker goes through with his reported plan to run, and if Curry forces through his renomination, a bitter, knock-down and drag-out battle at the polls may be predicted for Nov. 8, with Roosevelt renewing an old fight with Tammany.

The prisoner, William A. Wagner, 31, of 641 South Missouri street, has been identified by three women victims, according to police.

Bernice Crist, 38 West Thirtieth street, saved her purse by struggling with a man at an alley entrance on Thirtieth street, between Illinois and Meridian.

A few minutes later Mrs. Nannie Beller, 155 West Fall Creek parkway, was robbed of a purse while walking in the 100 block, West Twenty-seventh street.

Third victim was Mrs. Rul' Bennett, 70, of 1945 North Pennsylvania street. A purse containing $15 was snatched from her grasp while she was on the sidewalk in front of her home.

As each report was made, description of the purse snatcher was broadcast and the scenes of the thefts were surrounded by squad cars, which gradually narrowed their search.

Wagner was arrested in the 1600 block North Pennsylvania street. Police say he is a former convict, having served a term for purse snatching.