

CABINET SCRAP OVER CAMPAIGN ALARMS HOOVER

Fight Over Taking Stump
Has President Tied Up in Turmoil.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Division in the cabinet is responsible for the delay of President Hoover in making known his campaign speaking plans.

Treasury Secretary Ogden Mills is urging Mr. Hoover to remain in Washington as originally contemplated. War Secretary Patrick Hurley, just back from the west, is telling Mr. Hoover that he must go out to the country if he expects to win the election.

The barrage of conflicting advice has been pounding on President Hoover ever since the Maine election returns brought discouraging news a week ago. It reached an intensive stage over the week-end.

Major Schism Feared

Some fear that unless Mr. Hoover intervenes and cuts off the controversy, a major schism which might weaken the morale of the party organization may result. Advisers are lining up on one side or the other.

The question of whether the Republican strategy shall be revised in the midst of the battle by sending Mr. Hoover out on the stump threatens to obscure all other matters within the party general staff until it is settled.

Republicans have ceased to treat Governor Roosevelt lightly. The Republican comment on his Salt Lake City railroad speech was that it had been cribbed from President Hoover.

The Republican national committee views authoritatively was stated by Labor Secretary James Doak when he said that Mr. Hoover had recommended to congress the very plans which Mr. Roosevelt now adopts as his own."

Hatfield Alarms Mills

Considerable surprise therefore was caused when a few hours later Senator Henry D. Hatfield (Rep., W. Va.), after a conference with Mr. Hoover, drew from his pocket a typewritten statement which commented on Roosevelt's Salt Lake speech as follows: "This is not presidential stuff. It is the kind of economic nonsense that one would expect from a visionary, or a peddler of dreams."

Treasury Secretary Mills, who has supervised most of the Republican propaganda, drew up his hands when he read Hatfield's statement. He declined to trust himself to public comment.

Mills wants Mr. Hoover to sit in Washington and educate the country as to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by radio talks.

He believes the Republican fight should be staked largely on the R. F. C.

Farm States Feared

Mills soon is to leave for the coast on a speaking tour of which the climax will be an address to the American Bankers' convention at San Francisco. He believes similar trips by other cabinet members will be sufficient.

Hurley, on the other hand, feels that the cabinet has fired its heaviest shots already, and that the President himself must take up the battle.

Some of the President's advisers believe that the party will have to talk about something besides the R. F. C. to win the farm states, where mortgage foreclosures are taking farms away from their owners and throwing them on the hands of banks and trust companies.

NEGRO, CRIMINAL SINCE 1893, IS GIVEN FINE

Man of Many Aliases Draws $50 and Costs for Vagrancy.

A Negro whose criminal career began in 1893 and who has a list of aliases reading like a city directory, was fined $50 and costs today by Municipal Judge William H. Sheaffer on conviction of vagrancy.

Arrested Sept. 9 under the name of John Johnson, 1820 Columbia avenue, the Negro was found in possession of seven suits of men's clothing and eight pairs of trousers, according to Detectives George E. Stewart and Dennis Houlihan. They were unable to find any one to identify the clothing as stolen, and no charge other than vagrancy could be filed.

Names used by the Negro include Edward Price, Harry Jones, Albert Williams, Harry Williams, James Payne, Benjamin Franklin, George Jackson, Edward Williams, John Wilson, Albert Jones, Charles Turner and Henry James.

He has served terms in several state prisons including those of Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota and Oregon, mostly for larceny.

RAILROADS NEED HUGE GAIN FOR NORMALCY

Roads Must Regain Half of Traffic Lost Since 1929 Peak.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—When the nation's railroads regain one-half of the traffic they have lost during the depression since 1929, their earnings, because of economies they have instituted, will be normal again.

This estimate is made by W. W. Colipts of Colipts and Colipts, consulting engineers of New York.

Without counting in the 10 per cent wage cut now in effect among railway employees, and taking no cognizance of the new proposal to cut wages by 20 per cent, starting next Feb. 1, Colipts estimates that when the carriers regain half of the traffic they have lost since 1929, their net operating income will be slightly more than it was in that year.

N. Y. Banker Turns Publisher

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Lee E. Olwell, vice-president of the National City bank and the National City Company, is resigning to become vice-president and publisher of the New York Evening Journal.

Lost in Arctic; Saved by Stefansson's Stove

By United Press

EDMONTON, Alta., Sept. 20.—Napoleon Verville finally has reached home after a desperate year in the Arctic, during which the anti-quarantine stove abandoned by explorer Vilhjalmur Stefansson nearly a decade ago saved his life.

Verville entered a hospital for treatment of his feet which were frozen last winter during a blizzard off Banks Land.

Blood poisoning set in and Verville was forced to cut off three of his own toes with a razor, while the storm howled behind the snow-bank he created as a shelter.

He and his partner, Alex (Sandy) Austin, were lost in the blizzard for seven days, maintaining their precarious footing on drifting ice floes after they wandered away from land on the frozen sea.

They killed two sled dogs for food, and finally reached Melville Island, the first white men to arrive there since Stefansson in 1915.

There they slept in snow houses which they built and warmed themselves with a primus stove and a can of kerosene the explorer had left.

They finally reached a settlement of Eskimos who befriended them until they could make their way back to civilization this summer.

Verville said he had not seen any white man, other than his partner, from July 28, 1931, until Aug. 2, 1932.

M'NUTT CLEARS UTILITIES STAND

Pledges Shakeup in Public Service Commission

Clarifying statements regarding his stand on the public utility question, Paul V. McNutt, Democratic Governor candidate, told members of the Service Club Monday that he favored municipal ownership of utilities.

"We have certain laws in Indiana regulating public utilities and a commission to administer these laws. Neither the laws nor the administration of those laws are satisfactory," he said.

"I believe that Hoosier municipalities are competent to manage their own utilities, if they so desire.

"If any city shows a majority of its citizens wanting to own and manage their own utilities they should have the right and power to do so.

"Elect a Democratic general assembly, and we'll make new and better laws governing public utilities for the benefit of the consuming public. And if I become your chief executive, I promise to make a complete change in the personnel of the commission."

RUM TRIAL OF COPS SLATED

U. S. Agent to Testify Against Officers.

Trials of two Indianapolis policemen charged with neglect of duty and unbecoming conduct on information supplied by a federal prohibition officer was to be held this afternoon before the board of safety.

Patrolmen Charles A. Schwinn and Julius Reinking were suspended by Chief Mike Morrissey and secret charges preferred against them Sept. 3, after Harmon E. Crossley, prohibition officer, revealed events alleged to have taken place the night of April 1.

Morrissey's letter to the safety board preferring charges against the men was accompanied by the request that the matter be kept secret.

According to information supplied John W. Morrill, deputy federal prohibition administrator, the two officers left their squad car parked outside the Madison Lunch, a restaurant on Madison avenue south of Troy avenue, outside the city limits, and entered the building while Crossley was making a "buy" of liquor.

Shortly after the liquor was placed on his table, it was snatched away by a woman employee, Crossley said. Later the liquor was returned with the explanation that "a squad car just drove up and we didn't recognize them," Crossley said.

"But they're good fellows, and everything's o. k.," the woman assured him, Crossley said. Crossley charged the officers told him the operator of the place "is a good fellow."
