

ELEPHANTS RUN AMUCK IN CHINA SHOP OF G. O. P.

Decorations at Claypool Cause Row and Fenton Quits as Secretary.

BY BEN STERN
Another rift today shattered the myth of harmony at Republican state headquarters and involved the question as to whether Harry C. Fenton is to remain as secretary of the state committee.
Monday night Fenton told Chairman Ivan C. Morgan that he could get a new secretary. Today Fenton's status is unknown. But he's back at work.
If all results from elephants—hundreds of elephants, but not of size similar to that upon which Morgan rode in the Irvington torchlight parade Saturday night.
Deciding that state headquarters on the southern mezzanine floor of the Claypool should be decorated to put a little pep in the Republican show, the able and astute Fenton, first outlined his plan to the hotel management and was granted permission to festoon the floor on the state committee side.

Elephants Galore Posted
The principal decorations were cardboard elephants bearing the names of the leading G. O. P. candidates.
The decorations went up Monday morning.
Shortly thereafter, complaint was made by those attending the convention of the American Prison Association here—evidently not all of Republican faith—that the decorations gave a political tinge to their conference.
Fenton was called by hotel directors and asked to remove the decorations. Whereupon, his nerves already worn to the frazzling point by his arduous duties, Fenton is reported to retorted angrily.
"I will never give the order to take the decorations down. If your hotel desires to do so, it will have to do it itself. Furthermore, I would consider it advisable to move back to the Severin."

Decorations Stay Up
The Republican high command at the instance of Chairman Morgan moved to the Claypool several months ago after years of tenure at the Severin.
The decorations did not come down all day.
When Morgan reached headquarters Monday night he was informed of the controversy and told Fenton that the decorations should be removed.
"You can get a new secretary," shouted Fenton, according to Morgan.
"Harry has been working too hard lately and his nerves are frazzled, so I didn't take him seriously," said the chairman.
"After all, the matter of the decorations is trivial, and if the hotel management felt that we shouldn't festoon the mezzanine I think we should co-operate," he added.
A temporary armistice between the two in effect now until after the election.

KING'S SECRET OUT

Loves Told Michael; Carol Rages

PARIS, Oct. 4.—King Carol of Rumania has recalled his son, Crown Prince Michael, from London because the boy learned for the first time of his father's love affairs from an English language newspaper in Paris, the United Press learned today.

Carol was understood to be determined never to allow Michael to set foot in England again, or ever to see his mother, Princess Helene, with whom he has been visiting in London.
It was during Michael's brief stay in Paris, en route to London, that the boy first encountered a printed version of his father's private affairs, according to the story told here today.
Michael, who reads and speaks English fluently, picked up a copy of an English language paper before his father's aide-de-camp, who accompanied him from Bucharest, realized it.
Madame Magda Lupescu, beautiful red-haired woman with whom Carol once lived in exile, was referred to in the newspaper as the "king's beautiful mistress."
"Who is this lady friend of daddy's, this Madame Lupescu?" Michael was said to have asked the aide-de-camp.

THE prince's official companion was horrified, but could do little except try to get the incident out of the boy's mind.

King Carol learned what had happened, and telephoned the secretary of the Rumanian legation here to see the newspaper correspondent in Paris, and demand retraction of the story and a promise not to publish anything similar during Michael's visit here or his stay in England.
"How would you like it if Rumanian papers published such things about the prince of Wales?" the diplomat asked.
The correspondent immediately demanded a retraction of what he considered an insult to British royalty. The diplomat refused.

MILLS ASSAILS ROOSEVELT AS 'INEXPERIENCED'

'Unable to Grasp Situation,' Californians Told by Cabinet Officer.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, fired the opening gun of President Hoover's campaign in California Monday night with an address in which he pictured Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt as "inexperienced," "unable to grasp the situation," and "an apostle of despair."
Mills, a former college mate of Roosevelt, said the Democratic nominee had evaded major issues of the campaign.
He described President Hoover as a "tried and seasoned veteran of magnificent courage and resourcefulness."
After discussing Governor Roosevelt's stand on farm relief, water power, foreign trade and the depression, Mills climaxed his review with a charge that the Democratic candidate had not given a concise statement of his position on any of these issues.
"We do not know whether he (Roosevelt) approves or disapproves of Mr. Garner's pork barrel building bill," he asserted.
"And, strangest of all, we do not know what, if any, program he himself has for dealing with this depression, a question which transcends in importance every other issue now before us."

Modern Surgery Miracle Gives New Hand to Baby

By United Press
COLORADO SPRINGS, Cal., Oct. 4.—Because modern surgery can perform miracles, 19-months-old Doris Johnson will have a new hand.

She fell into a pile of hot ashes, as she walked, unsteadily, in the yard of her father's ranch home, at Worland, Wyo.
For weeks she suffered terrible agony from the burns.
One hand was so badly burned that when it was unbandaged, weeks later, only a stump remained. The flesh of the fingers had grown together. Infection set in.
The Johnsons are not wealthy. They did not have money for great surgeons and for operations. But a Methodist minister, who saw the child, intervened.
He got in touch with authorities at Beth-El hospital, here, and asked if perhaps there was not some doctor who would be willing to save that little girl, by building her a new hand, without pay.
He found there were quite a few of those sort of doctors.
So Beth-El agreed to aid, and Doris was brought here.
The baby went under ether, and the surgeons split the tiny fingers apart, broke the twisted bone and reset it straight, and, one by one, made the twisted little fingers whole again.
Soon they will perform another operation.
Skin will be grafted on the hand and fingers to hide the hideous scars left by the flames, and in another year or so no one ever will be able to tell that Doris once had no hand.

Woman Killed in Crackup
PRINCETON, Ind., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Otis Clark, 36, died in Methodist hospital here of a skull fracture suffered when the automobile she was driving collided with a machine driven by Frank Tuber, local coal miner.

Railroads Have Cut Freight Rates

One of the suggestions most frequently made to the railroads nowadays is that they reduce their freight rates to attract more business.
The railroads are doing that very thing. Reductions have been made in thousands of rates on many different commodities.
Some people think a further reduction of all freight rates would serve to revive business. That is not certain. They may be right, but the railroads are not strong enough financially to take the chance.
To make a further general reduction of all freight rates possible, subsidies to other forms of transportation should be withdrawn, and all carriers should be equally regulated.
Good service at the lowest possible rates is essential to the success of any railroad.
Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.
