

Cupid Reigns on City Social Stage in 1932; Many Smart Weddings

Year Further Featured by Visits to Hoosier Capitol by Nationally-Known Women; Clubs Sponsor Big Projects.

Cupid reigned on the social stage of 1932, leading many men and women to the altar in spectacular, and simple, ceremonies. Many returned from wedding trips to establish home in the city, while others left Indianapolis for residence in other cities.

The first bride of the year was Miss Adele Pantzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Pantzer, who married Joachim Westendorp on Jan. 15, and went to New York to live.

Following close was the picture wedding on Jan. 20, of Miss Eileen Hollis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon F. Hollis of Denver, to Cortland Van Camp Martindale.

Miss Nadyne D. Cravens chose Valentine's day to wed Robert H. Schleicher. On Feb. 22 the engagement of Miss Anne Daugherty to Robert Hunter Slater of Louisville was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Daugherty.

Miss Mary Eugenia Yant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Yant, went to Riverside, Cal., to marry Harry R. Fenton this month.

Many Society Weddings

March was chosen as the date for weddings of several socially prominent young women. Miss Florence W. Lupton became the bride of Alva Whitcomb Graham, March 26, after a series of prenuptial parties.

The marriage of Miss Martha Gibson Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Adams, to Woods A. Caperton, was a brilliant affair the same day.

The next day Miss Clara La Von Chaffin was wed to Lee O. Nicholson.

April saw the unions of Miss Frances Deering of San Francisco to Thomas Carr Howe Jr., Miss Josephine Harriet McCray and Perry Warren Oakes, Flora Hunter and Donald Mote, Margaret Barrett and Edwin S. O'Neill, Mary Roberta McClurg and Frederick William Nichols Jr., and Mary Ellen McNamee and Stanley W. Shippen.

Marriages in Leedy Family

May brought several lovely ceremonies. Miss Frances Krieg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Krieg, became the bride of Dr. Paul Conley Ferguson, when a special blessing was bestowed by the Pope.

Following her wedding to Malcolm MacNiven Davison, a professor at the University of Southern California, Miss Dorothy May Leedy, the daughter of Mrs. Ulysses Grant Leedy, left for residence in Berkeley, Cal.

Two other weddings in the Leedy family were events of the year. Miss Julia Bowman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Bowman, was married to Hollis Leedy in a lovely July ceremony, while Miss Mary Isabelle Leedy became the bride of Calvin Charles Hampton, New York, on Aug. 1.

Other May weddings were those of Miss Margaret Mahan of Martinsville to J. Kurt Mahardt and Miss Dorothea White to Leroy Hunt.

Cupid Busy in June

Miss Betty Helm was the first bride of June, marrying Paul R. Browning on June 4. Others to take vows in the month of brides were Miss Naomi Adams of Beech Grove and Floyd H. Harlan, Miss Mary Jeanne Deering of Indianapolis and Dr. Russell J. Spivey, Miss Lorraine Collins and William R. White, Miss Florence Moore and Floyd James Meeker, Miss Lorraine Cottingham and Dr. Robert D. Howell, Miss Edna Humphreys of New York and Hugh Henry Hanna III, Miss Bernice Mull and Ralph H. Thompson of Crawfordsville, Miss Frances Josephine Walters and Lewis Hornaday Pickett of Denver, Miss Ellen McFadden and William Forsyth, Miss Elsie Noll and Charles Kay Blue, Miss Martha Elie and James E. Lesh, Miss Dorothy Jane Sutherland and Adolph F. Grossman of Yonkers, N. Y., Miss Dorothy Muir and James W. Bowman of Toronto, and Miss Nadyne Cook and Don Emerson, Yonkers, and Miss Ann Cooper and Russell E. Hanson.

July Popular Bride's Season

July rivaled June as a popular bride's season. Miss Agnes Kallen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Kallen, was wedded to Jacob Guire Wilcox in a lovely ceremony.

The wedding of Miss Phoebe Heath of Noblesville and Herman M. Stoker of Syracuse, N. Y., and Johannesburg, South Africa, was attended by many local people.

Miss Jean Schud and John T. Whatcher, Miss Betty McIntyre and Harry Lee, Miss Helen Moffett and Raymond S. Hlatt, Miss Dorothy Welborn of Evansville and Milford Mortimer Miller, Miss Lucille Williams and W. Dale Evans were wedded in July ceremonies.

Weddings in August included those of Miss Winnette Jennings and Charles H. Bradley, Miss Lydia Louise Paul and Henry E. Todd, Miss Beatrice Worley and Alex W. Whitaker, Miss Mary Wanda Allison and Dr. Urban F. D. Stork, Miss Johanne Perin of Thorndown and Jack Gulling, Miss Nancy Estelle Harvey and William Whitley Foster, Miss Helen E. Kreber and John M. Burke, and Miss Louise Adams and Carl H. Donner of Summit, N. J.

Louise Sherwood Married

Miss Louise Sherwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley Sherwood, became the bride of Gustav W. Klumpp of Boston, Sept. 1, in a lovely garden wedding. Miss Dorothy Fife went to live in Chicago after her marriage to J. Franklin Ries in September.

Misses Gertrude and Susan Delbrook, sisters, were brides of the year, the former becoming the bride of Guy Curtis Dixon, Sept. 1, and the latter of J. Frank Maurer of Brazil, earlier in the season.

Later September ceremonies were those of Miss Gladys Hooker and Edward A. Troy of Gary, Miss Kathleen Hotel and William Weaver Perrin, Miss Frances Kirkpatrick of Rushville and Thomas Rhoades, Miss Jeanette Parker of Denver and Peter C. Reilly Jr. of New York, and Miss Mary Mulvihill and James A. O'Connell.

Brilliant Rites in September

Some of the most brilliant weddings of the year took place in September, including that of Miss Florence Eifromson to Harry B. Smith of Lowell, Mass., and Miss Sarah Margaret Moore to Fletcher Hodges Jr.

The marriage of Miss Elinor West Durbin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher M. Durbin of Chicago and granddaughter of Mrs. D. Thornton West of Indianapolis, to Sartell Prentice Porter was an event in Chicago society. She is the granddaughter of the late Governor and Mrs. Winfield T. Durbin.

October weddings included those of Miss Dorothy Ruth Danke and Thomas Edward Fisher, Miss Betty Baker and Bruce Lynn Kendall, Dr. Marie B. Kast and H. Theodore Kuhlman of Philadelphia, Miss Marian Whetstone and Andrew F. Ross, Miss Louise Bloomer of Rockville and Robert Butterworth, Miss Gladys Cochrane and John Cromie, and Miss Frances Wingard to Claude A. Mahoney.

Ceremonies Are Colorful

Among the loveliest of the larger ceremonies of the month were Miss Anne Speer's marriage to Grier Moore Shotwell, Miss Delight Baxter's to Orin W. Fifer Jr., and Miss Omie Harris' to Nick Mayer of Little Rock, Ark.

November saw the marriages of Miss Martha Lou Folk and Ralph A. Seal, Miss Martha McFarland and R. L. Selfridge, Miss Mildred Cooke and Albert Eblers and Miss Mary Helen Toile and Robert Maney.

One of the most colorful weddings of the year was that of Miss Mary Louise Minnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Minnick, to John Bertmann II. The marriage took place Nov. 9 at All Saints Episcopal cathedral, which was elaborately decorated in white chrysanthemums and cathedral tapers.

Wed on Thanksgiving

Prominent among the Thanksgiving weddings was that of Miss Joy Taylor, secretary of the missionary education department of the United Christian Missionary Society, to the Rev. John P. Sala, pastor of the University Church of Christ, Buffalo, N. Y. The ceremony was performed by Miss Taylor's father, the Rev. W. D. Taylor, in his church in Jackson, O.

Another Thanksgiving wedding was that of Miss Margaret Warner to Frank McManey.

On Nov. 26, Miss Clara V. Foxworthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton K. Foxworthy, became the bride of Richard Barrett McDowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. McDowell, in a candlelight ceremony at the Westminster Presbyterian church.

Newlyweds to Manchuria

Other November weddings were those of Miss Hester Robbins to Herman T. Cox, Miss La Donna Lamb to Alfred E. Kristufik, Miss Leona Rahn to William Ennis, Miss Ruth L. Thoms to William Schulze of Chicago, Miss Catherine Murdoch to Burchard Carr, and Miss Ruth Dale to Robert W. Fox.

The first of the December weddings were those of Miss Roberta Cramer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Cramer, to Christian E. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Carlson, and Miss Ava Louise Reddick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne A. Reddick to Lloyd D. Newlin.

On Dec. 14, Miss Dorothy Marie Patterson was married to Robert J. Mack of Trenton, N. J.

Following their marriage on Dec. 20, Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Fox left for Mukden, Manchuria, to make their home. Mrs. Fox was formerly Miss Lorena McComb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Kemper McComb.

Noted Visitors to City

On Dec. 24, Jeanie Paton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Paton, was married to Arthur H. Woodstock of Detroit.

A Christmas wedding ceremony united Miss Dorothy Stephenson Pier and Willis Lester Jackson. They will make their home in Peoria, Ill.

The year was featured by visits of nationally known women. The political campaign brought the famous Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, who was guest of honor at a reception given by Women's Republican club in Indianapolis.

The next week Indianapolis was paid a visit by Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice-President Curtis.

Many Projects of Interest

Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke college, and a leader in national projects; Mrs. Arthur Brin of Minneapolis, president of the National Council of Jewish Women; Vicki Baum, famous author of "Grand Hotel"; Countess Margret Bethell; Emily Newell Blair, literary critic; Margaret Avery Barnes, author, and other famous women have been brought to the city by Town Hall, Tudor Hall, American Association of University Women, the Jewish Council, and other groups.

Several projects of interest and worth were sponsored for the first time during the year. The arts and interests committee of the Junior League held its first exhibit of Indiana artists. The league with the A. A. U. W. held symphony lectures by Ferdinand Schaefer before performances of the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra.

Political Groups Busy
The political campaigns afforded busy programs for the various political organizations, including the Indiana Democratic Club and the various units.

The Indiana and Indianapolis Leagues of Women Voters continued their program of educating the voters and sponsoring projects they considered progressive.

The Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform intensified its fight for prohibition changes and its membership and influence increased.

Clubs of Town Busy

Various social and athletic clubs provided a year of activity. The Columbia Club, the Indianapolis Athletic Club, the Avaton Country Club, the Meridian Hills Country Club and the Woman's Athletic Club have entertained with monthly luncheon bridge parties, as well as dances, open houses and holiday affairs.

The Columbia Club inaugurated a new tradition, holding its first "Panhell" dance for fraternity members.

The Sunnyside Guild, the Children's Sunshine Club, the Cheer Broadcasters, St. Margaret's hospital guild, the Junior League, and other groups have continued their welfare work.

The Indiana Federation of Women's Club, the Seventh District, Indianapolis Council of Women, Irvington Union of Clubs, the Woman's Department Club, have been in the limelight, sponsoring cultural and philanthropic activities.

Golf Clubs Popular
In addition the social life has been enhanced by the entertainments of various national sorority and college alumnae clubs, patriotic societies, musical organizations, the Children's theater, the Civic theater, Butler university groups, the Little Knickerbocker and Woman's Contract Bridge clubs.

For those who prefer out-door activities, the various riding clubs have proved popular. The Algonquin Riding Club, the Traders Point Hunt, the Meridian Hills riding group, the Arlington Riding Club and polo meets have drawn large groups.

The golf clubs were popular haunts of the athletically inclined during the season.

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt of Bloomington, wife of Indiana's new governor, will have as her associates Mrs. Philip Lutz Jr., of Boonville, wife of the new attorney-general; Mrs. Elmer Straub of Indianapolis, wife of the new adjutant-general; Mrs. M. Clifford Townsend of Gov. Moore, wife of the new lieutenant governor; Mrs. Frank May Jr., of South Bend, wife of the secretary of state, and Mrs. Floyd E. Williamson of Indianapolis, wife of the auditor of the state.

All of these women will assume new social duties with the exception of Mrs. May and Mrs. Williamson, whose husbands already hold their offices. Lutz took his oath of office at noon Saturday. The inauguration Jan. 9 will place these women in important places in the social and political life of Indiana.

Manners and Morals

BY JANE JORDAN

Are you caught in an emotional jam? Write to Jane Jordan, who will help you see what to do.

Dear Jane Jordan—I don't know which way to turn nor what to do. I am 30 years old, and have been married for twelve years. We have a boy and a girl. We are buying our home, and have a car, just common people, but we always were happy. Now I have found out that my husband is running around with other women.

He says he doesn't care for them, but just goes for the fun in it. But it nearly killed me, for I loved and trusted him above all. I just feel that life isn't worth while any more. He said that it wasn't my fault, that he loved the children and me just the same.

I never worked outside of our home, so I don't suppose there would be any chance of work for me, and yet I don't feel that I can go on, letting him support me. If you can help me, please do it. The children must not be hurt, for they think there is nobody like their daddy, but there is nobody like their daddy.

HEARTBROKEN.

Dear Heartbroken—You can depend on it that your husband is telling you the literal truth. He does not love the women with whom he trifles, and forgets them five minutes after he has left them. His actions do not have a thing in the world to do with his love for you. After twelve years of married life he is seized with the taste for variety, exactly as a man who has had quiet for dinner for twelve years feels that he needs a change of diet.

The majority of men go through the same thing, although few of them are as honest as your husband.

Throughout the ages women have tried to get men to take the act of propagation seriously, with slight success. Most of them seem to be permanently incapable of understanding a simple biological instinct with any great and powerful significance.

Women, on the other hand, are incapable of separating sex from love. Like most other women, I believe that the highest happiness is to be found in monogamy, and I understand perfectly what a shock your husband's attitude is to you. There are two things you can do about it, and either method requires patience of your part and the highest order of courage.

First, you can ignore his behavior and make a determined effort to provide more variety and spice to your home. You can look on his fault with the indulgence of a mother. The emptiness of insinuating gratification, apart from love, may dawn on him and he may tire of cheap excitement more quickly than he tired of domesticity. Many a marriage has been saved by a wife wise enough not to antagonize her husband when the first crises appeared.

Second, you can gradually work out your own economic independence and leave. You can start with an avocation and develop it into a vocation. Pick out your best asset. If you can bake a cake better than anybody else, or sew a seam, take a snapshot, write a verse, design a gown, decorate a room, compose a letter, or act a part, develop your talent patiently over a period of years. Then seize the first opportunity to escape with your children.

Most women find either method too tedious. It is easier to give way to their feelings and scream and cry.

and upbraid the selfish creature who destroyed their happiness. They are foolish enough to believe that they can cure the situation by force, by revenge, by vituperation. But they only destroy the thing they sought to save, and live to be sour, embittered women.

I particularly admire your attitude toward your children, and your wise decision to preserve their ideal of their father.

Dear Jane Jordan—I am a young girl very much in love with a man several years older than I. He wants me to marry him, but he has been in the penitentiary for five years. Just got out a few months ago. He also has been married and has three children, but his wife has married again and has the children, although he has to support them. My folks don't know about these things. He says when they know him better he is going to tell them everything. He is trying to go straight, but my folks just would die if they knew all these things. Sometimes I feel like leaving them a letter, telling them everything, and run off and marry him. I love him so much.

Dear Worried—I know so little of the man that I can not advise you intelligently. I do not even know what he was in the penitentiary for. I do think, however, that it is far from intelligent for you to trust your own judgment in the matter, and that you ought to value the mature advice your parents could give you. They know the man, I do not.

VISITING HERE

125 Celebrate New Year's at Meridian Hills

The New Year was ushered in at the Meridian Hills Country Club with an annual formal dinner, followed by a dance, and a luncheon of twenty-five members and guests were seated at a T-shaped table, elaborately decorated with smilax.

Down the center of the table ivory tapers splashed with silver and held in star-shaped silver candle holders lighted the dining room.

The holiday decorations were carried out throughout the room, with archways and windows draped with smilax, and the overhead lights tied with red tulle bows and decorated with silver poinsettias.

A group of songs was given by Mrs. J. E. Thompson. Just before midnight guests were entertained with a novelty radio broadcast program, arranged by B. F. Kelley, and assisted by Harry J. Berry and Mr. and Mrs. George N. Weaver.

The microphones and amplifiers installed in the club brought to the listeners a resume of the 1932 activities of the club, and a skit of club personalities.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Becker had as their guests at the dinner Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Beschorman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Pike and Dr. and Mrs. Glenn J. Pell were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Kelley. Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. A. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McVie entertained Mr. and Mrs. Burnsides Smith were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Grumm.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Minnick had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fawcett, of French Lick, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McVie entertained Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Shaw.

This afternoon, from 4 to 6, officers and board members of the club, and their wives, will be hosts and hostesses at the annual New Year's tea to be given at the club.
