MOOR MURDER CASE MAY GO TO JURY TODAY

Final Arguments Being Made in Trial at Marshall, Ill.

morning when the body of his wife was found in their automobile on a road near here with two bullet wounds near the heart.

Moor told of frequent quarrels over his wife's housekeeping, of buying a revolver and driving his automobile into the country several times before selecting a place to kill her.

"God told me to do it," he sobbed. "I killed her. I shot her to death. I had to. I picked out the spot. Some unseen power kept me from passing it. We stopped. I told her again how unhappy her untidy housekeeping made me. We quarreled. I killed her. I had to. I had to."

He spoke at first in a voice so faint jurors leaned forward in their chairs to hear what he was saying. Slowly, as though he were lecturing to a class of students, he told of events leading up to the night last August when he ran to a farmhouse and told that his wife had been killed by holdup men while they were returning to Robinson, Ill., after visiting her parents in Indiana.

"Sometimes teachers or pupils wanted to come to my home," he said. "I was ashamed to invite them. I got to where I even thought up excuses to keep them from coming."

"The house was cleaned once a month, and then she had a woman do it. It looked like people camped there. I talked to Marjorie about it. But she didn't seem to be bothered. She ran around to women's clubs and was too busy teaching other people's children to have any of her own."

"People came to the house and stared at the sink full of dirty dishes. They went away and talked."

1 DID MARRIAGE MEAN MORE TO THE OLD FASHIONED WOMAN THAN IT DOES TO THE MODERN WOMAN?
WRITE YES OR NO HERE

2 ARE PEOPLE WHO ARE BRILLIANT MENTALLY MORE LIKELY THAN ORDINARY PEOPLE TO BREAK DOWN PHYSICALLY?
WRITE YES OR NO

3 IS WEALTH ESSENTIAL TO HAPPINESS?
WRITE YES OR NO

AUTHOR'S NOTE—These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Not all moral questions can be answered with absolute scientific accuracy, but no decision as to what is right conduct or sound morals is possible without science. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. It was a more all-inclusive experience and meant her whole future world. The married woman of today expects to do more in life than merely feed her husband, mend his socks, keep his house, see he gets hot biscuits three times a day (and indigestion), and bear and rear her children.

They both get a lot more fun out of marriage for that reason, because the wife brings her husband a larger, more interesting life of her own.

2. No. Hollingsworth, psychologist, showed me that a breakdown is due chiefly to three things—poor learning ability, poor logical memory, and poor ability to judge facts of our own experience accurately.

3. No, provided one is above the necessity line. No one can be happy in utter poverty and without a job, but Dr. Goodwin Watson, Columbia psychologist, by elaborate scientific methods found that above the necessity line poor folks are just as happy as rich folks.

The two things most essential to happiness are love and security. Usually, the rich man is less secure (this can be proved) than the poor man, and he certainly has no more love.

house were her future father then resided. Since those days, Mrs. Hightshue always has been a friend of the Pruitts.

Mrs. Hightshue, happy with the new arrangement of her life, still works in an Indianapolis shirt factory.

She has been "working for a living so many years, it's hard to quit."

"I told her to keep her job," her 81-year-old father said. "I want her to be happy. Besides, there isn't much work around the house."

Mrs. Hightshue for many years had been struggling to pay for a small home. Now she will become the heir to seven pieces of property owned by Pruitt.

Mrs. Hightshue's husband died in 1913. There were no children, but she has an invalid sister.

The adoption was handled for Pruitt through his attorney, James E. Roop, and is said to be only the second case in the history of the county that such a court order has been issued.

Under the law, the only requirement for adoption of an adult is consent in open court.
