

Council of State Clubs Federation Presented to Governor, Assembly

Reports of Various Departments Are Given to Board at Luncheon Preceding Legislature Visit.

Members of the council of the Indiana Federation of Clubs were presented to the two houses of the state legislature, and to Governor Paul V. McNutt today, following a luncheon in the Claypool.

The council is interested in legislation before the houses maintaining the standards which the federation advocated, rather than any new legislation, according to Mrs. Edwin N. Canine of Terre Haute, state president, who presided at the council luncheon.

Mrs. Canine and Mrs. Edwin F. Miller of Peru, who just have returned from the meeting of the directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, held in Washington, presented reports of the capital to the council.

Four Seek Parley

According to Mrs. Canine, the General Federation has received invitations from four cities, each in a different state, for the triennial council in 1935. The invitations are from Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City, Mo.

The next council meeting will be in Richmond, in May, with the theme "Thrill." In 1934 the council will meet in Hot Springs, Ark.

Plans for the year were presented by department chairmen at today's meeting. A child friendship committee in each club is the aim of the joint program of the division of child welfare and division of correction, sponsored by the department of public welfare.

These committees will investigate children who are victims of bad influences, unfortunate treatment, and corrupt association, and will strive to place each child of this type in contact with an adult friend who will try to help him.

Seek to Aid Children

These "adult friends," according to the committee's plans, will see that the child has needed dental or medical care, and that the beneficial opportunities of the community are made available to him. Mrs. Paul C. Miller, chairman of the American home department of the federation, reported on the work of her department. She indicated that the depression will aid in bringing the standards of the home back to a higher plane.

"The American home takes the lead in strengthening the defense of the United States," Mrs. Miller said. "The whole hope of the future life of America is inclosed in the four walls of the home. During the days of prosperity the home sank in a great many instances. We have only to read in our daily news to know that somewhere along the line, as mothers, home-makers and teachers of youth, we have failed in that training."

"Will Get Acquainted"

"With easy money disappearing, parents and children will begin to get acquainted," she said, in reporting on her department's work. "Much is being done to educate public opinion in this direction, since it is recognized as being a matter of first importance."

During Mrs. Poston's part on the program she presented women from the different districts, in seven-minute talks on their work. They were Mrs. William L. Ellison, Winona Lake, Thirteenth district; Mrs. Harry L. Beshore, Marion, Eleventh district; Mrs. A. O. Benson, Bridgeton, Fifth district, and Mrs. Charles S. Royce, Versailles, Fourth district.

Mrs. Frederick G. Balz linked the work of the general federation with the legislative work of state organizations in her talk.

Manners and Morals

BY JANE JORDAN

Bring your love problems to Jane Jordan, who will help you understand your situation and suggest something for you to do about it.

Dear Jane Jordan—I'm in love with a girl, but she has jilted me for another fellow. She claims she wants to keep me for a friend, but I can't stand this other fellow hanging around. She says I'm too jealous for her taste.

Besides, this other fellow is just as jealous of me as I am of him. Whenever I want a date with this girl, he plans something she'd rather do, just to take her away from me. Then when I raise hell, she just calls me jealous. What can I do to get her away from him?

JEALOUS.

Dear Jealous—You are jealous. The other suitor is jealous. That's why she prefers him to you. You sit around and moan when she won't make a date with you. He gets out and scares up something interesting. He represents action; you represent inaction.

He has a goal and plans definite ways to achieve it. You have a goal and do nothing about it. When he is jealous, he acts. When you are jealous, you complain. He studies the beloved and does things to please her. You reproach her and seek to blame her for the fact that you are losing ground.

The thing for you to do is to stop feeling sorry for yourself and learn to translate your desires into action. Turn from a negative technique to a positive one.

Dear Jane Jordan—I am a young girl of 16 and have been going with a young man for about eight months. He tells me that he loves me, but he has been untrue to me. I have been sick and he has gone to parties and had a good time while I couldn't help myself.

Yesterday I was allowed to take a short walk with him to get the sunshine. He seemed so happy to see me out once more. His folks say he loves me, but I am uncertain. How can I find out if he really loves me?

DOWN HEARTED.

Dear Down Hearted—You are making the mistake that a great many people make by being too possessive with your boy friend. It is a lot more fun at your age to have more than one beau to your string. And it's more of a compliment to you if he has several girl friends, and still prefers you to the others.

If he went to parties while you were not available, I see no reason for you to object. You couldn't be so selfish as to wish him to refrain from going to parties just because you couldn't!

I know of no yardstick to lay to love to measure its strength. But if there is one, possibly it's time.

Dear Jane Jordan—We are two young men of 21 and 22 and we are constant readers of your column. The two letters from Gin Elyne and your replies prompted this one. It is our opinion that neither you nor Gin Elyne is half as smart as you think you are. I don't think Gin Elyne was stringing the boys half as much as she thought she was. I think the boy friend Bill will let Gin Elyne down so hard it will hurt her ankles. Yours for a bigger column and better advice, FRANKIE AND JOHNNY.

Dear Frankie and Johnny—You two boys had the advantage of seeing Gin Elyne from the inside. If you hadn't read her confession, are you sure you wouldn't have fallen for her charm? I am delighted to hear from you both. Why don't you write more fully and tell what it is about Gin Elyne you do not like.

And while you're at it, tell what kind of girl you do like. I will publish your reply for Gin Elyne's benefit. Maybe you can help her.

Dear Jane Jordan—You call Gin Elyne vain. Do you think she is any vain than the boys she goes with?

QUESTIONER.

Dear Questioner—I doubt if women as a class are any more vain than men. But their vanity gets more publicity.

Mid-Winter Program at Y. W. Is Set

Mary Ellen Smith Is In Charge of Activities at Center.

The midwinter program of activities for industrial girls at Central Y. W. C. A. is being directed by Miss Mary Ellen Smith, chairman of the industrial department council.

Emergency Addition

If your husband phones that he is bringing an out-of-town guest home unexpectedly, what about it? To be a rather ordinary supper, you can give it the additional party touch by mixing up some waffles and cooking them at the table. All men love them, especially on cold winter nights, with maple syrup to make them even more palatable.

Swagger Sports Coats

New sports coats getting ready for spring are more swagger than ever. Their new length is partly responsible for this. They are midway between last year's three-fourth swagger and the hip length jacket. Their backs are loose and they flare slightly.

Members and pledges of Lambda Chi sorority will be entertained with a slumber party Saturday night at the home of Miss Alice Lucas, 2639 North Illinois street. A meeting will be held Tuesday night at the Dearborn.

Shrine for Beauty

A real shrine to its owner's beauty, this director's penthouse boudoir has its dressing table skirted and its seat upholstered in French chintz colored Nile green, rose pink and the soft dalt mauve of the walls.

The four-piece pyralin dresser set in jade is particularly in keeping with the antique mirror above and the French chests flanking the table. The jade brush, comb, mirror, and powder box have a dainty metal trim, simulating a green gold.

'First Lady' to Be Paid Honor by Democrats

Any cheaper cut of beef, as for pot roast. In deep pan put two or three heaping teaspoons of fat. Wash the meat, pepper and salt it, and place over the fat. Cover tightly and place over a low flame.
