

White Cross to Serve at Convention

Members of Board to Act As Hostesses for U. S. Hospital Parley.

Members of the executive board of the White Cross Center of the Methodist hospital will act as official hostesses for the convention of the National Association of Methodist Hospitals, Homes, and Deaconess Work, to be held at the Claypool, Feb. 15 and 16.

This recommendation, made by Dr. John G. Benson, superintendent of the hospital, was adopted by the board at its monthly meeting Wednesday in the hospital library. The White Cross also will assist in placing delegates who desire to be lodged in private homes.

The Methodist Hospital hall of fame, listing names of babies born in the hospital, now is under construction and will be dedicated during Child Health week in May, Mrs. H. W. Krause, chairman of the social service department of the Center, announced.

Names of the babies will be placed in gold or silver letters and over the names a light will burn constantly, according to the plan. Placing of names will be made possible by a gift from the parents to the Cradle Fund of the Center, which has been created to provide hospital care for needy mothers and infants.

Mrs. Krause announced that Mrs. Adah O. Frost has been named chairman of the speakers' bureau of the social service department, and Mrs. H. W. Rhodemaier, chairman of the motor corps.

Mrs. Isaac Egan, president of the Temple Sisterhood White Cross Guild, Mrs. Charles Coy, president of the new reading guild, and Mrs. Hattie L. Asbury, chairman of the prayer guild, reported progress of their projects.

Mrs. John G. Benson, extension chairman, said that literature has been mailed explaining various White Cross activities. Several cities outside of Indianapolis have become interested in organizing guilds.

Toy-makers' White Cross Guild, meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Betty and Lois Richardson, 6007 Park avenue, made plans for a Valentine party Feb. 11 in the solarium of the children's floor of the hospital.

Bess Robbins Will Address Women's Unit

Legislation affecting women, which is pending in the general assembly, will be discussed by Miss Bess Robbins, only woman member of the house of representatives, at a meeting of the National Association of Working Women at 3 Wednesday, in the Valencia room of the Spink-Arms.

Mrs. Florence Thacker, chairman of the legislative committee, will make a report of the activities of her group.

Each member of the association is invited to bring a guest, and any one interested in the meeting is urged by Mrs. B. B. McDonald, president, to attend.

Mrs. McDonald will preside at a short meeting of the executive board preceding the general meeting.

Contract Bridge

BY W. E. MCKENNEY
Secretary American Bridge League

IT is surprising to learn that many people believe that the one over one system is not an entire system, but is simply a convention applicable to a particular bid.

It is true that there is one bid in the one over one system, namely, the overcalling of a suit bid of one with a suit bid of one by the partner.

For example, the original bidder bids one heart and his partner responds with a spade. This particular bid is known as a one over one force. Many systems are adopting and applying this bid to their systems.

However, this is by no means a full description of the one over one system. It differs not in many respects, but in practically every respect, from every other system.

Its opening bids first and second hand are strong and constructive in nature. Third and fourth hand may open the bidding with weak hands.

The principle that applies to the one over one system is the principle of common sense.

THERE are several types of bids, all of which are very important. First—the opening bids of first and second hand. These are constructive bids. They invite, but do not demand, a response from partner.

Partner responds with a constructive bid if he has any constructive strength. Otherwise, he makes a sign-off bid and this is done in a simple manner.

If the original bidder opens with a suit bid, the response of one no trump in considered a sign-off bid. After that, any re-bid of a suit previously named by either partner is treated as a sign-off bid and is the safety valve of the system.

This also is a great protection

Readings to Be Given Before Mission Group

Dressed in a Chinese costume, Mrs. Chic Jackson will present a group of readings and an informal talk at the Chinese tea to be given from 2 to 5 Friday by the Ladies' Missionary Society of the Central Christian church. The affair is in charge of Mrs. W. C. Smith, general chairman, and will be held in the church parlors.

Mrs. Harold Ansholter has arranged a musical program to be given by Miss Marion Dorothy Laut and Mrs. Mildred Sweeney, pianists; and Mrs. Mildred Moore, contralto. Another feature of the program will be selections played by a string trio, pupils of Mrs. Christine Roush.

Lighted lanterns and cherry blossoms will decorate the rooms. Guests will be served at small card tables. A hostess at each table will pour and will be assisted by young women of the church.

Other members of the arrangements committee are Mesdames J. W. Atherton, Gleneth Thrush, C. H. Gerhart, J. P. Hudson, Ralph Roberts, H. A. Koss, W. B. Dodge, Clark Wheeler and Miss Cora Rafert.

Plan Bridge Party

Miss Gertrude Miller and Miss Mary Gertrude O'Malley will be hostesses for a bridge party Friday night at their home, 444 North Whipple street.

for the player who opens with a suit bid and a fourth hand bid. Isn't it only natural to assume that when three hands have passed, the distribution of the high cards and the strength is about evenly divided?

Therefore, if you have what you know as even distribution and just normal strength, you have a right to try for the partial score.

As you know, you and your partner between you have as much strength as your opponents, and it is a proved fact that the play of the hand generally produces one trick.

Therefore, if the aces and kings in all four hands are divided exactly evenly, it follows that if you and your partner become the declarer and dummy you can make the odd trick, while if the opponents play it at their suit, they can make the odd trick.

IN the one over one system, we believe that if the strength is evenly divided you are safe in opening with what might be termed a weak fourth hand bid.

If partner does not have more than his share of strength, he will make a sign-off bid.

He will give you a chance by bidding one no trump, but no more. The bid of one no trump says, "Partner, I have not been dealt any more than average strength and I am not interested in any further bidding."

If the original bidder does not like the no trump bid, he then can sign off by re-bidding his own suit.

The point I wish to impress upon you strongly today is that there is no danger in opening the weak third or fourth hand bids of the one over one system if you will heed the warning of the sign-off bids made by partner and be careful, in re-bidding your own hand, not to make a constructive bid unless you wish the bidding to proceed further.

And remember especially—the one over one forcing bid plays only a part in the complete one over one system of contract bidding.
