

Butler U. Graduate to Be Honored

Miss Virginia Taylor to Be Chief Guest at Informal Tea.

Miss Virginia Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Taylor, 3834 Kenwood avenue, will be honor guest at an informal tea, to be given from 3 to 5 Saturday by Miss Evelyn Crostreet, 24 West Hampton drive.

Miss Taylor, who was graduated from Butler university in June, will leave Feb. 14 for Columbus, O., where she will become a student dietitian in the Ohio State university hospital.

The hostess will be assisted by her mother, Mrs. Fred Crostreet; Miss Harriet Trinkle, who will pour, and Miss Clara Mae Kirtley and Josephine McElhany, who will assist in the dining room.

The Valentine motif will be used in decorations and appointments. The centerpiece will be a bowl of red roses, with red tapers burning on each side.

Guests, besides Mrs. Taylor, the assistants and Miss Taylor, will include members of Delta Delta Delta sorority, of which Miss Taylor is a member. They will be Misses Marjorie Carr, Waneta Graves, Eleanor Marshall, Gertrude Pence, Anna Marie Sander, Mary Harvey, Helen Louise Brown, Isabel Campbell, Dorothy Bruce, Virginia Holt, Wilma Leonard and Rosalind Gibson.

FOUNDERS' DAY TO BE CELEBRATED

State Founders day celebration by the Indianapolis chapter of Phi Omega Pi sorority will be planned at a meeting tonight at the home of the president, Mrs. Erald Hadden, 5345 East Washington street.

Visitors to Be Honored at Parties

Several Fetes Arranged to Entertain Two Guests Here.

Several parties have been arranged for the entertainment of the house guests of Mrs. George Jamerson and Mrs. J. K. Boles of Ft. Benjamin Harrison by wives of the officers at the fort.

Mrs. Anna S. Lowe of San Diego, Cal., who is making an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. Boles, and Mrs. Edward Lee, who is visiting Mrs. Jamerson, were to be honored at a tea given this afternoon by Mrs. E. A. Routheau. Bridge was to be played.

Other guests were to be Mrs. Boles, Mrs. Jamerson, Mesdames George Bender, Carl Innis, Winifield Sisson, Clinton Ancker, C. W. Van Way, R. E. Jones and Ernest Kutscher. Mrs. Jamerson will give a supper bridge Saturday night and Mrs. Kenneth Sears will entertain in honor of the guests on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Boles will give a dessert-bridge Wednesday night. Guests will be Mrs. Jamerson, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Lowe, Mesdames C. D. Parmelee, E. A. Routheau and William Davis, Mrs. McCleary and Mrs. Quigley.

Friday night, Feb. 3, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Lowe will attend a supper party given by Mrs. Boles for the Officers' club of the post. Officers and their wives will be present.

Mrs. Parmelee, 1 East Thirty-sixth street, gave a luncheon bridge Wednesday at her home for Mrs. Lowe. Guests were Mesdames J. M. Huddleston, T. L. Spoon, Stanton Smith, R. F. McClenaghan, Leo Cierke, C. W. Blumel, C. J. Ancker, C. W. Van Way, W. S. Evans and B. B. Lattimore.

OFFICERS' CLUB SPONSORS PARTY

Officers' Club of the Indianapolis lodge 297, Ladies auxiliary to B. R. T., will sponsor a card and bunco party at 8 Saturday night. Mrs. Minnie O'Brien, 325 South Trowbridge, will be hostess.

Mrs. Goldie Saylor, chairman of the arrangements for the affair, will be assisted by Mrs. Forest Smith and Mrs. O'Brien, her committee members.

Contract Bridge

BY W. E. M'KENNEY
Secretary American Bridge League

HOW many different types of bids are there in the one over one system? No more than in the system of common sense.

The difference between the one over one and most systems is that, in other systems, one may plunge blindly after an unknown value, while the one over one system proceeds carefully and cautiously until the proper goal is found.

As explained in my previous article, the first bid to learn is the sign-off bid. Learn when to sign off, when to recognize a sign-off bid, and be sure to use it whenever in doubt.

The most important bid in the system is the constructive bid. As stated, this bid invites, but does not demand, a response from partner.

An opening bid is termed a constructive bid. It is not necessary for partner to make a jump shift force to continue the bidding. He realizes when the original bidder opens for bidding that he is endeavoring to locate the best spot at which to play the hand.

Therefore, if you hold any promising cards, make a constructive bid. Now partner, if he has not already shown the full strength of his hand, will make another constructive bid.

When a side has made three constructive bids, game is probable. When a side makes four constructive bids, game is practically certain. You may ask, "How shall I recognize constructive bids?" Any bid that is not a sign-off bid is a constructive bid.

For example, the opening bidder bids one heart. This is a constructive bid. Partner bids one no trump—a sign-off bid.

Now suppose the original bidder bids two diamonds. This would be a constructive bid asking partner to make a choice of your two suits and also informing him that, even though he has signed off, you have a very good hand and are willing to make a further try on the hand.

If partner now were to respond with two hearts, this would not be a constructive bid—he would be re-bidding a suit already named by you and would simply be taking a choice of your two suits.

As a matter of fact, he has made a double sign-off bid and you should not proceed further with the hand.

SUPPOSING that you had opened with one heart and partner had bid two clubs.

While this is a takeout in another suit and it may be made with a hand none too strong, it is constructive in nature. Partner at least has offered something new.

Now, if you bid two diamonds, you are making a third constructive bid, which is a try for game, and should not be passed by partner unless his first constructive bid is extremely weak.

The writer prefers that when a second suit is shown after partner has made a constructive bid, that the second suit shown should be treated as a forcing bid—not a game demand force, and one that should be termed a temporary force.

The temporary forces are as follows: The showing of a second suit. The one over one force, and The informative double.

NOTE: The one over one forcing bid plays only a part in the complete one over one system of contract bidding.

Manners and Morals

BY JANE JORDAN

Bring your problems to Jane Jordan for analysis. She will answer your letters in this column.

Dear Jane Jordan—Over a period of ten years of married life, I have caught my husband with two different women, and I suspect him of associations with other women whom I have not seen for myself. Both times he laid the blame to drink and promised it would be the last time, as he loved only me. I have continued to live with him, as he has gotten deep into debt, and my name is on some of his notes. I am trying to stick it out until my property is clear. When we were married, I had $5,000, and by gambling, drinking, and slack business, he has made debts amounting to that much.

I do not trust him out of my sight. For my own protection and self-respect, I demand that he be as true to me as I am to him. How can I break him? I have threatened to give him a taste of his own medicine, but he says he will not stand for it. I am not a jealous fool, but just one woman who expects to play the game square or not at all. I am not saying I forgave past offenses, but I go back the past and try to carry on. We have no children, and neither of us wants any. Children only tie the mother down and give a wayward man more rope. Do you think he ever will be true? What would you advise?

DISCOURAGED.
Dear Discouraged—Fidelity is the joyous child of compatibility, not the sterile offspring of duty. An obligation fulfilled from a sense of duty yields no emotional returns for either party. Loyalty is something that you can inspire, but not demand.

From your letter it appears that you do not remain with your husband because of your love for him, but to protect your cash investment. I do not blame you for this attitude, which may be justified entirely by his conduct, but I do say that such situation scarcely is calculated to inspire loyalty in any husband.

First, let us examine your aims a little more closely. Do you want your marriage to be a business arrangement, whereby your husband preserves the outward appearance of loyalty to a contract in payment for your money which he has squandered? Or do you want the man to love you?

If the business arrangement is what you want, you are foredoomed to failure. If you want him to love you, you will have to discover what lack in your relationship causes him to seek satisfaction elsewhere, and supply that lack.

It may be that he is an unstable person unworthy of your efforts. Or it may be that his conduct is only the natural reaction of a husband who has been made to feel inferior by his wife, and who seeks to re-establish his bruised ego by turning to other women.

Dear Jane Jordan—I am a senior in high school. So is the boy of whom I am going to speak. He is supposed to be going steady. He asked me for a date. I went and found out afterward that he was going steady. Now I like him. In fact, I think I'm in love with him.

I'm what you would call popular with the crowd, but I never felt this way over any boy before. He seemed to like me, but he never asked me to go any place again. I thought I would get over it in a week or so, but it has been two, and it still makes me sick all over when I see him with this other girl.

Can you tell me any way to get over this terrible feeling? Don't tell me to just forget him, for I've tried to and can't. I guess there's no way to get a boy to like you when you can't even get around him. Tell me what to do, please.

Dear Just Me—The trick is not to get over the feeling, but to hold on to it. When you are older and more disillusioned, you will give your eye-teeth to recall that delicious love-tingling, but it will clude you, in spite of all your efforts.

Right now it seems pretty painful, but, take it from me, it won't last. You can't make it last, even if you sit up nights and watch it. Some other boy will take your fancy, and then good-by, first love!

Propinquity is a great aid to a girl who wants to make a boy fall in love with her. And boys have all the luck. They are privileged to make the dates. The girl has no chance to strut her stuff unless the boy picks her out for attention.

But do cheer up. This is a minor attack, which will pass sooner than you want it to.

Broadway M. E. Choir to Sponsor Event on Feb. 1.

Mrs. Clarence Brown, 2358 Kenwood avenue, might have stepped from a plush-bound family album in the 1859 wedding gown of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Hume Oakes, which she will wear in "The Pageant of Brides," Feb. 1, at the Broadway Methodist church auditorium.

The pageant of socially historical wedding gowns will be sponsored by the choir of the church.

The gown of Mrs. Oakes, mother of Mrs. John W. Malby, 5337 Park avenue, is entirely hand made and is representative of the fashion trend before the traditional bridal white. It is made of brown Bayadere stripe material, the hoopskirt requiring eleven widths of material.

The waistline is extremely high and will encompass only the thinnest waist. The fitted lines of the bodice are achieved by shirring and intricate darts. The sleeves are fitted a few inches below the shoulder where they fall into very deep petal-like flounces, edged with fine fringe.

The neck is demurely high and caught with a large cameo pin, matching cameo drop earrings. With the gown is carried a tiny old-fashioned bouquet, duplicate of the original flowers.

Wedding gowns of three generations of Mrs. Malby's family will be modeled, including her own and that of her daughter, Mrs. Roger T. Clarke, now a missionary in Africa. Mrs. Malby was Miss Bertha Alice Oakes.
