

CONGRESSMAN WILL 'TOIL' IN GREAT LUXURY

$9,000,000 Marble and Limestone Edifice Is Completed.

BY NED BROOKS
Times Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Your Uncle Sam (who will be a couple of billion dollars behind in his year's bills) seems to have overlooked nothing for the convenience of his legislators in his latest $9,000,000 edifice of limestone, marble and super-gadgets, the new house of representatives office building.
Perhaps there is one exception. The building commission struck out $10,000 worth of gymnasium equipment and, at least for the present, the congressional waistline will have to struggle along as best it can.
Likewise, a boxing teacher, who had aspired to train the representatives to physical fitness, will have to wait for better times for his job. The new building, occupying an entire block and equalling the old one in size, will give each representative office space comparable to that enjoyed by senators. Each representative, after March, will have a suite of two rooms—a work room for his office help, and a private office.

Luxuriously Furnished
Work rooms and private offices are finished luxuriously in American walnut. Wall panels conceal rows of shelves where old Congressional Records and reports of special commissions may be stacked. There are built-in metal filing cabinets where letters on economy and other subjects may be carefully stowed away. Buzzer systems connect inner and outer offices and each suite is equipped with a warning buzzer which notifies members of roll calls in time for them to scurry through the subway to the Capitol building in time for the second calling of their names.

Wall Safe for "Valuables"
A wall safe is provided each occupant for his valuables and Corn Belt visitors wonder whether it might not, on occasions, serve as a substitute for a reclinator, which the builders did not provide.
Some of the inner offices have private entrances, obviating the need of a member walking through his reception room, where job hunters or other unwelcome visitors may be waiting to collar him. A private wash room, with running ice water, is provided for each suite, an innovation as compared to present accommodations.
The largest and most elaborate room, from which the Capitol dome may be viewed through Ionic columns, will be occupied by the ways and means committee. "Full length windows will be cloaked with heavy velvet draperies, providing a rich background for the light of crystal and gold chandeliers.
Surmounting the room is a massive walnut committee table, elevated several steps from the floor level, beautifully hand-carved, shaped like a half-moon and seating twenty-five members.
All of the committee rooms are finished with parquet floors, but the beauty of these will be concealed beneath thick carpeting.

Mr. Fixit
Write your troubles to Mr. Fixit. He is The Times representative at the city hall and will be glad to present your case to the proper city officials. Write him in care of The Times signing your full name and address. Name will not be published.

Mr. Fixit—There is a hole in the pavement in front of 1210 North Gladstone avenue.
The information was turned over to Wilbur Winslow, street commissioner, and he ordered the necessary repairs.

Mr. Fixit—A leak in a transformer has been troubling a number of residents of the neighborhood of Merrill and East streets.

Your complaint has been referred to the electrical division of the Indianapolis Power and Light Company. The transformer will be repaired immediately.

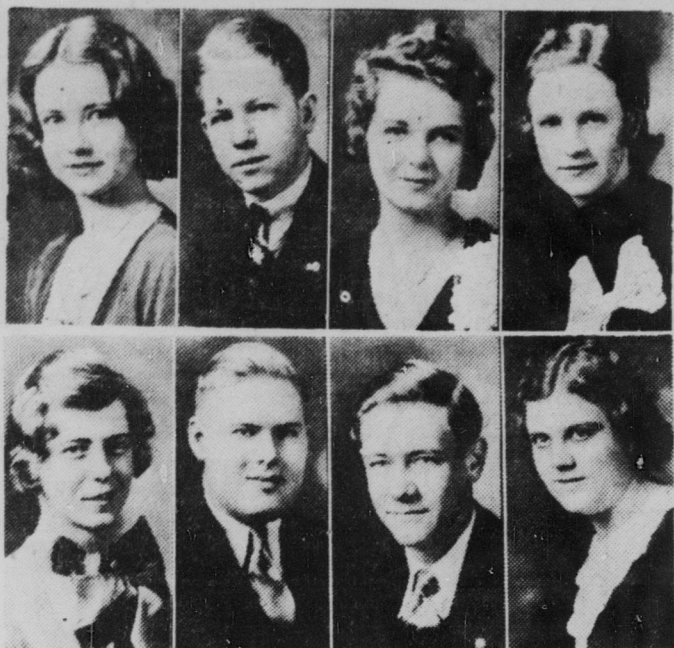

Mr. Fixit—A bad hole in the crossing of the Belt railroad on Martindale avenue is endangering the lives of every one who crosses it.

The information was turned over to the works board and Bert C. Myers, terminal manager of the Indianapolis Union Railroad, has been directed to repair the crossing.

TECHNOCRACY IS 'ON WAY OUT,' ASSERTS PITKIN

Returning to Nothing, Says
Columbia Professor, at Town Hall.

Technocracy is "a strange sky-rocket movement which came out of nothing and seems to be rapidly returning on a round-trip ticket," asserted Professor Walter B. Pitkin of the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia university Friday before a Town Hall audience at English's.

The original idea behind Technocracy on the part of eminent engineers, he said, was to make a survey of the various kinds of energy in industry in this country and to ascertain how much is being wasted.

Another group appeared and the "economic theory" was injected into the question.
"Then the third stage in the development of technocracy," he said, "passed out of the blue prints into the comic strips."

Columbia's action in cutting all ties with Howard Scott and his group was the result of Scott's assertion that he and his "Technocrats" were ready to "dump" all Republicans, Democrats, Socialists and Communists and give the positions to the Technocrats and the engineers.

The real good of technocracy, he said, is "man's conquest of energy."

"The work man does in industry is declining in importance," he pointed out. As an example, he told of a factory being built in New Jersey to be operated by twenty-nine men, instead of the seventy-five or eighty men who would have been needed ten years ago.

"We now are in the beginning," he said, "of a new machine age that is taking over not only simple judgment but the highest mental functions."

Pitkin said that "the Technocrats today are fifteen years behind the times because they are thinking of the machine as a labor saving device."

"Labor unions today are thinking in terms of man—the worker before the machine came into existence," he added and mentioned briefly "the great decay in trade unions."

'TOO WILLING' DELAY DIVORCE

Both Parties in Suit Are Anxious to Separate;
Judge Keeps Case.

A circuit court lesson in how to obtain a divorce was given Friday to an Indianapolis couple, who learned it doesn't pay to be willing, especially in Marion county.

Judge Earl R. Cox ruled Thomas and Helen Smith must wait two months for a decision.
While his wife whispered to attorneys she "just must have a divorce," Smith made a similar appeal from the witness stand.

Smith admitted he was considering marrying again and told the court he had beaten his wife.

Joseph G. Wood, deputy prosecutor representing Smith, who did not represent his wife's suit, explained: "Both parties want a divorce, but they seem to have forgotten about their 6-year-old child."

Mrs. Smith then sought to bolster her petition by explaining her husband had struck, beaten and choked her for hiccups (bad breath), oral hygiene, and other antiseptic uses.

The New Vicks Vaseline Antiseptic—by the makers of Vicks VapoRub—brings this unique advantage. Born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. Aided by record low prices on raw materials—and Vicks facilities for mass production—Vicks Chemists have produced a large 10-ounce bottle—a usual 75c value—that is priced regularly at only 35c.

The name, of course, guarantees high quality. It is simply the best

INDICT HOOSIER ON TAX CHARGE

Federal indictment of F. Henry Prinz, prominent New Albany business man, on charges of income tax evasion was revealed here Friday.

Prinz, who surrendered and was released on $10,000 bond, is charged with filing a false income tax report for the year 1929 and evading $24,879 in tax.

The government charges his income for 1929 was $303,000, and that he represented it as only $164,591, paying only $19,000 tax. Prinz formerly operated the Model Baking Company, New Albany, profit on its sale being a large part of the income charged by the government. He will be arraigned in court here Feb. 3.

Unusual Trial Offer
Of course, the only real proof of its quality—and its economy—is in actual use. To furnish this proof, five million bottles of a special trial size are being supplied druggists everywhere at less than cost of manufacture. A 25c value, these trial packages are priced at only 10c—while the supply lasts.—Advertisement.

TWO HOOSIERS GIVEN MEDALS FOR HEROISM

Railroad Clerk, Schoolboy
Honored by Carnegie
Fund Commission.

By United Press
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 28.—Two Indiana residents were among thirty persons honored Friday by the Carnegie hero fund commission.
Edward J. Ewing Sr., 51, railroad clerk, Winamac, received a bronze medal for saving Mrs. Amelia Adams, 79, from being killed by a train at Winamac, Jan. 30, 1931.
Mrs. Adams started to cross a track on which a passenger train was approaching. Ewing, anticipating the danger, ran toward the woman as she was midway between the rails. He grasped her under the arms and pushed her ahead of him off the track. They barely cleared the engine.

Dress 'Em Up

Morris Wants Uniforms
for Policewomen
in City.

INDIANAPOLIS has fogs like London, so it should have policewomen such as those who grace the world's largest city. At least, that's what Donald S. Morris, member of the board of safety, thinks.

Distressed by the fact that Indianapolis policewomen do not look very police-ish," Morris suggested at a board meeting that they be required to wear uniforms.

"Do policewomen wear uniforms in other cities?" asked Charles R. Myers, board president.

"I think I read somewhere that the women on the force in London wear them," reminisced Morris.

The board took no action on the matter.
3, Syracuse, Ind., was given a bronze medal for saving Lillian Reed, 17, from drowning in Dewart Lake on June 29, 1930.

ORDER BIDS ON 100 MILES OF STATE PAVING

Construction to Result in Indiana Obtaining Federal Funds.

Immediate advertising for bids for construction of 100 miles paved roads in various parts of the state was voted today by the state highway commission.

The construction will result in the state obtaining remainder due it from the federal emergency fund. Work must be completed by July 1 to get the money.

Most of the projects in the program will be small, some being three to four miles.

HOUSE CLASH BREAKS OVER MINING BILL

Opponents Charge Workers
Do Not Want Change in Conditions.

One of the most heated clashes of the present session of the general assembly occurred in the house Friday over a mine safety bill, advanced to third reading.

The measure stipulates that shot firing must be done at a time when men are not working, provides telephone communication with the surface, and prohibits more than ten men working in a mine which has only one outlet.

Opponents of the measure charged it would result in closing of state mines and that miners do not want it.

Six groups of workers have written opposing the bill, it was declared.
