- 2 tablespoons butter or meat drippings
- 1-2 cup rice
- 1 cup chopped meat
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1-4 teaspoon pepper
- 1-2 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon sugar

Melt butter in iron frying pan and add onion cut in thin slices. Cook over a low fire for five minutes and add tomatoes just as they come from the can. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, paprika and sugar and add well-washed rice.

Cover closely and cook over a low fire until rice is tender and excess liquid has been absorbed. It will take about forty-five minutes. Stir in meat and heat ten minutes before serving.

Manners and Morals

BY JANE JORDAN

If you disagree with Jane Jordan, do not hesitate to write and tell her so. Letters of opinion always are welcome, and the best ones will be published.

Dear Jane Jordan—While I think you have many fine ideas and an uncanny gift of knowing human nature, it sort of chills a person—the things you say. The world is dark enough and you have a tremendous power of the press to do good or bad. If I had it, I would do wonders with it. You uphold men in everything, but are hard on your own sex.

B. C. A.

Dear B. C. A.—In the same mail with your letter comes one from "Nasty," which inquires, "Why do you always take sides with the men and razz the women to death?"

I am not unsympathetic with my own sex. If I had to live in a world peopled with no one but men, I would lose my mind in short order and turn into a gibbering idiot. I want of some one sympathetic to talk to.

I always have felt that women had a much harder time in life than men. For hundreds of years western civilization has given the dominant position to men. The property, liberty and even the conscience of a wife belonged to her husband.

The case of woman has been stated eloquently in the following words by Samuel Schmalhausen: "Woman's plight on earth is tragic. She is tortured by the problem of age as man is not. She is frightened by sex in a sense man hardly ever knows. She is subjected to ego-frustration, with more attendant deprivation and humiliation than man experiences. Her creative power is discouraged or derided. "Sir, a woman's composing is like a dog's walking on his hind legs. It is not done well, but you are surprised to find it done at all."

"Her desire to leap beyond sex into humanness is on every side obstructed and thwarted. She is discouraged from using her mind and then lambasted for being emotional and infantile. She is brought up to be so servile, dependent and compliant that forever after she is rendered unfit for life's profundities. "She dares not be as critical of man as he naturally and perennially is of her, for fear of losing his respect and love! Subtle servility in the female; arrogant egotism in the male; there's life's equation for compatibility—in a civilized world!"

This is the status of woman in the world today as I see it. Within the last fifty years, women have made enormous strides in gaining equality with men. They can inherit and own property; they can vote and sit on juries; they can take part in the government and follow professions; they have equal rights in their own children, and their earnings belong to themselves. "But they have not freed themselves from a subconscious dependence upon men, nor can the average woman achieve a happy life without annexing a man of her own. What I try hardest to do in this column is to interpret men to women. Unless they understand this masculine creature of whom they have such great need, how can they hope to adjust themselves to a lifetime of living with him? Women forever are baffled by the behavior of men and forever in search of a method by which to make them conform to their own ideal of the way a man should behave.

When I point out the causes for a husband's or a sweetheart's behavior, I am not necessarily "taking sides." I am only stating some facts about masculine psychology which I am powerless to change. I long since have given up the notion that you can change a man's nature merely by giving him fits for the things he does, or by passing laws commanding him to be good. "Laws must be written in the heart before they are written on paper," writes Havelock Ellis. It is on the heart of man that woman must make her attack, for there is nothing to be gained by throwing statutes in his teeth.

I am very fond of men and would find it as dull to live in a world without men as I would in a world without women. I simply am reconciled to them as they are and have ceased to take their emotional excursions seriously.

When properly understood, men are simple, direct, and pathetically easy to please. I have only the interests of my sex at heart when I urge them to look upon men more as children and less as gods.

Men need women almost as much as women need men, and the need is not wholly biological. A few lines from Virginia Woolf contain wisdom which no woman who wants to bind a man to her can afford to overlook: "Women have served all these centuries as looking-glasses, possessing the magic and delicious power of reflecting the figure of man at twice its natural size... For if he begins to tell the truth, the figure in the looking-glass shrinks; his fitness for life is diminished. "How is he to go on giving judgment, civilizing natives, making laws, writing books, dressing up and speculating at banquets, unless he can see himself at breakfast and at dinner at least twice the size he really is? "The looking-glass vision is of supreme importance, because it charges the vitality; it stimulates the nervous system. Take it away and man may die, like the drug fiend deprived of his cocaine."

NO MORE HARD-WORK WASHDAYS FOR HER! — by DALTON VALENTINE

LOOK, ROSALIND—I GOT A LETTER FROM MY FRIEND, THELMA. SHE ENCLOSED THIS CLIPPING. I WONDER WHY?

IT'S A RINSO ADVERTISEMENT. I GUESS THAT'S HER WAY OF SAYING YOU OUGHT TO CHANGE YOUR WASHDAY HABITS.

WELL, WHY DIDN'T SHE SAY SOMETHING ABOUT IT WHEN SHE WAS HERE LAST MONDAY?

MAYBE SHE THOUGHT YOUR FEELINGS WOULD BE HURT IF SHE CALLED YOU OLD-FASHIONED. NO UP-TO-DATE WOMAN SCRUBS AND BOILS HER CLOTHES WHEN RINSO SOAKS THEM SNOWY WHITE SO EASILY.

TRY RINSO NEXT MONDAY AND SEE WHAT THICK SUDS IT GIVES IN OUR HARD WATER. SEE HOW RINSO WASHES EVEN COLORED CLOTHES AS BRIGHT AS NEW.

WELL, IF IT SAVES BACK-BREAKING WORK, I'M ALL FOR RINSO.

NEXT WASHDAY —AND ROSALIND, IT'S SO ECONOMICAL—I DID THE BIGGEST, WHITEST WASH WITH ONLY A LITTLE RINSO. FOR DISHWASHING, TOO, IT'S SO EASY ON THE HANDS.

"One big box seems to last and last," says Mrs. R. D. Watts of Pontiac, Mich. "RINSO is the most economical soap I've ever used.
