

W. G. SPENCER NEW FRANKLIN COLLEGE HEAD

Pittsburgh Pastor Named as President of State School.

Selections of Dr. William Gear Spencer, pastor of the First Baptist church, Pittsburgh, Pa., and former registrar of Franklin college, as president of the college was announced today by the board of directors.

The choice was made at a board meeting in the Columbia Club Thursday night.

Dr. Spencer was to appear before students at convocation today, but will not assume duties until July 1.

He served several years as president of Hillsdale college in Michigan.

Succeeds Dr. Rainey

Dr. Spencer succeeds Dr. Homer P. Rainey, who resigned the presidency in June, 1931, to accept a similar position at Bucknell university, R. H. Kent, professor of Philosophy, has served as acting president since.

Born in San Francisco, Dr. Spencer was graduated from Denison university in 1907 and received the master of arts degree in 1908. After studies at Colgate Theological Seminary, at the Sorbonne in Paris, and a trip through Italy, he became active in academic and church circles of the Baptist church.

Has Six Children

He served as professor of classical languages of Franklin college from 1920 to 1922, resigning to go to Hillsdale. His other services were on faculties of Doane academy of Ohio, Colgate academy of New York, and Chautauqua faculties.

Active in civic affairs, he once served as a district governor of Rotary International. He also has participated in state and national affairs of the Y. M. C. A.

He is married and has six children, and holds memberships in various college associations, including Phi Beta Kappa.

DEAN VOICES CRITICISM OF U. S. MISSIONS

Foreign Hospitals Need
Much Bigger Staffs, Says
Dr. Emerson.

Criticism of American missions in foreign fields was made in a speech by Dr. Charles P. Emerson, dean emeritus of the Indiana school of medicine, before members of the Central Christian church Thursday.

"Some American missionary hospitals have physicians so overworked that they give hundreds of prescriptions in one day—prescriptions bearing a bit of the Scriptures and perhaps the wrong prescriptions," he declared.

Dr. Emerson charged the American missions are so short staffed as to physicians and surgeons that there is no time to discuss spiritual affairs with the patients.

Sometimes in the rush, the medicine isn't right. The natives begin to believe, after a time, that the gospel preached is no better than the medicine dispensed," said Dr. Emerson.

He recommended larger staffs of American missionary physicians and fewer dollars for large buildings.

"If Christianity succeeds in the Orient," Dr. Emerson concluded, "it won't be the current American Christianity. America has no patent rights on Christianity; Christ was not an American, but an Oriental."

WATSON FLAYS DIRECT VOTE FOR SENATORS

Speaks to 500 Republicans
at Annual Columbia Club
Beefsteak Dinner.

Scathing the Democrats and pointing to Republican superiority, former Senator James E. Watson indulged in oratorical fireworks before nearly five hundred Republicans attending the annual Columbia Club beefsteak dinner.

Urging united support for President Franklin D. Roosevelt in his economic recovery program, the former senator praised the Republican minority in congress for voting to give Roosevelt wide powers in the present emergency.

He condemned the former Democratic minority and Republican insurgents for refusing the same power to former President Herbert Hoover.

The sore spot in our government, he said, is direct election of United States senators and the primary system. He added that before the popular election of senators "it was not necessary to promise everything to everybody in order to be elected."

With a straight face, Watson paid tribute to Senator Arthur R. Robinson, asserting "we never had a difference between us."

When some one in the audience shouted: "Tell us about Huey Long," the former senator asked: "Have you ever seen that play, 'Of Thee I Sing'?"

Referring to the magazine article of David Barry, former senate sergeant-at-arms, stating "only a few members of congress sell their votes," Watson said:

"I never knew one member of congress in my thirty years service who would sell his vote for cash."

PHILADELPHIA, March 31.—Pennsylvania railroad officials said today they are considering the sale of beer in dining cars if it can be done without financial loss when the foaming beverage comes back.

ACE MATADOR OF SPAIN IS SOUGHT

Popularity Contest Fails to Solve Issue.

By United Press

MADRID, March 31.—Who at present is the best matador in Spain?

The question is hard to answer. In the old days the aces came in pairs, on down through the centuries that continued, until the second decade of the twentieth century.

The great pair then was Jose Gomez and Juan Belmonte.

In a recent popularity contest to settle the question, Domingo Ortega received 2,147 votes, Marcial Lalande received 2,127 votes, Vicente Barrera received 2,116 votes.
