

CITY CHILDREN MOURN DEATH OF OLD SOLDIER

Captain George W. Fox, 89,
Is Taken Here at Home of Daughter.

The children of Woodruff Place lost one of their best friends when "Captain" George W. Fox, 89-year-old Civil war veteran and former town marshal, died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. M. E. Clark, 1427 West Fifty-second street.

As marshal of Woodruff Place for more than fourteen years, he established a tradition that children never became lost in his domain. He knew them all and personally escorted them home when they went astray.

Captain Fox served in Company B, Hundred Thirty-third volunteers as a corporal during the Civil war. His title was honorary.

As a boy he served Abraham Lincoln at a table in his father's tavern at Jacksonville, Ill., many times, when Lincoln visited the inn.

Mr. Fox was born at Bunker Hill, Ill., Feb. 19, 1844, and lived there until he was 6, when the family moved to Jacksonville. He married and came to Indianapolis in 1909.

He is survived by his two daughters, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. A. S. Lovins, of Rockford, Ill.

Funeral services were to be held at the Hisey & Titus funeral establishment at 4 today. Burial will be at Jacksonville, Ill.

Former County Officer Dies

Following an illness of several months, W. Burchard Butler, 56, former chief deputy county auditor, died Saturday night in the Indiana Christian hospital. He lived at R. 17, Box 197, northwest of the city. He held his auditing post sixteen years.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 Tuesday in the Crooked Creek Baptist church, Kessler boulevard and Michigan road. Place of burial has not been set.

Mr. Butler was born in Jennings county and came to Marion county when he was 19. He taught school several years in Marion county, and in 1916, became chief deputy in the auditor's office until 1930, when he became secretary of the Tax Accountants and Advisors, Inc. He was a member of Hoesbrook Masonic lodge in New Augusta, the Crooked Creek church, and the Sahara Grotto.

Father to Rest by Son

A father who waged a court fight in an effort to make funeral arrangements for a 12-year-old son of whose custody he had been deprived, will be buried Tuesday in the same cemetery with the son and the wife and mother, who died during divorce proceedings.

The father is William E. Dumont, 41, Veterans' hospital employee, who died Saturday.

Funeral services will be held at 10 Tuesday morning at the Wald funeral home, 1619 North Illinois street, with the Rev. Frederick R. Daries, pastor of the Zion Evangelical church, officiating.

Burial will be in Washington Park cemetery.

There, side by side, are the graves of the son, William E. Dumont Jr., and his mother, Mrs. Elisabeth Dumont. She died Sept. 17, 1932, and the son on March 25.

At the time of his death, the boy was in the custody of Paul H. Hussey, a relative, and it was against Hussey that the father directed his court fight for permission to arrange the funeral. The dispute was settled out of court.

Drowns in Lake Freeman

Body of Ralph Millsbaugh, 38, of R. 7, Box 17, southwest of Indianapolis, was recovered Sunday from Lake Freeman at Monticello, Ind.

He was drowned Saturday when a boat he and William Martin, 50, of 20 South Arsenal avenue, were using on a fishing trip sank.

Mr. Millsbaugh, father of three children, was an agent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, having been in its employ five years. He came here from North Vernon, Ind.

Martin, whose spitz dog clung to its master's neck as occupants of the boat were plunged into the water, was rescued by James Nichols of Monticello. The dog was saved with its owner.

The other man sank before Nichols could reach him.

Mr. Millsbaugh leaves his widow, Mrs. Ida Millsbaugh, and three children, Ruth Ann, Robert and Fay.

State Man Is Taken

Following a long illness, Pearl Parish, 50, of near Greenfield, lifelong resident of Hancock county, died this morning in the city hospital.

Mr. Parish was born in New Palestine on Nov. 29, 1882, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Parish. He was a member of the Masonic lodge and the Methodist church.

Funeral services will be held at 1 Wednesday in the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward, at Lewisville, Ind. Burial will be in Hagerstown.

Funeral Services Today

Funeral services for Elmer M. Sutherland, 35, of 2002 Park avenue, World war veteran, who died Friday in the United States Veterans' hospital in Marion, were to be held at 2 this afternoon in the Ragsdale and Price funeral home, 1219 North Alabama street. Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

Scanlon Rites

Last rites for Joseph D. Scanlon, 25, of 1226 North Meridian street, who died Saturday in St. Vincent's hospital, after an operation, Friday night, will be held at 9 Tuesday in the SS. Peter and Paul Cathedral. Burial will be in Holy Cross cemetery.

Death Claims Surgeon

Late rites for Dr. John A. White, surgeon, and captain in the medical corps during the World war, who died Sunday of a heart attack at his home, 3733 Winthrop avenue, will be held at 2:30 Tuesday in the home. Burial will be in Crown Hill cemetery.

Services will be conducted by the

CONTRACT BRIDGE

BY WM. E. M'KENNEY,
Secretary American Bridge League

THE expert contract player must have many weapons at his command. While the bidding is in progress, imagination and logical inference are probably his most valuable attributes, but once the play has started, success may depend upon a knowledge of mathematical probabilities.

The average player makes many plays which have less than an even chance of winning, and overlooks many which would add to his chance of success.

Today's hand was played by a leading woman player who has spent years studying and teaching bidding methods. Like many another she has developed a high degree of skill in bidding, but has not brought her play up to the same level.

Both sides were vulnerable, and South opened the bidding with one club. West passed, and North responded with one diamond—a one-over-one force.

ENCOURAGED by North's constructive bid, South considered game practically certain, so she responded with two no trump—a game demand force. North carried the bidding to three no trump, which became the final contract.

West opened the jack of spades, which declarer won with the ace. The declarer realized that the success of her contract depended upon establishing her diamonds before the opponents could establish their spades.

Accordingly, she led the king of diamonds and then a small diamond to dummy's ace, but when East did not follow to the second diamond, all hope of making the contract was lost.

The adversaries eventually were able to take two diamonds, two hearts and two spades, defeating the contract two tricks.

WHEN the hand was over, the declarer remarked, "Well, all I needed was a break in diamonds, and with only five out, they ought to be divided three-two."

If this lady had studied the mathematics of distribution, she would know that five outstanding cards will be distributed three-two 68 per cent of the time, four-one 28 per cent of the time, and five-nothing, 4 per cent.

By playing for the three-two split, she would be successful in more than two-thirds of the cases. However, a complete application of mathematical principles would have increased that percentage considerably.

To play the diamonds for maximum results, declarer should lay down the king to the first trick, then play the eight, and if West fails to cover, declarer should play low from dummy.

This would insure establishing the diamond suit with only one loser, except in the case where East held originally Q J x x, or Q J x x x.

Those possibilities comprise only about 10 per cent of the total, so the declarer could have increased her chance of success to about 90 per cent.
