

QUAKE 'FREAKS' ARE DESCRIBED TO GEOLOGISTS

Tricks Played With Rivers, Lakes Related by U. S. Surveyor.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Strange tricks that earthquakes play with rivers, lakes and subterranean waters of the earth were described to the American Geophysical Union at its meeting here recently by Captain N. H. Heck of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Earthquakes often cause fountains of water or liquid mud to spurt from the ground, Captain Heck said. They sometimes change the course of subterranean streams, or the quantity of water flowing in them. In the earthquake that occurred in New York State in 1929, the Attica reservoir filled, although there had been no rain, while in a region not far distant the wells went dry.

New Lakes Formed

Earthquakes often cause strange behavior by rivers and other bodies of surface water. The famous New Madrid quake in the lower Mississippi valley over a century ago caused the great stream to flow backwards for a time, and the disturbance was followed by the formation of several entirely new lakes that still are in existence.

Earthquakes may dam up streams to form lakes, or they may break down natural dams and release floods or mud flows. Some of the most disastrous effects of recent earthquakes in interior China were due to the jarring loose of masses of water-soaked fine earth, causing terrific landslides.

Urges Wave Studies

Water, in its turn, has effects on earthquakes. Some of the strangest and to scientists the most puzzling, of earthquake phenomena are the so-called gravity waves of earthquakes, waves that travel visibly along the surface at express train speeds, though they are very much slower at that than the waves that are felt, but are too swift to be seen.

These gravity waves are much affected in their intensity and velocity by the amount of water held by the soil through which they move. Captain Heck recommended a thorough study of the rate of wave travel through water-soaked earth as a problem promising both theoretical and practical results in the science of earthquakes.

SHOES ARE RETURNED TO NEEDY TWIN GIRLS

Story in Times Results in Miser Finding Missing Property.

Six-year-old twin daughters of a needy family are happy today with new shoes which were returned to them after having been lost Thursday.

Herman Cox, 313 Hanson avenue, found the shoes on the running board of his automobile, and read in The Times Friday about their loss. Early today he obtained the address of the twins and returned the shoes. Cox had driven to his home before finding the shoes on the running board.

In a letter to The Times, the twins' mother, who has nine other children, explained the loss. With part of $2 her husband earned cleaning wall paper, she purchased the shoes, but they were returned because the size was too large. Twin sons, 10, took them back.

On the way home, the boys stopped to try on new shoes provided for them by the school board, seating themselves on the running board of Cox's car which was parked in front of a garage he and his brother operate at 718 West Washington street. They walked away without the shoes.

EXPECT BEER'S RETURN TO HELP FISHERMEN

Industry Hopes Demand for Smoked Herring Will Be Revived.

BOSTON, April 29.—Beer may spruce up the fishing industry. The barrooms of the old days offered bits of smoked herring, smoked halibut, or salt cod in their free lunches as thirst-provokers. And with the advent of prohibition sale of these products fell off sharply. Provincetown and Cape Cod reporting that its salt cod output dropped 75 per cent.

Though the herring, halibut and salt cod nevertheless will be found as potent as ever in building up a new thirst.

LABOR FIGHTS RAILROAD BILL

Union Chiefs Fear Economies Proposed by Roosevelt to Cost Many Jobs.

BY MARSHALL MCNEIL Times Special Writer

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Organized railway labor, backed by thirty or more votes in the senate, is fighting to have President Roosevelt's railroad bill rewritten when it reached Capitol Hill, if not before.

The proposed legislation, submitted to the White House by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper some days ago, may be sent to congress either today or next week.

His chief purpose is to effect railway economies, by the elimination of wasteful services and practices, consolidations, pooling arrangements and financial reorganizations where necessary.

A railway co-ordination is to be appointed to handle these affairs for the government, in co-operation with the carriers.

The co-ordinator's orders would be reviewable by the interstate commerce commission, and would not be subject to the anti-trust laws. This emergency plan, intended to operate for a year, may be extended by the President if the emergency exists after twelve months.

Labor's opposition, voiced through George M. Harrison, acting chairman of the railway labor executive committee, was emphatic.

"We see no justification for drastic reductions of essential transportation service in order that unearned interest may be paid on idle capital."

"Communities deprived of adequate and competitive rail transportation will be depressed further. Thousands of railway workers will be added to the bread lines. Economic recovery will be retarded by this further deflation of business and labor."

"If we have reached the end of railroad competition we have arrived at the necessity for immediate, complete and direct public control."

FARM BILL FACED WITH LONG DELAY

Directors Propose Renewal of Glen Haven Operation

Cemetery Chiefs to Seek Approval of Plan for Refinancing.

Renewal of operation of Glen Haven Memorial cemetery on Kessler boulevard, will be attempted by directors and officers, it was announced at a meeting of nearly seventy-five lot owners at the Washington, Thursday night.

Approval of Superior Judge Clarence E. Weir will be sought Monday to a refinancing plan under which the receivership will be lifted.

It is understood that sufficient money has been raised to pay receivers' fees, court costs, accrued interest and other expenses necessary for resuming operation.

Moratorium by Creditors

Creditors of the association have agreed to a moratorium of five years on indebtedness, it was said. Lot owners, who have organized in an effort to recover payments, will be granted representation in the affairs of the association, under the refinancing program.

Announcement of the plan was made to the meeting in a letter from the directors and officers addressed to Paul C. Wetter, chairman of the lot owners committee.

Preliminary plans for participating in the management were laid at the meeting when Wetter was authorized to select a committee to aid the officers.

Wetter also was authorized to file a claim against the receivership for $78,768.00, representing a portion of a perpetual maintenance fund which has been used for other purposes.

Advises Against Litigation

In an address to the group, Wetter advised against resorting to litigation, pointing out that such procedure would handicap the refinancing program.

W. C. Mendenhall, auditor, who was employed to analyze affairs of the cemetery, also advised today against any move which would prolong settlement.

"From my examination of the records of the association and my knowledge of present plans, a resort to litigation would handicap the efforts of officers and directors in resuming operations and reaching a paying basis, which, in the long run, is the desire of the lot owners," Mendenhall said.
