

PUBLIC WORKS LARGE PART OF RECOVERY BILL

Aimed at Stimulation of Business Rapidly: Direct
Gifts to Cities.

BY RUTH FINNEY,
Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Cities and towns that long ago gave up hope of getting loans for public works from the federal government under the R. F. C. act, will find the brightest evidence of the new deal in President Roosevelt's national recovery act now before congress.

When the public works act of 1932 reluctantly was accepted by Herbert Hoover, its administration was turned over to banker-members of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to whom the matter of ample security for loans—required in the law—was more important than the purpose of creating work.

Little money has been pledged under that act, and still less actually has been spent.

The public works section of the national recovery act reflects a spirit in sharp contrast with this. Line by line, it is aimed to get money out into the communities of the country as rapidly as possible.

The entire $3,300,000,000 appropriation is to be spent within two years, perhaps sooner.

"Priming of the Pump"

President Roosevelt looks to this spending to stimulate industry. It is to be the "shot in the arm," the "priming of the pump" that is to set in motion the elaborate machinery of rehabilitation contained in the farm act and the industrial section of the recovery act.

Ten days after operation of the new measure begins, all public works loans are transferred from jurisdiction of the R. F. C. to a new federal emergency administrator of public works. The R. F. C. reverts to its original status as a relief board for banks and railroads. The administrator of public works begins helping states, cities and towns spend money to create jobs.

The administrator's first task is to prepare a program of public works for the country. This may include:

Construction and repair of highways, public buildings, and any publicly owned facilities.

Conservation Is Included

Conservation and development of natural resources, including control, utilization and purification of waters, prevention of soil erosion, development of waterpower, transmission of electrical energy and construction of river and harbor improvements.

Construction under public regulation of low cost housing and slum clearance projects.

Any project for which loans were made under the R. F. C. act, or heretofore constructed or carried on by public authority.

In addition, the federal construction program may include building of naval vessels, airplanes, and army housing or mechanization of the army.

Stimulate Employment

Within these broad outlines the administrator is authorized to start building federal public works, or to make loans or grants to other government agencies "with a view to increasing direct employment."

The self-liquidating requirement which blocked so many loans under the old act is eliminated.

Outright gifts for construction are a new feature, not included in any previous bill.

The national recovery act gives the President power to present local governments with as much as 30 per cent of the cost of any project, and there is a reasonable probability that congress will increase the percentage or remove the limitation.

HUGE FUND DONATED FOR SWEDEN MUSEUM

"Grand Old Man" of Nation's Banking Gives $400,000 to Cause.

By Science Service

STOCKHOLM, May 30.—One of the biggest donations ever made for a museum in Sweden, a sum of 2,000,000 kroner (about $400,000), has been bequeathed for the purpose of erecting a building for the technical museum of Stockholm by the "Knut and Alice Wallenberg Foundation," created by "the grand old man of Swedish banking," Knut A. Wallenberg and his wife, Mrs. Alice Wallenberg.

The conditions attached to the donation are that the government should place building space at the disposal of the museum free of cost, and that the work, in order to reduce unemployment, should be begun as soon as possible, in any case before the end of 1934.

The technical museum of Stockholm is at present housed temporarily in the Royal Swedish institute for engineering research, the head of which is Commercial Counselor Axel F. Enstrom, one of the active supporters of the museum.

The director of the museum, T. Althin, gradually has brought together a large, interesting and valuable collection of objects and exhibits illustrating the origin, history and development of the present technical methods and inventions.

HERE'S HOW TO CAST YOUR VOTE IN REPEAL ELECTION

For Ratification

☐ JOHN DOE

☐ RICHARD DOE

Against Ratification

☐ CHARLES COE

☐ MICHAEL MOE

Written Ticket

Do not mark in this circle. Write the names of candidates below to right of the square.

Here is how your ballot will look on June 6, and here is how to vote:

To repeal the eighteenth amendment, put a cross in circle on the left which is "For Ratification." Dry voters, opposed to repeal, should cross the middle circle above, which is "Against Ratification."

No cross should be placed in the third circle labeled "Written Ticket," but names not appearing on the ballot may be written below the circle and marked for or against ratification, but not both. And only by those not voting in either of the other columns.

The eighteenth amendment must be repealed by adoption of the twenty-first amendment, so wet voters must vote "for ratification" if they want the eighteenth amendment repealed.

Thousands Monthly Brought Into Famous Scenic, Religious Center.

By United Press

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 30.—Although surrounded on all sides by outstanding scenic wonders, a religious institution is and always has been this city's main tourist attraction.

The tourist trade is worth thousands monthly and large part of it results directly from interest shown in the Latter Day Saints (Mormon) church, for which this city is international headquarters. Right at hand is Great Salt Lake, the world's second largest dead sea. Not far away lie Zion National park,

NEW TASK IS GIVEN FEENEY

Named Probation Officer by Judge for Two Men in Arson Case.

Al Feeney, who has a host of jobs as head of the state safety department, had another task added to the list Monday by order of Judge Roscoe C. O'Byrne of the circuit court at Brookville.

The judge appointed Feeney as probation officer for two men who confessed arson. Feeney has the fire marshal's office under his department.

Walter Lee Dolan and Frank Cohen, both of Connersville, having pleaded guilty to burning Cohen's car and collecting $425 insurance, were ordered by the judge to report to Feeney monthly for the next five years. Should they misbehave the judge can pronounce the prison sentence, that he has withheld, at any time.

Dolan's bragging about being a big shot arson man was what caused the arrest of the pair last year, his confession states. When Feeney took over the fire marshal's office the confessions obtained from both had disappeared from the files, Feeney said today.
