

Torrid Days No Handicap for Society

Summer Season in Full Swing, Despite Heat Wave.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Times Woman's Page Editor

FIRST day of summer and longest day of the year, and still society about it? Its leaders laughed at the irony of the past torridity being a prelude to summer. "We'll maintain a cool composure and go merrily in search of a gay vacation," they said. And they did.

It wasn't difficult for Miss Marjorie Kittle to fill the waking hours of the longest day of the year. There's a new attraction at the Kittle home on Kessler boulevard and Michigan road. Joan Jackson, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Hart, is receiving attentions, which any debutante would envy.

Aunt Marjorie spends many hours a day at the beck and call of little Joan. "I'll be kept busy seeing that Joan didn't do too much splashing in the wading pool at Woodstock," replied Miss Kittle to queries of plans for the day.

Meanwhile, parents of Miss Kittle, Mr. and Mrs. John Sloane Kittle, make preparations to go to their Lake Maxinkuckee home. They will leave June 27, when John Sloane Kittle Jr. will enter the summer session of Culver Military academy. Miss Kittle will visit friends in the city until after the Fourth of July.

Bride-Elect Is Honored
Golfing and swimming attractions at the Woodstock Club made the longest day a short one for Miss Priscilla Miner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Miner. Miss Miner just has returned from a month's trip in the east.

When the sun peeped into Miss Julia Freyn's window Wednesday morning, she probably stretched and exclaimed, "How grand to be alive." At any rate, she planned to live the day to the fullest, getting a great deal of joy from incosequential things.

Friends of Miss Eileen O'Connor paid prenuptial honor to her at a luncheon bridge party, given by Mrs. Paul Furgason in the afternoon at her home, 5648 Broadway.

Swimming Is Pastime
Her guests were Mrs. Maurice McNulty, Mrs. Philip Derham, Mrs. Theodore Marbaugh, Mrs. Earl Lowe, Mrs. Russell Pierson, Mrs. Leon DeSautels, Mrs. Walter Stuhldreher, Mrs. Felix Krieg and Miss Helen Carroll and Patricia O'Connor.

Miss Jane Watson turned to swimming at the Woodstock as her pastime. She was joined at one time or another by Mrs. Blaine Miller Jr., Miss Lois Graham, Miss Sybil Stafford and Miss Dorothy Johnston.

Miss Jane Roemler will desert the group soon, when she joins her family at the summer home, in Michigan.

Card Parties
The Bethel Spiritual church, 1331 Spruce street, will entertain tonight with a euchre party under the sponsorship of the Ladies Aid Society.

Card parties will be given this afternoon and tonight at 83 Catherine hall, Shelby and Tabor streets, for the benefit of the lawn social. Mrs. Thomas Hannon and Mrs. Peter Staub will be in charge.

Daily Recipe
LOBSTER CHOWDER
Remove the tendons from the contents of a 6-ounce can of lobster, and shred. Add one cup of potato, diced small, one and one-half cups boiling water and one-half teaspoon salt. Boil until the potatoes are tender.

Send one quart milk with one sliced onion and two tablespoons butter, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Break up six Boston crackers and lay on top of the lobster and potatoes in a soup tureen, strain the onion out of the milk, and pour over. This serves four to five.

Drink Beer, but Watch Your Diet to Retain Figure, Beauty Expert Says

By Times Special

NEW YORK, June 22.—"American women needn't be afraid of their figures if they'll only swallow a little common sense with their beer," said diminutive Madame Sylvia, famous masseuse and beauty culturist whose list of scolded and pouted clients reads like an official bluebook of Hollywood and New York celebrities, in commenting on the foaming brew's effect on the feminine figure.

Madame Sylvia, a dynamic martinet of health, sends the "beer figure" bugaboo flying. With the face and figure of 16, she admits to 52—and two grown sons, so she knows whereof she speaks.

"With the return of good beer, women are very much interested in what it will do to their figures, naturally," commented Madame Sylvia. "You can tell the women of America for me that if they drink beer in moderation and watch their diet as I do, and as I tell them to, there is absolutely no danger of becoming fat."

"Having lived in Germany, Norway, and Sweden, I always had good beer until I came to this country. Now that your awful home brews have gone and properly brewed beer is back, it is a pleasure to drink it again. If I can drink beer at my age and still weigh 122 pounds, I'm sure the rest of you can. That, of course, goes for men, too."

"First, use common sense in drinking beer, as in eating or drinking any other good, wholesome food. No matter what other rules you break, don't for goodness sake combine starches with fermented malt beverages. Don't sit down to a beer and cracker (or white bread) marathon. I don't mean that you can't eat any food with beer. There are loads of balanced diets with which you can drink beer. For instance, here is a delicious evening meal for these hot nights. Nothing will refresh you as much at the end of a hot, tiring day as a glass of cold, stimulating beer—any of the well-known brands will do. Drink it slowly. Never, never gulp any cold drink. So sip your beer.

"With it have a cold plate consisting of crisp celery, three slices of tomato on lettuce, two slices of cold tongue, or very lean ham, a slice of lean roast beef, two slices of rice crisp, with no butter, and a pickle, if it agrees with you. Don't tell me this isn't enough to eat! Just try this with your beer and you'll be happy and satisfied."

Brew Is Nourishing
"And, what's more, you can be sure that such a menu contains all the food values your body needs and none of the fat-producing properties you should shun. "And that reminds me to say a word to you girls who are thin and emaciated."

"Beer is nourishing, and one of the most easily assimilated foods we can eat. In Bremen, I once had a German specialist tell me that the most successful treatment he could prescribe for undernourished, debilitated children was a diet including malt beer."

"I, too, have used beer with great success in treating many of my Hollywood patients who nearly wrecked their lives by that silly eighteen-day diet which once swept the movie colony."

"Then there are naturally thin people. Constance Bennett is one of them. When she first came to me for treatment she was extremely thin, run down, and photographed badly. I immediately demanded that she include malt beer with her meals. Now she is nice and round—but not an ounce of fat."

Health Is Goal.
Madame Sylvia is no diet fad-dict nor is she interested in superficial beauty. Health, scientifically kept, has been her main object since she first started the study of diet and exercise.

Her parting advice to women who are no longer young was: "I don't want women who are 40 or 50 to think they are finished. They are not. Age shouldn't be a handicap. Rather, it should be an achievement because the years have brought you sense that younger women can't possibly have."

"The unforgettable thing is to look like an old woman and act like a giddy young thing. So don't look old. You don't have to. Not in this day and age. Don't be afraid of living. But take your time about it."

"The trouble with the average American woman is that she hasn't the time to keep young. Take all the time in the world to keep young and you won't have any time left in which to get old!"

Dance To Be Held
Brookside Woman's Club will hold a dance Friday night at the community house. The Royal Nightingale orchestra will play under the direction of Glenn Baxter.

Bridge to Be Played
A duplicate contract bridge party will be held by the Hoosier Athletic Club at 8:30 Thursday night on the roof. Mrs. L. H. Riggs is in charge.

Council Is Feted
Mrs. Mildred White, 1326 Grant avenue, was hostess this noon at a covered dish luncheon and bridge given by the relief committee of Gold Mount Council 445, Degree of Pochontas.

A Day's Menu
Breakfast—
Shredded fresh pineapple, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs, reheated rolls, milk, coffee.

Assisting Mrs. Emerson are Mrs. Gorganna Ritter, pianist; Miss Mary Shumaker and Mrs. Ritter, vocalists, and the Mosier string orchestra.

the backbone of your week-end wardrobe.

Of course, the most exciting thing about it is the clever-cut of the ruffled neckline. But don't overlook those tricky seams that make all the difference in the world to your hips. The pleats allow plenty of freedom for your lengthen tennis technique, without giving a bulky look.

The fabric? Why, of course—a cotton that will come up smiling from repeated tubbings. For all its chic, any beginner can make it. It is utterly simple to put together. Size 16 requires 3 yards 36-inch material. Width about 1 1/2 yard.

Film Stars Are Modeled With Life-Like Realism in Manikins at Block's

Feature of Exclusive Display Is Showing of Men's Summer Dress Styles; Mess Jackets Popular.

BY HELEN LINDSAY

CITY shoppers who can brave the summer heat are greeted this week by an illustrious group from the windows of the Wm. H. Block Company. There, arrayed in costumes in keeping with the roles which they ordinarily portray, are Constance Bennett, Katherine Hepburn, Greta Garbo, Claudette Colbert, Norma Shearer, Kay Francis and Joan Crawford. They are the outgrowth of the art of a young New York woman, who has made a name for herself in manikins and backgrounds in New York stores in the past few years. She is Cora Scoville; now proprietor of her own factory, where she makes individual manikins for store window displays. She rapidly is gaining international fame for her ingenuity.

Miss Scoville first received notice from background work which she did for Franklin Simon and Company, of New York. She originated a kind of background work in which she used silhouette figures of manikins, with realistic heads, gloves applied on the figures, and other individual touches. Four years ago she created a sensation in New York with the different manikins which she created. Best, in New York, was the first store to use them.

The manikins will be displayed exclusively in Block's windows for thirty days. Accompanying them are two figures, representing the two "Beau Brummels" of the screen, John Barrymore and Adolphe Menjou. These will be used this week in a display of the most ultra in men's clothing ideas.

With the manikins, copies of current publications of movie magazines are shown, indicating the fashion trend of each individual star.

The manikins are made with bodies of glove silk, particularly adaptable to all the poses necessary for window display. The hair is of silk floss, and the faces are painted with realism.

Echo of British Styles in India

MEN'S dress styles this summer, as shown on the Barrymore and Menjou manikins, will be new, but decidedly along comfort lines. They will embrace the new trend for mess jackets and cummerbunds, as predominating in the east, and in California. These are the outgrowth of styles originated in India, by British officers, where ordinary formal dress was unsuited to the hot climate. They have been accepted readily by young male Hollywood, and are featured by Douglas Fairbanks Jr., James Cagney and other notables of the screen. Yale, Harvard and Princeton men have used them during the past season. They also have been popular on the decks of ocean liners. They are being accepted as the proper formal dress for young men for clubs and dances, and were in evidence at a recent formal dance given by the students at Culver.

Sash Is Worn With Jacket

MESS jackets are of white Palm Beach cloth, of extreme English cut, with the English drapery idea. They are very short, fitting around the waist, and the sleeves are plain without buttons or cuffs. They are made with high peak lapels, and broad shoulders.

The mess jackets are to be worn with English cut, Tuxedo trousers, fitting high and tight at the waist line, full at the seat and knee, and showing front pleats. Instead of the regulation formal waistcoat, the cummerbund will be worn with these. These are broad sashes of silk or satin. They wrap twice about the waist, fastening at the back with a clasp. In the East, cummerbunds have been shown recently in dark maroon colored pique.

A new formal shirt is to be worn with this costume, made of summer material, with only one button. Studs may be used. The Boyd collar, which is the proper accompaniment to this shirt, is a stiff, turned down collar, with extremely long points.

Tire Pressure Operates Paint Spray

AT the Guarantee Tire and Rubber Company there is a small gadget that will prove a boon to the driver who is continuously "bumping fenders." This is a small paint spray. The spray is a glass jar, from which a rubber tube attaches to the spare tire. Force from the tire is released by a small button, and the paint or lacquer can be sprayed on scratched fenders. It allows the paint to be applied by the same method as that used at the factory, and eliminates danger of splattering clothing.

NEWS OF SOCIETY FOLK

Miss Dorothy Jean Pettinger, 5215 Washington boulevard, and Miss Helen Carson, 3912 Washington boulevard, are spending the week with Miss Ann Walter at Rogers park, Chicago.
