HOME OWNERS, FACING LOSSES, TO RECEIVE AID

Loans From New U. S.
Group Granted to Prevent
'Real Distress.'

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance
WASHINGTON, July 12.—Three major policies in the administration of the new $2,200,000,000 Home Owners' Loan Corporation, have been evolved by the federal board, now engaged in extending benefits of the system to debt-pressed home owners.

Home owners will be required to show that they are in danger of losing their property before they will be eligible for a direct loan from the corporation.

A system of state and county advisory boards is being established to assist state and regional managers to administer the act to the best interests of the home owner.

Appraisal Methods

Methods of appraising properties have been set up to determine the extent to which the agency will extend its refinancing privileges. The administrative details are outlined in a list of regulations issued to local managers.

The system of appraisals, which has been one of the most troublesome features due to the decline of property values, involves three factors.

Appraisers are instructed to give equal weight to, first, the market value at the time of appraisal; second, the cost of a similar lot at the time of the appraisal, plus the reproduction cost of the building, less depreciation; and, third, the value of the premises as arrived at by capitalizing the monthly reasonable rental value of the premises over a period of the last ten years.

Rental Value Weighed

"To illustrate this instruction," the regulations say, "let us suppose that a typical home was soundly worth, in 1928, $10,000. Assume that this home today has a market value of $5,500. The present cost of such a lot, plus a reproduction of the house, less depreciation, gives us a value of, we will assume, $6,500."

"We assume that the house had a rental value of $100 a month ten years ago and now has a rental value of $50 and that the average monthly rental has been $75. Capitalizing these rentals on the basis prevailing in the community, we arrive at a value of $7,500. We average the three figures of value and have an appraisal of $6,500."

The regulation governing direct loans to the home owner specifies that advances will be made only "in cases of real distress." This type of loan is authorized by the act in cases where the mortgage holder refuses the corporation's four percent bonds for the mortgage and the owner is in danger of foreclosure.

Outline State Setup

"Managers and the public are reminded," the regulations say, "that $200,000,000 of cash (the system's capitalization) can not take up $20,000,000 of mortgages and this cash, therefore, is to be used only in a limited way so as to relieve the greatest distress."

The proposed state and county advisory committees will be composed of three members each and will be appointed by the state managers with the approval of the Federal Home Loan Bank board.

Duties of the state committees will be "to observe the operation of the state office and to make such inquiry as may appear to be appropriate as to the operation of the offices of any assistant state manager."

Wife of Wealthy Chicagoan Seeks Divorce for Unfaithfulness.

By United Press
RENO, Nev., July 12.—Mrs. Helen Cresse Hunnewell, Oak Park, Ill., today testified in her divorce suit that she found her husband, Harry H. Hunnewell, wealthy Chicagoan, and one Charlotte Barron together in a bedroom of the Hunnewell home at Beverly Hills, Cal.

Mrs. Hunnewell said both were intoxicated. She said she again found them together the same day, Sept. 21, 1931.

Hunnewell sued for divorce here March 20, 1932, charging cruelty, and then left for Tahiti in the south seas. Mrs. Hunnewell countered with a cross complaint charging Hunnewell was unfaithful.

Hunnewell is a beneficiary under the will of his late great grandmother, Mrs. Isabella P. Hunnewell, Wellesley, Mass., and her two sisters, the late Susan Jones and Jane Welles of Boston.

NO BARKING ALLOWED

Council to Pass Law Against Dogs, But What of It?

By United Press
FALLS CHURCH, Va., July 12.—The town council Tuesday ordered its committee on law and order to prepare a statute making it illegal for dogs to bark within the city limits.

Committeemen said they would have the law ready for adoption soon, but that they doubted whether the dogs would obey.

Man Killed by Train
