

ITALIAN FLYING FLEET SPEEDS FOR NEW YORK

Balbo and His Armada Leave Chicago on Trip to East.

(Continued From Page One)

Lakes-canal route the great armada planned to follow to New York. A mild southeasterly breeze was blowing. The lake was clear and calm.

Salvo Fired by Guns

General Balbo and his men arrived at navy pier shortly after dawn. Throngs of persons who had lined the shore since midnight cheered loudly, shouting "Viva Balbo."

The bearded young Italian air minister, commander of the greatest mass ocean flight ever accomplished, smiled and waved pleasantly. Speed boats were waiting to take the men to their planes, riding at their moorings just inside the breakwater.

A salvo of nineteen guns boomed on the shore as Balbo, natty in his commander's uniform, led his men in parade formation to the ships through a line of army troops. Chief officers of each of the planes wore white linen uniforms that stood out prominently in the bright sun against the olive green garb of the other aviators.

First to Board Plane

Balbo was the first aboard his plane. The motor of the ship began to roar. Engines of the other planes quickly joined in, sending a reverberating roar across the harbor.

Balbo moved his plane into position for the takeoff. The other two of his triad followed into line. At 6:32 General Balbo's plane moved forward slowly. It glided into the air at 6:42 and swung out over the lake. The two remaining planes of the first group followed immediately.

With the first squadron lined up behind him, Balbo, who had been slowly circling the city, veered off to the southeast. In a few moments he was lost to onlookers in the sunlight which flooded the horizon.

General Balbo said the fliers would remain in New York probably a week. It was expected the men would go to Washington to visit President Roosevelt.

MURDER SUSPECT IS GRILLED BY POLICE

City Man Is Slain by Drunken Negro.

John J. Ross, Negro, 144 Bright street, today was arrested on a vagrancy charge and held under $5,000 bond for questioning in the murder Tuesday night of John Watts, Negro, 25, of 13 North Blackford street.

Watts was standing on the steps of 221 North Geisendorf street, the home of his sisters, Mrs. Geneva Smith and Mrs. Lulu Burnett, police were told, and was saying good night.

A Negro, staggering and obviously drunk, walked up to the trio and asked if he were in Geisendorf street and who lived next door. Told, he drew a pistol and fired three shots into Watts' breast, according to his sisters.

FISH FRY TO BE HELD

Broad Ripple Christian Church Will Hold Week-End Event.

The Broad Ripple Christian church will sponsor a three-night entertainment and fish fry Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Washington boulevard and Sixtieth street.

Besides musical programs each night, motorized pushmobile races will be held.

BUNIONS

Stops pain instantly; removes shoe pressure; soothes, heals, cures. 100% safe, sure. Try a box—only $5. Sold everywhere.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads

$5.50 Round Trip
On sale daily; limit 9 days.

$7.30 Round Trip
On sale daily; limit 15 days.

$5.00 Per capita, for 3 or more traveling together. On sale daily; limit 15 days.

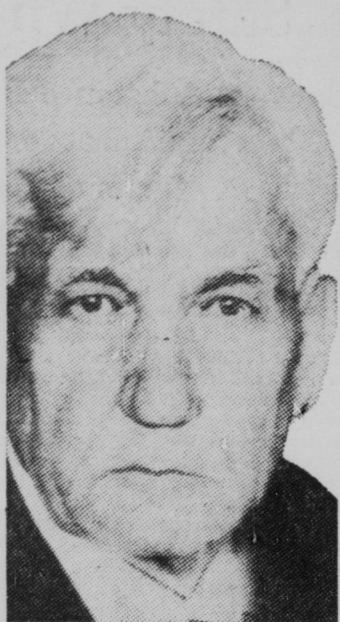

Tickets good in coaches, also in parlor and sleeping cars at reduced Pullman fares.

Tune in on the Columbia Network broadcast, 7:45 p. m. Central Standard Time, Mondays and Thursdays, until Aug. 3.

Information and reservations at City Ticket Office, 112 Monument Circle, phone Riley 2442, and Union Station, phone Riley 3355.

BIG FOUR ROUTE

Ex-Congressman Haugen, Farm Bloc Leader, Dies

Gilbert Haugen

Co-Author of Famed Relief Bill Passes at Age of 74 Years.

By United Press
NORTHWOOD, Ia., July 19.—Death has come to Gilbert Haugen, co-author of the famed McNary-Haugen bill for farm relief, and a member of the lower house of congress for thirty-four years.

Defeated in the wave of Democratic victories last fall, Haugen lost interest in life, and gradually declined in health. He was 74 years old, but as one of the Republican farm bloc leaders in Washington his vitality was immense.

The former representative died Tuesday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Johnson, from heart disease and complications. His illness started last winter after a severe attack of influenza.

L. G. Haugen of New York, vice-president of the National City bank, was at his father's bedside. His son and daughter are the only survivors.

Before his defeat by Fred Biermann, Decorah, last fall, Haugen was dean of the national house of representatives in point of years of service.

Prior to his election to the fifty-sixth congress he served as county treasurer and state representative from his district. He was born April 21, 1859, in Rock county, Wis.

He came to Northwood as a young farmer, but soon launched into the real estate and banking business. He was an extensive landholder.

Haugen's chief work in national legislation was the famed McNary-Haugen bill, an act which sought to dispose of agricultural surpluses through foreign exports.

The measure was passed by congress but failed to become a law because of presidential veto.

Alvin McFarlane, justice of the peace, Tuesday.

It was Dempsey's third marriage. His bride is the former wife of Roger Wolfe Kahn, orchestra leader and son of Otto Kahn, New York banker.

Accompanied by his fiancé, by Maurice E. Cain, his business representative, and by Mike Cantwell, Max Baer's trainer, Dempsey was en route from Salt Lake to the Pacific coast.

The party stopped here. A marriage license was obtained. Justice McFarlane read the ceremony.

The party then started toward Reno, where a year ago Dempsey and his second wife, Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress, were divorced.

Dempsey's first wife, Maxine Cates of Salt Lake, whom he married in 1916, when he was 19, was separated from him a year after their marriage.

Miss Taylor, in Hollywood, said she wished her former husband and his bride every happiness. "I am glad they are married," she said. "It definitely severs all ties between Jack and me."

SLACK TO SIT IN CASE

Named to Be Judge in Trial of Miss Marie Winingham.

L. Ert Slack, attorney, Monday was appointed special judge to hear the trial in criminal court of Miss Marie Winingham, charged with being an aid of Dr. T. G. Walter, 1339 North Pennsylvania street, in alleged criminal operations.

The appointment of Slack followed the filing of an affidavit for change of venue by T. Ernest Maholm, attorney for Miss Winingham. The grand jury which indicted her failed to indict Dr. Walter, who was arrested with her.

SLASH STATE AID LEVY

Minimum Set at 50 Cents Instead of $1.20 Previously Fixed.

Minimum levy under which state aid for schools can be asked was set at 50 cents by the state board of education today. Previously it had been $1.20.

The new low level is in line with the $1.50 property tax law and is based on a survey of minimum school costs made by George C. Cole, superintendent of public instruction.

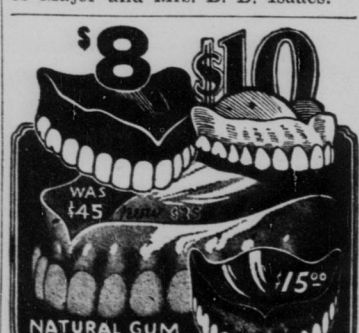

"THIS court is not here to reform the world," said Judge David in denying the petition. "Fifty years ago they tried to arrest Dr. Mary Walker for wearing trousers. Now women believe they aren't in style unless so adorned. "Only boobs go in for places like those described in the bill. We have a certain number of boobs, and while we have them, let them pay."

PICNIC HELD AT PARK

Four Street Cars Donated for Salvation Army Garfield Frolic.

Indianapolis Railways, Inc., has donated the use of four street cars to provide transportation today for the annual picnic of the Salvation Army at Garfield park.

Children from the two Salvation Army corps and the Harley Gibbs Settlement house were to attend. The children were to be in charge of Major and Mrs. B. B. Isaacs.

HANNING BROS., Inc.
Second Floor, Kresge Bldg.
Washington and Pennsylvania

Progress Laundry

'BATTLE TREE' CHANGED INTO PEACE SYMBOL

Scrappin', Pepper-Throwing Neighbors in Court; to Change Ways.

(Continued From Page One)

have been uttered by Mrs. Furgeson and Mrs. Lowe in an outraged chorus. They protested that the tree was exactly in the center of the front yard and was as much theirs as Mr. Guinnet's.

Hot words led to blows. Mrs. Furgeson is alleged to have wrested the saw from Mrs. Guinnet and struck at Mrs. Conway who stuck to her invalid's chair despite the excitement. Mrs. Guinnet, according to the police then rushed into the house and returned with a sackful of pepper with which she sprinkled Mrs. Furgeson.

While Mrs. Furgeson and many of the neighbors, who had gathered to watch the combat, were coughing and rubbing their eyes Mason Ingram, 9, of 234 Noble street, suffered cuts, but was not injured seriously when he was struck by an automobile while rushing across the street to see the fight.

Even the tree, innocent cause of all the trouble, came in for its share of abuse when the case was called in court. The neighbors called it a "tree of heaven," but an officer who had been one of those hurriedly dispatched to the scene of battle snorted.

"Tree of heaven," my eye," he muttered. "It's one of those allanhus trees. Skinny looking, y'know, with leaves something like a palm tree. 'Stink' trees we used to call 'em when I was a kid."

LEAVES $15,000 ESTATE

Fletcher Trust Company Named Administrator of Fogas Property.

The Fletcher Trust Company has been named administrator of the $15,000 estate of Mrs. Ida L. Fogas, who died Feb. 5 at her home at 8 West Morris street.

Heirs include the husband, John T. Fogas, and a daughter, Dorothy L. Fogas, Indianapolis; Bonnie L. Chase and Marjorie A. Fogas, daughters, Detroit, and Mary Jane Wurm, a granddaughter, Ferndale, Mich.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

ALABAMA AND ARKANSAS IN REPEAL RANKS

Two States Vote to End Prohibition Amendment at Special Elections.

(Continued From Page One)

a partisan issue, and party workers, down to the precinct organizations, did a thorough job of carrying out the orders of "the chief."

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

Alabama went dry by law in 1907

Before the snow flies, national repeal leaders anticipate that forty states will have voted on ratification of the repealing amendment, and the dries, having lost Alabama and Arkansas, are not justified in expecting a victory in a single state.

Tennessee's election, Thursday and Oregon's, Friday, are deemed certain now for repeal.

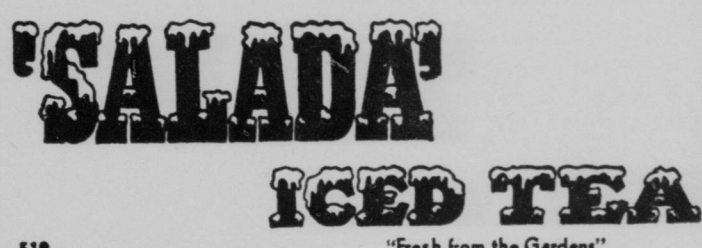

Alabama and Arkansas for many years have been two of the driest states in the union.

when only four other states were dry. Eighteen states—one-half of the necessary thirty-six—have voted to ratify repeal, and the total popular vote, not including the incomplete returns from Alabama and Arkansas has been on a ratio of almost 4 to 1

Thirteen have already held formal ratification conventions. Seventeen other states have set election dates for this year, which brings the total to 35, one less than the number necessary. And at least five others are planning elections this year.

3¢ a Quart (including all ingredients) Make Iced Tea this NEW SALADA Way

- Put five teaspoonfuls of Salada Tea in teapot
- Add one quart Boiling (bubbling) water
- Let steep for five minutes
- Strain into pitcher
- Add juice of half-lemon
- Add one-third cup of sugar
- Place in refrigerator and thoroughly chill
- Add small cube of ice to each glass just before serving

519

Save at Sears With Confidence

Pre-Shrunk Lustrous Cotton

Broadcloth Shirts

Too Bad This Price Can't Last Forever

69¢ Each

3 for $2

- Pre-Shrunk Cotton Broadcloth
- Good Substantial Weave
- Seven-Button Front
- Big Roomy Dimensions
- Guaranteed Fade-proof